The Coercion Bill Discussed.

LONDON, May 18. The House of Commons in committee this afternoon began consideration of the second clause of the Coercion Bill, which proposes to extend the scope of summary jurisdiction to include conspiracy, boycotting, resistance to evictions and offences defined by the Whitby Act. After several other amendments had been rejected, J. G. Shaw Lefevre moved to omit from the clause the sub-section making punishable by summary jurisdiction conspiracy to induce any one not to fulfil legal obligations, not to use or occupy land, not to deal with or work for any one, or to interfere with the administration of law. The section as it stood he said exposed tenants to convictions by summary proceedings not by jury, but by resident magistrates, and deprived them of the ordinary protest afforded laborers and workmen against unfairness on the part of their employers. Hugh Holmes said the section applied only to criminal combinations. W. H. Smith moved to apply the clause to rules, which was adopted by a vote of 230 to 143, and the amendment was rejected.

O'Brien Maltreated.

TORONTO, May 18. Wm. O'Brien did not leave for Ottawa to-night as intended. About half-past eight O'Brien and his friends left the hotel for a walk. They were followed by a crowd who hooted and groaned and began to pelt them with stones. When they reached Bay Street O'Brien was hit three times but not seriously hurt. Wall, a New York Tribune reporter, and Mr. Cahill, Secretary of the Land League, however, were badly cut about the head. The mob pursued O'Brien down Bay Street, and when he took refuge in a blacksmith's shop they broke the windows and threw stones inside smashing several bicycles. O'Brien escaped by the rear of the shop and was assisted over a twelve foot fence. He escaped and quickly made his way to the hotel. At one time two men got hold of him and would, no doubt, have maltreated him if a policeman had not come to his assistance. Trouble is feared at the station to-morrow morning when O'Brien takes his departure.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, May 18. The house set from 3 till 6 and adjourned until next Wednesday. The time was occupied in committee on tariff changes. Several amendments were made in details. At the request of Mr. Davies, Sir Charles Tupper brought down to-day the correspondence between the Government of P. E. Island and the Dominion Government respecting the additional allowance made to that Province. The papers consist of a memorial from Hon. Messrs. Ferguson and Sullivan, and the Dominion Privy Council report recommending an additional allowance of $20,000.

Navigation Interrupted.

NORTH SYDNEY, May 18. Large quantities of ice still surround this coast. While steaming dead slow along the north shore of the Island to-day, the steamer Castledown collided with an iceberg and smashed her starboard planks. She returned to North Sydney for repairs.

The Church of England.

SIR.—In a late issue of THE EXAMINER I saw it stated that the Church of England on this Island was in a very feeble state as compared with the Church in the other Provinces. Now, I would like to know "in what way the Church is so very feeble?" We know here, in Charlottetown, there is much life and strength in the two churches and the reports of the various clergymen speak of the successful work going on in the country parishes.
