LETTER FROM MR. GILL.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to ask Dr. Henderson a few questions as regards his statement about the death of my child. First, will the learned doctor define what he means by natural causes? The Bible says a man's natural age is three score years and ten. I would suppose by that, that to die before that period would be unnatural. Second, why did he not stay down at the house and try to something to benefit the child, and after expressing himself as being all at sea, why does he attribute the child's death to natural causes now? Third, why did he not insist on an inquest when he knew that the parties most interested in the child, namely, myself and my wife, wished it? Fourth, would it not be as likely for him to cause the tablets to powder, admitting they were the tablets, as for the little messenger, by carrying them a short distance? Fifth, why does he assert now that he gave me full and explicit directions how to use the tablets when he told me he could not find them then, and why did he send six if one was sufficient for a dose? Sixth, why does he state that any medicine prescribed by him did not cause the child's death when he sent no prescription with the medicine? In conclusion, will the doctor be so kind as to explain what the symptoms in the case indicated?

SOUTH LAKE NOTES.

The fine weather of last week has given the farmers an opportunity of securing the greater part of their harvest, which in growth far exceeds any previous year.

Last Wednesday several of our neighbors had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Alex. Fraser's self-binder work in John Æneas McDonald's field, since Mr. Fraser put his new shenadrick on the machine, an invention of his own. By the appearance of the work done Mr. Fraser deserves credit for his ingenuity.

The almost total failure of the mackerel fishing here will be quite a loss to fishermen and others engaged in the business, but it is hoped that mackerel will yet strike along shore before taking their departure from North Bay.

Mrs. William Ford met with a painful accident last week, by having two of her fingers almost severed while opening a can of spice. She is doing well under the medical treatment of Dr. McNeill.

Mr. Frank Baker, has secured the contract of carrying the mails between South Lake and Rock Bara. We know, by past experience, that Mr. Baker will give entire satisfaction as a mail courier.

Mr. James Bird, Little Harbor, is doing a lively business canning clams. He has already shipped, per schr. Belle Fraser, one hundred and ten cases. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

Capt. Joseph McLean, of Arichat, is here looking after the schr. Blanche, of that port, which struck on Stewart's Reefe about a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend celebrated the twenty fifth anniversary of their happy union on Tuesday, Sept. 15th. A large number of relatives and friends were present, and gifts were most numerous, the most notable being a silver cruet stand of magnificent design, presented by Augustine A. McDonald, Esq.

Miss Mary C. Bailey, Elmira, is visiting friends here. Miss Bailey will be the guest of George Gillis, Esq.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A REFRESHING SNAKE STORY.

The Sagacious Reptile Was Trained to Fan His Master.

"About five years ago," said C. T. Buckman, a well-known resident of Visalia, "while I was spending the summer in the mountains northeast of Visalia, I captured a large bullsnake.

"Being alone in the mountains, and having lots of spare time on my hands, I was able to teach Slippery Dick tricks. I taught him to come at call, to roll up, to dance and many other tricks. He would coil up on the table, his head in the center of the coil, elevated about six inches in the air. I would place the handle of a small fan in his mouth, and then Dick would gently wave the fan to and fro, and thus keep the flies and insects away from my face when I slept.

"He was as good as a cat to keep the house free from mice. I often saw him bring in ten or twelve in a day. His fondness for mice was his ruin. It happened this way: One day I missed Dick, and, though I hunted and called all day, I could not find any trace of my pet. One day, about a week after his disappearance, having occasion to explore the loft of the cabin in which I was residing. I came across the remains of my old friend. Apparently he had been more than ordinarily mouse hungry, and in his haste to satiate his appetite had swallowed a live mouse, and the mouse had done the rest. Poor Dick! I can imagine his surprise at the strange commotion in his inside, but it was a case of reward for gluttony. No doubt he repented when it was too late."—San Francisco Call.

An Underhand Transaction.

"Ye're dead wrong," ejaculated Three-Finger Sam.

"'Tain't possible," chimed in Faro Tim.

