ment returns on bank deposits it will be observed that there have been many millions more on deposit in savings accounts in all banks than there was in 1927, which means there is more money in the hands of the public now than in the years of prosperity.

Furthermore, he said, as no time have the banks been more anxious to make loans to borrowers who are entitled to borrow.

than they are at the present time. This is easily explained by the fact the deposits are steadily increasing and the banks, to employ their surplus funds, have to turn to the purchase of government securities which are being at the present time a very low yield.

"As far as I can see I do not look to the immediate future for a rise in interest rates for high grade securities," the assistant general manager stated.

Another criticism in some quarters is that the real difficulty which holds the revival of business back is the banks and that if they were nationalized, in other words taken under control, one of the great stumbling blocks would be removed.

But after all the question of successful banking is, it is conducted on sound lines.

If the banks were nationalized the method of making loans would be more liberal than under the present system because if it were otherwise losses would be suffered which would have to be taken care of by the government and in turn by the tax payer.

After all the Canadian banking system has been thoroughly overhauled twice during the past two years, first by the McMillan Commission and second by the Banking and Finance Committee of the Federal Government at the last renewal of charters of banks, and there was no important change made in the bank act covering the operation of the charter banks.

"This, I think, is good evidence that the Canadian banks are affording the Dominion of Canada a good banking service," Mr. Arscott said in conclusion.

Lose Mixed Doubles Title

TORONTO, July 26.—In a startling upset, Mrs. F. V. Woodbury and Bevil Piers lost their Ontario mixed doubles championship Saturday night to Mrs. H. L. Beer and George LeClere of Ottawa.

The Halifax pair favored to repeat last year's victory, were beaten 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, by the Ottawa combination. It was one of the most surprising defeats of a week of unpredictable tennis.

The Ottawa pair led off with a determined attack that beat the Halifax combination down to a 6-3 defeat.

But the Woodbury-Piers combination rallied brilliantly in the second game to drive back the attackers and reverse the score, ending with a 6-3 victory. With the games even both pairs settled down to a grim battle of tricky placements and vigorous, smashing attacks that brought rounds of applause from the thrilled spectators.

Weakened by the supreme effort they made in the second game to pull the match back to safety and retain the title, Mrs. Woodbury and Piers slumped under the driving onslaught and were swamped under a 6-1 score.

Easily the standout men's doubles team in the tournament, Ed Connolly and LeClere stroked their way to a comparatively easy victory in their match today, defeating Gordon Shields and Maurice Margeson, Toronto, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

The all important singles tests were settled Saturday, with a Toronto pair, Ross Wilson and Mrs. George Worsley taking the titles.

Wilson defeated Marcel Ravine of Montreal in a four-set battle, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1, while Mrs. Worsley topped Mrs. H. L. Beer of Ottawa, 7-5, 6-0, in the women's section.

Wilson holder of the eastern Canadian title won last week at Ottawa, completed a triumphant two weeks of touring the Maritime Provinces at the expense of the Montreal veteran. Wilson appeared on his way to victory in the first set when he led 3-0 and 5-3, but Rainville staged a great effort to run out the set 7-5.

That was the last threat of the Montrealer, who appeared unable to do his game justice under a heavy wind which made playing conditions tough.

Mrs. Rene Bolle, Montreal, and Mrs. H. L. Beer, Ottawa, showed their teaming ability by defeating Mrs. Worsley and Mrs. O. E. Gray in the women's doubles, 7-5, 6-3.

CAMPAIGN CLOSES IN MANITOBA

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) WINNIPEG, July 26.—Voters in Manitoba will trek to the polls tomorrow to elect 52 members to the provinces' 55-member Legislature.

Headed by S. J. Farmer of Winnipeg, the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation has named 19 candidates and the Manitoba Social Credit League, promising basic dividends for all has named 20 candidates. Seven others of various affiliation have been nominated.

The government enters the election with one great candidate in S. G. Carson, Liberal-Progressive member for Fairford, was unopposed when nominations were received. Voting in The Pas, represented by Premier Bracken, and Rupert's Land, represented by Hon. E. A. McPherson, provincial treasurer, has been deferred until Aug. 21.

LENNOX ISLAND ELECTIONS TO BE HELD TODAY

Today is election day at Lennox Island, one of Prince Edward Island's little Indian reservations and probably the Dominion's smallest electoral district.

