Charlie Chan At Prince Edward

Criminal master minds plot his death, deadly cobras strike out with poisonous fangs, and foaming gorillas rage at his back, but Warner Oland as the famous Chinese detective calmly and silently unravels one of the most baffling mysteries of his entire career in the picture "Charlie Chan at the Circus" which comes today to the Prince Edward Theatre.

It is Chan's task in the new picture to track down a mysterious killer, who after having committed one murder, returns time and again to the scene of the crime to silence those who might know his identity. Since the murdered man was owner of a circus and his relations with the performers were none too amiable, every one of the circus people is under suspicion, including the giant gorilla who was out of his cage at the time the crime was committed.

With a few clues to work with and continuous attempts upon his life hindering his progress on the case, Chan slowly weaves a web of evidence around the suspected party. To the amazement of the police and the circus performers, who are all baffled by the mystery of the case, Chan uses one of the victims of the murdered as a decoy and cleverly traps the suspected person into revealing his true identity. The solution of the crime brings happiness to the large circus group who were continually terrorized by the unknown criminal.

Prominent in the supporting cast are Keye Luke, who portrays Chan's son, Francis Ford, Maxine

An audience that goes to the Capitol Theatre today looking for action will get everything they asked for in the Historical Western, "The Lawless Nineties."

John Wayne lists on high as the hard-riding, two-fisted leader of the Federal men sent to Wyoming to see that an honest referendum election is held over the question of whether Wyoming should become a state. Brunette Ann Rutherford brought an element of freshness to her role of leading lady. Others in the cast who deserve a mention for their work include George Hayes, Al Bridge, Cliff Lyons, Tom Brower, Jack Rockwell, Lane Chandler, George Chesbro, Al Taylor, Snow Flake and Tracy Layne.

Thanks to the fact that the plot of the story was based on facts in the history of the settling of the Western Empire, there was a decided note of reality to the story of the attempts of the lawless element to block the efforts of the honest citizens to gain admission to the Union.

Recognizing the fact that the success of any western depends primarily on its fast action, Director Joseph Kane has kept the movement of the story pitched to a high tempo.

Reiner, John McGuire, Shirley Deane, Paul Stanton and J. Carroll Nash.

Reliable Repair Work

You understand that when we do a piece of repair work we do it to give satisfaction, and if it falls short of that we are not satisfied. We have a plant that is so thoroughly systematized that we can handle the smallest piece of repair work, and give the same satisfaction as we do with extra heavy work. This is a shop of specialists, a shop where expert workmen and the best machinery co-operate to give you genuine satisfaction at the same price as you would have to pay for the other kind.

Little Shemogue, N.B.

The Little Shemogue Branch of Women's Institutes met at the home of Mrs. Maud Blacklock for the April meeting. Mrs. T. H. Robinson the vice president presided. The meeting opened with singing "O Canada" which was followed by "The Club Women's Creed." The Roll Call was answered by twelve members with a nourishing meal. It was decided to buy material to finish the Red Cross quilt that the members had been preparing. Mrs. J. R. Taylor led the program with an interesting paper on Home Economics and Growing of Small Fruits. A discussion afterwards proved interesting. A puzzle contest was conducted by Mrs. Taylor and the prize donated by Mrs. Taylor was won by Mrs. Bruce Robinson. Meeting closed with singing Institute "Ode."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schurman, of Albany are visiting relatives in Port Elgin and Little Shemogue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Scott Arbeau are being congratulated on the arrival of a son, on April 4.

J. Harvey Murray and James Fields returned last week from Dorchester where they had been serving on petit jury.

Mr. Corey Trenholm came home from Highland View Hospital this week where he has been a patient for some time.—U.

HOW TO CHOOSE YOUR MAN

For a long time men have held an erroneous belief that women liked them dark and handsome. Had the man looked around at their fathers and grandfathers and the other men whom women marry, they long ago would have corrected their viewpoint.

Knowing better, they would not have hailed as spot news the recent declaration of the co-eds that the Latin-looking gentlemen with melancholy eyes have negative appeal.

The co-eds prefer the Jimmy Durante type or a Joe Penner. Here is their verdict: A ridiculous lover would at least keep a girl amused while a handsome man probably would consider himself King Tut after romance had waned and expect to be handled with kid gloves, served on bedded knee, and have such a comely member of the opposite sex as rooted in the fact that handsome people are inclined to look on life as their looking glass.

A good-looking man—who has neglected other personality factors—often expects to find his reflection mirrored in every woman's eyes. A pretty woman too often believes that since she has given the public the gazing privilege it should give her the best seat in the orchestra.

After all we tire of any painting when we see it exclusively. If the artist could bear the breadth of life into it and the sea would roar, the trees blow in the wind and lose their leaves in fall and find them again with the spring the picture would satisfy us day after day. A painted ship upon a painted ocean, as in Ancient Mariner discovered, can't offer any maritime thrills.

SAUCE FOR COOSES, TOO

Men on the other hand, have made similar remarks about beautiful women and the excess tariff that they expect to collect. The danger in marrying a comely member of the opposite sex is rooted in the fact that handsome people are inclined to look on life as their looking glass.

