PRINCE OF WALES COLLEGE.

Commencement Exercises—Summary of Addresses.

There was a large attendance at the commencement exercises of the Prince of Wales College, which took place in the Opera House last evening. Besides Dr. Anderson and the young ladies of the graduating class there were on the platform Hon. Donald Farquharson, Premier of the Province and President of the Board of Education; Hon. Angus McMillan, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer; Hon. James R. McLean, Commissioner of Public Works, and, Rev. A. P. McLellan, Rector of St. Dunstan's College, who addressed the graduates.

The proceedings began with a selection by the St. Cecilia Mandolin Club, which was exceedingly well played, and deservedly applauded. Later in the evening the club gave another selection, which was equally well rendered. The College Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Hedley McKinnon, also did well, singing three choruses with much acceptance. Miss Pridham's vocal solo was sweetly sung and was one of the best items on the programme.

The essay on "Lady Macbeth," by Miss Alberta Smith, was an exceedingly well-written analysis of one of Shakespeare's most notable characters. The essay was attentively listened to and warmly applauded.

Miss Maud Bretner, daughter of Mr. Benj. Bremner, of this city, was the valedictorian. She pointed out that because of the unsatisfactory condition of the classrooms the best possible results had not been obtained during the year. While the curriculum was more extensive than in former years regret was expressed that the study of German was not included, and the hope was entertained that in the future more attention would be paid to the study of modern languages. The thoughtfulness of Dr. Howard, a distinguished graduate of Prince of Wales, in offering a prize each year for the best essay on some subject connected with Canadian history or literature, was fittingly acknowledged, as was also the excellent work performed by Mr. Hedley McKinnon in connection with the Glee Club. Appropriate references were also made to the College Debating Club, the Mock Court and the Y. M. C. A., and the opinion was expressed that the College journal should be revived. The old College building, around which clusters many pleasant memories, was also referred to, and the excellent work done by Dr. Anderson and those associated with him on the teaching staff pointed out. Touching references were also made to the death of four graduates during last year, Dr. McMillan, Frank Kennedy, Talmage McMillan and Edwin P. Robins. It was pointed out that thirty-seven years ago, when Dr. Anderson entered upon his duties, there were only about twenty-five students in attendance and the work was very elementary, while during the past year there have been two hundred and fifty students attending. The successors of the present graduating class, who will pursue their studies in the new college, were congratulated, and the hope was expressed that they would continue to uphold the honor of the old Prince of Wales.

Dr. Anderson, in replying to the valedictory, spoke of the laudatory character of such productions. But it was not at all unpleasant to hear the feelings of the students expressed in the chaste language which characterized the valedictory of tonight. The work during the year had been of an exceedingly agreeable character, and, on the whole, the results had not been bad. He sympathized with the statement of the valedictory regarding the teaching of modern languages, holding that a knowledge of French and German was of incalculable benefit. Prince of Wales College graduates stood low in modern languages but high in mathematics. Provision should be made for the teaching of French or German, or both. While his association with the old college was of the pleasantest description he hoped that the new structure would soon be ready.

Speaking of the graduates of the college who had died during the year, the Messrs. McMillan, Kennedy and Robins, he referred to their work at old Prince of Wales and the success which attended their efforts. Dr. McMillan and Frank Kennedy died after they had each attained a good measure of success in their chosen professions; Messrs. Robins and Talmage McMillan passed away when they were entering upon the duties of life with the brightest prospects. He was sorry to part with the graduating class of 1899, to one and all of whom he wished abundant success in the battle of life.

Dr. Anderson then explained that the medals had not yet arrived, and their presentation would therefore have to be deferred until they came to hand. In this connection he pointed out that for the second time in the history of Prince of Wales the highest prize had been won by a young lady, and it had been won with much distinction. Complimentary references were also made to the other medalists, after which the diplomas were presented.

The graduates were then addressed by Rev. A. P. McLellan, rector of St. Dunstan's College. He emphasized the necessity of each one selecting the profession or calling for which he was naturally adapted; and a choice having been made, great care should be taken to properly equip one's self for his life's work. Education is more general now than it ever was, and no person can master everything. A good moral character is an essential requisite for success. Failure is usually the outcome of entering a profession or calling for which we are not adapted by nature. Do not be deterred from choosing the calling for which nature fits you by the fact that this special branch is overcrowded. Remember that "there's always room at the top." Whatever profession or calling is decided upon struggle to become master of it. Bind all your energies towards the accomplishment of this purpose. Be constant in your application, and practice self-denial. Above all so conduct yourselves that when the end comes you will leave this world the better for your having been in it.

Premier Farquharson was the last speaker. He pointed out that education had made rapid strides in Prince Edward Island, and Dr. Anderson had much to do with this advance. He attended Prince of Wales College a good many years ago, in the days of Cundall, Keasy and Arbuckle, and it was then considered quite an institution. Of course the building is now old, but it is soon to be replaced by a new one to cost $35,000. This building will be a credit to the province. The expenditure on education is now very large, being about 47 per cent of the revenue against 7 per cent in Ontario. There are about 500 schools and 580 teachers in P. E. Island, and the teachers were paid as well as the revenue of the province would admit. Miss Bretner deserves credit for coming out at the head of the class this year, and she should be proud of the distinction. Under the provisions of the act passed at the last session, who knows but she may in the not distant future be a member of the School Board. In conclusion, the Premier expressed his pride in our educational system, and pointed out that the next commencement exercises would be held in the convocation hall of the new college building. The National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.