The Lennox Island Indians are holding elections for chief and 64 of them will go to the polls. Although nominations are made the same day as the election is held, it is expected that only two candidates—present head of the reservation, Jacob Sark, and an aspirant to the chieftainship, Dan Mitchell, will be in the running.

The ballots will be printed some time. This morning nominations will be made formally. Immediately after the candidates have accepted the charges of their followers, the election will be held under the keen eye of Mr. Neil MacDougall, Indian agent who acts as returning officer. Two stairwells, red-coated Mounted Policemen will also be on hand.

Only difference between Lennox Island elections for head man and regular government election is the absence of campaign speeches.

There is no fixed time of office for chiefs of Lennox Island. Most of the time, the Indian agent will arrange for printed ballots, tell the Indian agent, nominate their candidates, and go to the polls.

TEXT OF KING EDWARD'S SPEECH

By a gesture which all can understand but soldiers especially the laws of France have decreed that here Canada shall stand forever.

We raise this memorial to Canadian warriors. It is an inspired expression in stone chiselled by a skillful Canadian hand of Canada's salute to her fallen sons. It marks the scene of feats of arms which history will long remember and Canada can never forget. And the ground it covers is the gift of France to Canada.

All the words over there are battlefields the names of which are written indelibly on the pages of our troubled human story. It is one of the consolations which time brings that the deeds of valor done on those battlefields long survive the quarrels which drove the opposing hosts to conflict. Vimy will be one such name. Already the scars of war have well nigh vanished from the fair landscape beneath us. Around us here today there is peace and rebuilding of hope. And so also in dedicating this memorial to our fallen comrades our thoughts turn rather to the splendor of their sacrifice and to the consecration of our love for them than to the cannonage which beat upon this ridge a score of years ago.

In that spirit, in a spirit of thankfulness for their example, of reverence for their devotion and of pride in their comradeship, I unveil this memorial to Canada's dead.

This noble ideal gave overpowering significance to today's ceremony. Mr. Lapointe went on: "The greatest tribute we can pay to our Canadian soldiers is to be able to state that their sacrifices have in some measure contributed to bring about in our civilization this new conception of international relations, namely, a universal peace based on the recognition of the immutable right of all peoples to the free enjoyment of liberty and justice."

And then, that we may help the church forward to her glorious ideal, let us redress our selfish in her. We can all submit to have that said to us. We know how Jesus Christ regards her; let us visualize her as He does. To our sorrow we all know that in her human aspects she falls far short of His ideal. The faults that are in her, our faults, are a heavy sorrow and a trial of faith to all who are in earnest for her final triumph.

But those faults are in her because she opens her doors wide to all sorts of men and women with their limitations and their prejudices and their human passions. And so, what can you expect. The faults that are in the church are just the faults of fallible human nature. But notwithstanding all the faults that are in her, it can be said that never in human history has there been such an organization bound together by such high ideals, and animated by such a holy purpose, as so well-wishing and unselfish towards others as is the Christian Church. There is no other institution which is trying so hard to put the evil things to rest, and to build into the common life of mankind the things that are clean and true. There is no other institution which has so much at heart the highest and best interests of men and women and little children. There is no other institution which is keeping alive in peoples hearts the hope of a better, brighter life, against the time when the "final fever" of this mortal life is over. There has always been criticism of the church; but today there seems to be a kind of quiet which exists for the purpose of picking holes in the Church. It has become quite fashionable to maintain that one can be quite as good and useful without joining the church as one can be within her. I make exception to that statement. You cannot be as good, as happy, as useful outside the church as you can be within her. If you could, there would be no church nor any need of the Church. But the very people who say they can be as good outside her as within her know perfectly well in their hearts that the world still needs the church, and needs her badly. Those of us who are in the church do not claim to be perfect, nor do we close our eyes to the church's imperfections. We are sorer than any that those imperfections are there. And we want to get rid of them: We really do. Is it fair to criticize anything which you are not trying to improve? Why not come in with us and help us to raise the church up to her proper estate? At the best, every one of their hearts, everybody knows that the church is on the right track. Why not come in and help us? We can use your zeal and commonsense and your love of a square deal, and your brotherly kindness and charity to the best effect in the church's work. Why not come in and help us to make the Church what you would like it to be? And to those who are in the church, I would say, let there be more loyalty to her, more enthusiasm, more cordiality and broadmindedness towards those who are outside the church. Let us live our lives more consistently with the standards and aims of the Church, so that the greatest advantage for the church is in justification, may not, on our part, be wanting—of love of charity, of service, of holiness; so that the world, seeing the kind of people the church can produce, will say like those of old "These people have been with Jesus." A mighty triumph awaits the church if we, her members, are only faithful and fair to her; if we are only ready, at all costs, to yield ourselves as instruments into the hands of Jesus Christ, who loved the church, and gave Himself for it, that He might present her a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing."

