NOTICE A TOUCH OF NATURE.

To Our Numerous Customers.

On account of the tobacco crop of 1883 being so poor, we did not buy much, and selected only the best of it, as we always wish to keep our "T. & B. Myrtle" brand up to the standard; and therefore there may be a scarcity of "T. & B. Myrtle" Plug for a short time. If such is the case there will be a full supply on the market by the end of October.

The tobacco we are now about to manufacture is the finest we have ever had, and we know it will please our numerous customers.

Yours respectfully,
GEO. E. TUCKETT & SON.

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needed for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unequalled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promise.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

"The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.

ventured to remark, as she saw him making out the figures, 'though when I came here this morning, it seemed but yesterday.'

'Then this is your husband's grave?' said Carroll, not so much now with the wish to know more as to keep back the bitter recollections over which he had control.

'Yes, sir, this is my husband's grave,' she replied; and pointing to the smaller ones, 'and these are my children's.'

'Are all your family here, then?' continued Carroll, his heart touched once more, now the unpleasant surprise was over.

'No, sir, not all; there is one left. We had but two when he went away—a girl and a boy—a fine boy. The baby he never saw, but he wrote often then, and always of coming back to see him.'

'Was it long before the battle that you heard from him last?' asked Carroll, still struggling with his feelings.

'Oh, no, the very night before Shiloh he sent a long hopeful letter—'twas so good!—and then it was the last, he spoke so often of the baby—and—and—so tenderly of me.'

Carroll did not look up. He had stooped down again, and was busy with the sods and stone.

'Twas in that letter,' she continued, after a little, 'that he first seemed to fear how his life would end. Somehow it seemed he would not end that letter; but finally, in one corner away along the side he spoke of the names we talked of for the baby, and then—there was—'Good bye.'

Her voice faltered here, but the trembling hands kept on placing the stones.

'War is cruel, madam—too cruel,' Carroll could not help saying, as the sad story brought all that terrible past before him. 'It must have been very hard for you then, and none to help you.'

'Oh, yes, sir; and then it came—what I had dreaded from the time he left. To be sure, they did not tell me how badly he was shot, but oh, I knew! and I left the children with a neighbor and started for the camp. When I came into the hospital tent he was saying, 'Helen, Helen!' and I thought he knew me, but he didn't. He had been saying it all along, they told me. The doctor could do no more, they said, and so they left me with him. All that long night I held his hands, so white and cold, and I thought of the little ones and of the empty home there, and but I cannot tell you! Somehow, it all came back, everything that he had ever done for me.'

'It all seemed so plain—I could see him doing up the chores at the barn again, and then coming up the path with the pails in one hand and leading little Walter with the other. When he came through the wood-shed and into the kitchen, I could hear his steps so plain, and the door open and shut—just the same rattle in the latch.'

'Oh, I thought I should die! And when I cried out to him they told me I must go away if I made a noise. So I kept still, though it seemed my heart would burst.'

'Well, along towards morning, as I sat looking at his pale face, all at once he opened his eyes and smiled, just as he used to. Then his lips moved, and I could just hear him say—'Yes, I have come; I always told you I would come back. Now, where is the baby, Helen?' Then I held my ear close to his lips for a long time, and when I looked again he lay so still!'

Carroll could not see the stone he was trying to place; still he kept his head bowed and worked on as well as he could.

'Well, I brought him home,' she continued, 'and when they laid him in our little front room it did seem as though the children would wake him, but of course it couldn't be, and we laid him here. And that winter we brought the baby here and laid it beside him. I was so tired then I wanted to hug the poor little thing up to me, and lie down there with them. But it wouldn't do; there were two left, and they must be led. So I did the best I could for them till—oh, it don't seem so long! No, but then it is; yes, it is seven years ago to-morrow since we brought little Walter here. He was such a little man—so like his father!'

(Concluded in our next.)

NOTES.

Not the promissory, but facts about WELCOME SOAP, an article that does not contain one particle of the adulterations used to reduce the cost of "Pure Goods," but does possess the value of legitimate Washing Qualities, the demand for which proves the advantage gained by the use of the genuine over Soaps of doubtful character. None should be deceived even by Red and Yellow Wrappers, or any of the imitations of the WELCOME, as a pair of clasped hands is stamped on every bar. Made by CURTIS, DAVIS & Co.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c. I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE.
