VICTORIA THE GOOD IN IRELAND

to Charles' square and thence to College green, and by Northern quays to Phoenix Park and viceregal lodge. The cheering was continued all the way, and not a single hostile demonstration nor dissenting voice was heard at any point.

The Queen has never had a happier welcome anywhere in the United Kingdom. The streets of the route were lined with 7,000 troops from the garrison to Phoenix Park and the roadway thence to the viceregal lodge was lined with an Irish constabulary force. There were mounted lines of the crossings and special guards of honor were drawn up with battalions at various positions. Between these files of scarlet passed the four landaus, with coachmen and footmen in royal livery. The Duchess of Connaught with her three children, was in one carriage and Princess Christian and Princess Henry of Battenberg were in the Queen's carriage; the Duke of Connaught, the equestrian-in-waiting the military staff and aides-de-camp were in close attendance upon the queen, and an escort of life guards, in brilliant uniforms, preceded and followed the carriages. It was a stately and picturesque cavalcade that flashed by the crowds of spectators who had been waiting for hours to see it, and when it came they had only eyes for the little lady with white hair, whose aged face was brightened with a sympathetic smile, and when it had passed it was the most natural thing in the world for them to sing "God Save the Queen." All military arrangements for this splendid town show had been admirably ordered by the Duke of Connaught, on the lines followed by Lord Methuen in the Jubilee parade. The throng of spectators was similar but not less enthusiastic. The streets were not decorated as artistically as those of Amsterdam were in coronating its queen, but there was a gloriolous revel the color red being the predominating tone. The names of Irish regiments were conspicuous in Merriem Square, and inscriptions of welcome to the Queen, but there was a glorious revel, touching being "Better loved ye cannot be welcome back." The men of Trinity college appeared there in their gowns and college green, with a company of Imperial Yeomanry not far away. At the lord chancellor's home an immense khaki banner was displayed, and from another house there hung the flag which Theophilus Shepstone had raised in Pretoria when the Transvaal was annexed twenty years ago. The American flag was even more conspicuous than it was at the London jubilee, for it was seen in well nigh every block.

The Queen appeared to be much affected by the form of her welcome. Mr. Burke, a son of the former city sword bearer, took the place of James Egan, the sword bearer who had refused to officiate, but the Lord mayor himself handed the sword and keys to Her Majesty, who touched them. The ceremonies at the city gate were most picturesque. London's jubilee Lord Mayor, Sir George Faudel Phillips, declared that the reception and ceremonies were the finest he had ever seen, far surpassing those of the great jubilee.

In reply to the address of welcome of the township commissioners of Kingstown, the Queen handed the following to the chairman:

"I thank you for your loyal and dutiful address and for the warm welcome with which you have greeted me. On setting foot again on Irish soil I receive with great satisfaction your assurances of devotion and affection toward me. I am looking forward with much pleasure to my visit to this part of my dominion and I pray may God bless Ireland with increasing welfare and prosperity."

As this written reply was handed to the chairman Her Majesty said: "I am very pleased to find myself in Ireland again."

often develop into weak, delicate, backward children; undersized, nervous, feeble, adults. Lack of nourishment is the cause.

Scott's Emulsion is the remedy. A little of it three or four times a day will do wonders. The pinched, sad faces become round and rosy; the wasted limbs plump and firm. If your baby is not doing well, try this great food-medicine.

14 YEARS Without Cleaning

A watch was recently left with me to be repaired, which the owner stated had not been cleaned for 14 years.

But, mark you, it needs more than cleaning now, one of the pivots having been entirely worn away for want of oil.

I would like to impress on all owners of watches, (particularly fine watches) the importance of having your watch cared for at intervals not exceeding two years. I solicit your patronage, because I know that I can give you the best service obtainable.
