About That Quiz...

Ticket Policy Unfair

Dear Editor

Dear Editor,

I teach a course in Human Anatomy and cover reproductive anatomy and physiology in excruciating detail. Therefore, it takes a great deal to embarrass me. However, the February 13 issue of your student newspaper not only embarrassed me but it is a disgrace to the University community. I am extremely saddened to think that "freedom of the press" in a university publication resulted in freedom of corruption.

Perhaps it is time to reread the "Missions and Goals" printed in your university calendar. In particular the fourth statement that reads as follows: "To recognize the of moral discernment in the use of knowledge, and to provide an environment wherein personal integrity and responsibility may grow." I feel that you have clearly let down the university, and hope that the public sector has not been subjected to this waste of paper and ink.

-- Jim Kemp

Although I believe in freedom of expression, I personally think that your student paper dated February 13, 1996 (volume 1, issue 14) went way beyond that point by allowing the publication of the "corruption quiz". Promoting healthy and safe sex is one issue, publishing trash like that quiz offers no educational or entertainment benefits whatsoever.

Allowing such things to be published has given the sexuality supplement of your paper absolutely no credibility. I am ashamed to know that a UPEI student, who prefers to remain anonymous, would waste their valuable time to compose such a quiz.

-- Christian R. Lacroix

Editor's note: Interestingly, none of the complaints we recieved here at the student newspaper were from students. However, it is good to know that our professor's and parents are so concerned about the content of the student newspaper. -- A.C.

I am a hockey fan (congrats and good luck guys!). After the Panthers won the first game of their semi-final series against U de M, I decided to leave home (in Fredericton) a day early so I would not miss the game. My mom also wanted to see the game so she drove me back and planned to stay overnight. When I got back, I saw a sign stating that free tickets for students had been given out on Thursday. I went to the Sportsplex an hour and half early, hoping there would be tickets available and planning to beg if there were not. It was sold out. I do not think that it was fair for them to sell all of the tickets before the students had a chance to get back from their vacation. For those of us who were out of province, we had no way on knowing the tickets would be sold early. I was also told that there were 200 free tickets available to students out of a possible 1200 or so. It is our team, I think that we as students should have been given top priority after the Boosters. I don't know if anyone else found themselves in the same position I was but if they did, I don't imagine they were as lucky as I was. A very nice man who happened to be in the lobby while I was trying to get in, had three extra tickets and sold two to my mom and I. That does not mean that I am any happier with how the tickets sales were handled

Jane Resigns... But Not in Shame

The last issue of Panther Prints contained a 'Corruption Quiz' and an article, 'Her View', both of which were written by myself, Jane Lucrecia. Due to feed back from professors at UPEI and the public at large, it has been suggessted by one of the editors that I resign from my position as writer at the Panther Prints. Apparently I offended a few of our readers with my quiz. For the record it was meant as a fun quiz and was not meant to be taken too seriously. I would like to point out that if people were offended by my writing I wish they would have spoken to the paper directly and not to the President's office or the Student Union. Reaction to the quiz ranged from laughter and frantic adding of scores, to one lady stating that she would not allow her daughter to attend UPEI next year because of it. Get a life. For the people whom I offended with my quiz, I have a few words of advice -- call the paper directly to voice your complaints, and secondly -- turn the page. This letter is official notice of my resignation as writer for the Panther Prints student newspaper.

-- Jane Lucrecia

Fig. 3. The Geometry of Taste

Add your choice of fresh fixin's to a Subway Footlong and you've got the equation for a great sandwich. Because at Subway, we have the angle on taste.