Mr. MacKenzie referred to the symbolism in the memorial of "the two civilizations, British and French, united in those dark and testing days as they are united today in this solemn service of commemoration—and as they have been united in our Canadian land for well-nigh two centuries, devoting the best that is in the genius of the two peoples to the steadfast upbuilding of a united Canadian nation, lofty, benignant and free."

"Let us not despair," said Mr. MacKenzie. "For we are gathered here not only in the commemoration of those who died, but for the redemption of the nations here represented to the sacred cause of peace."

"The pylons of the memorial bear the figure of the cross. 'Is it not time for a weary, doubt-torn, tempest-tossed world to turn its face to the cross and find in Christian brotherhood and the spirit of goodwill the tranquil calm that never can be found in futile and destructive strife?' the minister asked.

"Canada remembers today with sympathy and reverence the widows and orphans and parents of the fallen," Mr. MacKenzie said. Across the leagues of the Atlantic the heart-strings of our people will reach through all time to the resting places of the dead."

Canada deeply honors "one who was the comrade of thousands of Canadians ringed around the memorial here, and the comrade and friend in days of war of thousands more, who, amid the now quiet places of these hills and valleys, sleep their eternal sleep."

"Canada is greatly and truly proud that our King has come amongst us this day."

Clergymen Visit Historic Sites

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) PICTOU, N. S., July 26.—Historic religious sites of Pictou County are being visited by a group of clergymen of the Maritime Provinces Saturday as their annual synod wound to a close.

This year's meeting marked the 150th anniversary of the arrival of Rev. Dr. James Drummond MacGregor, first Presbyterian Minister in Pictou County.

A brief service was conducted at the graves of the pioneer minister by Moderator Rev. N. D. Kennedy of Stellarton, N. S. A prayer was offered by Principal Scott MacKenzie of Presbyterian College, Montreal.

Graves of associates and friends of Dr. MacGregor were viewed by the visiting ministers. These included William Smith's, at whose home he spent his first night in the county and Robert Patterson in whose barn he preached his first sermon.

Papers were read on the history of West River Seminary which later moved to Halifax and became Pine Hill Divinity College; on Dr. George Patterson, author and historian, whose books on the history of Pictou County, the life of Dr. James MacGregor and the life of Dr. John Geddie are well known; and on the mission vessel Dayspring, financed by Sunday School children of the Maritime Provinces, Scotland and Australia to carry missionaries through the South Sea Islands. The papers were read by Rev. William Verwolf, Frank Baird, and D. C. Sinclair, K. C. respectively.

A committee consisting of Rev. D. A. MacKinnon, Rev. D. O. MacKay and Rev. William Tooms was appointed to determine the place where the next synod will sit.

TORONTO (CP)—Bathurst Power and Paper Co. Limited, will derive substantial benefit from operation of the recently-rehabilitated cylinder machine. It is officially announced. The machine has a daily output of 100 tons of folding box-board, sufficient to take care of the company's entire output of unbleached sulphite pulp. In the past this pulp has been sold to manufacturers in a raw state with little profit, called by the Bathurst company.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT CARDIGAN

tion with secular agencies in ways which are so well known to all of us that they need not be described. The upshot of this is that we are causing the church both to lose caste and to lose ground. The only thing with which the Church should be in competition is the sin of the world. We can only hope to do Christ's work in Christ's spirit and in Christ's way. The moment we try to do it in any other way we fail, and we deserve to fail. The greatest victories the Church has ever won were won by the primitive church which knew nothing save the crucified and Risen Christ, which did not entangle itself with purely worldly matters, and which never trimmed its sails to fickle public opinion. And when we get back to those old standards we will succeed as well as they did. The temple of God needs another cleansing. The success of the church is only to be measured by the ingathering and confirming of souls to the faith of Jesus and the will of God. Any other way of measuring the church's success is wide of the mark, and utterly unworthy of her origin and nature and purpose.
