UN TO BORROW
NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says that for the first time the United Nations has had to borrow money from other funds to pay its bills between now and July 1. Part of the financial trouble has been caused by the failure of many countries to pay their assessments for the United Nations emergency force in the Middle East.

Project of this work has been the building up over the past five years of a native W.M.S. to which she has given much time. She states that in South Formosa, they are supporting three women graduates of the Theological College in Tainan who work as "missionaries at large" in the Presbyteries.

ELLEN'S DIARY

What Will They Choose In This Remarkable Age

"Come!" Mack our nine-year-old invited us this afternoon. "I want to show you the first iris in bloom." So proud they are to discover the firstlings of blossoms about, these children of ours at Alderice, and few newcomers to border or bed there he that escape their young eyes.

Against the fresh gold-green of the caragana hedge below the house across the lane we found the pretty white bloom.

"It's France's flower—the Fleur de-lis isn't it?" he commented. He enjoys history absorbing not only what belongs to his own class but he catches also other seeds of it which fall to such good ground when the senior grades recite theirs.

The hedge itself is most attractive now, the thick foliage filled with a profusion of yellow sweet-pea-like bloom. On warm days it is a Mecca for bees and hummingbirds, and goldfinches like to nest there.

Now that the cropping is ended, the four farmers of the name, (this now includes Jamie, eldest grandson, a sizable fellow) turned interests to other affairs of the farm. One went to clean box-stalls, spreading the gatherings on a field. One went to island buyings of livestock, and one went farther afield to the same. And one kept to odds and ends of tidying about.

"You won't be quite so busy now—at least not until the wedding comes on," we said to the latter, we being at the assisting end of the saw he was using to cut a length of board for some matter of repair about.

"There's never a day on a farm, Ellen, that a fellow can't find something to do." Now don't push the saw—let me draw it

MR. AND MRS. G.H. HANN

London, Ontario, Is The Scene Of Lovely Wedding

St. Patrick's Church, London, Ontario, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on May 16, when Joyce Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Trainor, Johnston's River, P.E.I. and Garfield Herbert, son of Mr. Garfield Hann and the late Mrs. Hann of London, Ontario, were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Murphy C.S.S.R. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Louis, of London, Ontario, looked lovely in her floor length gown of white nylon net and Chantilly lace and taffeta. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a tiara of rhinestones and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Diantha Hann, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, chose a bell shaped dress of pink Christebella with matching hat. Her

MARY HAWORTH

Married To Fickle Wife Man Is Desperate

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a young man desperately in need of help. I met my wife a year ago, and very shortly we were engaged. The engagement lasted six weeks, then she broke up with me, because she didn't love me, she said.

I went away, got a job elsewhere and sent her three letters before going back at Christmas, when we had two dates. Again I proposed, and Myra said yes; and we got married the same day.

With her approval I took a job closer to her parents and mine, and was making strides professionally, when she got pregnant and walked out on me. Later she offered to resume the marriage if I would return to her home town and get a job, which I did—throwing five years' career work down the drain.

SAYS SHE ISN'T IN LOVE
We stayed with her folks temporarily and, before a week had passed, she said she was through; and at her request I moved out. Now she refuses any form of reconciliation and won't see a counsellor or psychiatrist.

In our brief time together, we never had a fight or argument; and the only reason she has for quitting is, simply, that she does not love me. Unfortunately, I love her very much, and will do anything in the world to win her back. Also, there is (or will be) the baby to consider.

Myra aims to get a divorce after the baby is born. What, if anything, can I do to win her back? If nothing, why should I suffer entirely? Could I gain custody of the child? Or insist, under law, that she be examined by a psychiatrist? Even if she never returns to me, I'd like to see her helped if something is wrong.

What can I do, that is just and right, for me and her and the baby? S.P.

WHO FAILED WHOM?
ear S.P.: This is a sad situation, certainly, but you aren't the injured victim, altogether. Rather it seems you insisted upon making trouble for yourself, and others, by pressuring the girl into a marriage that she didn't really want—when she wasn't ready for marriage, in any case.

As for what to do now, to get your feet on the ground, and arrive at some understanding of what was wrong, or who failed whom, and how—I think it would help you a lot, to talk things over with a good psychiatrist.

To insure against more and worse, you ought to dredge up and unload the hidden tangle of self-defeating tendencies in your make-up, that impelled you to create this problem. As you did, of course, in determinedly tying yourself to a girl so little interested, and so poorly qualified to be a wife—so elusive, unstable and insubstantial, in respect to serious matters.

Monthly meeting date was

And how shall we say it? With a sign of regret for all in all the June-time is so sweet with its blossoms and loveliness. But, toward the end of its home-stretch we are! Until tomorrow — — — Diary. Good-night.
