BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

AS DIFFERENT AS THEY LOOKED

There are, and this is always true, No folks alike in all they do. —Old Mother Nature

Thunderer the Grouse chuckled as from the end of a mossy old log he looked down on two small visitors. Thunderer had been drumming and these two small visitors had come to see him drum. They were of about the same age, but one was a little bigger than the other. Both wore striped coats. In this matter they were alike, but in this matter only. One had bright, snapping eyes. The other also had black eyes, but they were not bright and snapping. They didn't snap at all. The truth is they were a little dull. Their owner wore a black coat with two quite wide stripes. The other also wore a striped coat, but it was not black and the stripes were very narrow.

"What is your name?" asked Thunderer.

"Is your father Striped Chipmunk?" asked Thunderer. His little visitor nodded his small head quickly. "Yes," was the prompt reply. "How did you know?"

Contract Bridge

A COMBINATION OFTEN MISPLAYED

There is one combination of cards which has been discussed over and over again in bridge books and columns, but which still seems to baffle the average player. We refer to the trump combination in the following deal:

South dealer. East-West vulnerable.

| | |
|--------|---------|
| ♠ K8 | ♠ Q1076 |
| ♥ KQ97 | ♥ 4 |
| ♦ 7542 | ♦ 2 |
| ♣ Q74 | ♣ 2 |

| | |
|--------|-----|
| ♠ J93 | ♠ 5 |
| ♥ J106 | ♥ 5 |
| ♦ A | ♦ 5 |
| ♣ AK9 | ♣ 5 |
| ♣ J92 | ♣ 5 |

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass

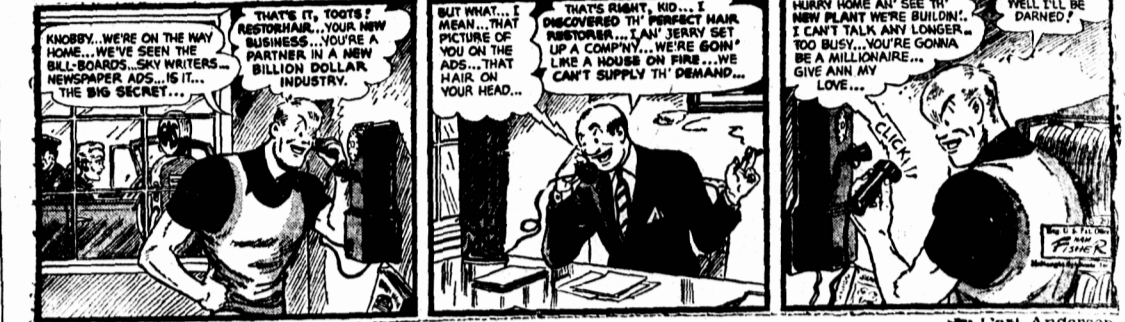

West laid down the diamond king and, when his partner followed suit with the queen, continued with the ace and nine of diamonds. East then shifted to a club, which declarer won in his own hand. Everything now seemed to be under excellent control, and South, without thinking, led a low trump to the queen, preparatory to drawing trumps and spreading the hand. When East showed out, however, the picture changed radically: West now had a sure trick in trumps. We cannot caution readers too often about falling into this sort of error with the particular trump suit involved here. Almost every player has the habit, as well as the tendency, of laying down an honor from the hand that contains two honors — in this case