A good-looking man—who has neglected other personality factors—often expects to find his reflection mirrored in every woman's eyes. A pretty woman too often believes that since she has given the public the gazing privilege it should give her the best seat in the orchestra.

After all we tire of any painting when we see it exclusively. A painted ship upon a painted ocean, as in Ancient Mariner discovered, can't offer any maritime thrills.

MUST DEVELOP TALENT

Thus, a handsome person, who contributes only pictorial charm to the scene, is not as stimulating and interesting as one whose elastic mind, kindly wit and humor and sympathy are his presents. It is much better to be a personality that leaves a pleasant imprint than one of the boys with a precious smile that textile advertising artists love to paint.

Certainly, many handsome people measure up on every count. There are so many who fall short, because they rely strictly on surface appeal, that the co-eds feel the need of leaving a warning to men. No one, Grecian-nosed or pug-nosed has a right to refuse to develop his natural charms and resources unless he wants to be a bore. Of course it is better to be a good-looking bore—if you must be one—than an unattractive one.

After all, we may find perfection at the movies. Every-day-husband-and-wife can't sit on pedestals. Men have to manage their jobs and women must get the marketing done and the house dusted. Even at the movies there is developing a trend in favor of the not-so-handsome-actor. Women aren't always pretty, either. Still, men haven't learned their beauty lesson as thoroughly as women have as yet.

Aged Resident of Lorne Valley And Vicinity

Well, we will have to head this list with the name of Mrs. Mary MacSwain who is the oldest lady on Prince Edward Island. She was the first merchant of Lorne Valley. The history of her life is contained in an article which appeared in the Guardian about a month ago. Mrs. MacSwain is still in good health and enjoys life to the present day. She was born on the Isle of Lewis of the northwest coast of Scotland. Mrs. MacSwain is 103 years old at present. Her 104th birthday will be celebrated in May by the gathering of friends, relatives and acquaintances alike at her home.

Mrs. Bell MacDonald, another grand old resident, has attained the ripe age of ninety some years. She is both well known and liked in Lorne Valley and vicinity. We are sorry that Mrs. MacDonald is not able to be about every day, but hope that she will live for many years yet, although when that age is reached, the angel of Death can be expected at any moment.

Mr. Donald MacLeod who is another great old citizen, is about every day and is still smarter on his feet than many men who are much younger. Mr. MacLeod saw a great portion of the world's globe and wish him many more years of happy life.

Mrs. Andrew Finlayson of Riverton has exceeded 80 and she is still able for her work. Not only is she seen about her home but at many other places. She still enjoys good health and I never knew of her being sick. It seems that the Scotch are long lives, what the reason is I do not know.

In this brief sketch of our grand old folks I must not forget to include the name of Mr. John James MacAulay of Gardiner Head. Mr. MacAulay is about 90 years of age but he still does the chores on his farm very capably. He is in good health and lives with his daughter. We hope that this old gentleman will live to see many more months of April.

We were very sorry to hear that one of Lorne Valley's most honored and most highly respected citizens passed peacefully away on March 24th. This was Mrs. Christine MacDonald.

Mr. John Finlayson of Riverton is also reaching the top of life's ladder. Like the other old people he is still in good physical condition.

I do not wish this article to occupy too much space in our paper but nevertheless remember that there are many other aged citizens in Lorne Valley and the neighboring districts. Many of those mentioned in my biography came from good old Bonnie Scotland to meet the hardships of a pioneer life. The men cleared the forests and the women also shared much of the manual labor. When Sunday arrived their nearest church was about 15 miles distant and they had to walk. When their journey became tiring or cumbersome, they removed their shoes, until they neared the church. Of course the rags in those times were merely cloth paths through the forest, and any man went to church with a horse and cart it was considered very fashionable. It is very interesting to hear about the great stories that these grand old residents can relate to you.—P

Would X-Ray Every Citizen

SAINT JOHN, N. B., April 8—(C. P.)—X-raying of every man, woman and child in Canada to find whether or not they are tubercular, was advocated by Dr. Norman Bethune, chief thoracic surgeon of Sacrecoeur Hospital, Montreal, in an address to the Saint John Medical Society here tonight.

"Medicine as at present organized in the form of individual doctors and institutions, has about reached its limits in the eradication of pulmonary tuberculosis. We know how it can be done but we are frustrated by the laissez-faire attitude of our politicians. We are playing with the problem and most of our efforts are wasteful of time, money and lives," Dr. Bethune said.

"Since every case of tuberculosis is contracted from some other case, it would appear to be the realistic approach to discover in a community those cases which are spreading the disease and polluting the streams of public health. The quickest and surest way of doing this is by X-raying every man, woman and child in the country.

"This can be done cheaply by paper films at an estimated cost of 10 cents apiece."

Modern medicine, Dr. Bethune said, was undergoing the same economic crisis as the rest of the capitalistic world. Fifty per cent of the Canadian people, he asserted, had no adequate medical care and group medicine and collectivized scientific action against disease must be realized.