"Ye've been smokin' cigarettes an' ye're seein' ghosts," added Rattlesnake Hank, in a deep bass voice.

"Gentlemen," said the man from Cayuse Creek, whose narrative had provoked all this comment. "I'm willin' ter let my reputation fur veracity take its chances on the developments of the future. But I hope that observation 'bout cigarettes 'll be took back, because this here gun o' mine is beginning ter feel like it had more load than it kin carry."

"It is took back," was the reply. "Not because anybody is scared of a gun, but because it was spoke thoughtless and orten' ter stand. But these things yere tellin' about Broncho Bob, they're mighty hard ter listen to."

The man from Cayuse Creek grinned and said:—

"I don't see why you should care, ef Broncho Bob don't. He's used ter it."

"Yer don't mean ter say it's happened more'n once!"

"Lot's o' times."

"An' ye seen that feller take his fist and smack 'im cross the face?"

"Yes, an' he pulled 'is ha'r an' 'is goatee an' finally got on top o' him an' jumped up an' down on him weth both feet."

Three-Finger Sam groaned.

"Ter think," he said, "of our lookin' up ter Bob all these years an' ter hev it come ter this!"

"I've got two or three hundred thet is willin' ter come out an' talk fur my side o' the argyment."

"We'll cover the bet," rejoined Faro Tom promptly; "but how's ye goin' ter prove it?"

"Send for Broncho Bob hisself. Ef he don't say what I said is right, I lose."

The money was put up in the hands of the barkeeper and Broncho Bob was brought to the scene by a message that he was desired on very urgent business.

"This cayuser says thet you've been licked," said Rattlesnake Hank. "He says he seen you yesterday down on the floor lettin' a feller jump on you weth both feet."

"Did he say whether the feller was growed up er not?" inquired Broncho Bob, while the man who had proposed the wager smiled with exasperating serenity.

"Why, s'course we never thought of askin' no such question."

"Wal, then I'm afraid you lose. I'm sorry, fellers, but the truth is the truth, though I don't think any man but a man from Cayuse Creek would take advantage of it in this way. I was havin' a tussle yesterday afternoon weth a feller thet mauled me unmerciful, and thet kin do it agin whenever he tries. He's my 2-year-old baby."

Laid Low by Indigestion.

I was so run down I had to give up work.

Scott's Sarsaparilla the kind that cures.

Indigestion or dyspepsia is the bane of thousands, and is one of the most depressing of afflictions. It arises from an impure or impoverished condition of the blood, which weakens the digestive and assimilative organs, rendering them incapable of performing their natural functions, and if neglected, the sufferer loses flesh, complains of exhaustion after slight exertion, and becomes rapidly debilitated.

Mr. Wm. W. Thompson, a prominent resident of Zephyr, Ont., in a letter dated Aug 12th, 1895, says: "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the fact that Scott's Sarsaparilla has caused a most remarkable change in my condition. I was so much run down I had to give up work and felt as if life were not worth living. Mr. Dafoe induced me to try Scott's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four bottles I am now feeling as I formerly did years ago, and I want to say for the benefit of those suffering from indigestion and feeling, to use slang phrase, 'completely knocked out,' don't despair until you give Scott's Sarsaparilla a fair trial."

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a blood food, it stimulates all vital organs to healthy normal action, enabling them to throw off all poisonous and debilitating humors. Sold by druggists at $1, but there is only one Scott's. The kind that cures.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

A New Light Has Been Devised for Photographers.

A new light for photographers has appeared in Paris. It is the invention of M. Caton. It is said to cost very little and to possess all the qualities of the ideal photographic light. Its diffusiveness is remarkable. It gives no heavy shadows anywhere. Even right under the lamp no appreciable shadow of the pipe can be seen. The light seems to proceed from the lamp horizontally and to be diffused softly and evenly by the walls. The principle of the lamp can be best suggested by a reference to other systems. A Bunsen or other similar burner, in which a mixture of air and gas is burned is nonluminous. To produce luminosity it is necessary to have solid particles of some kind in the flame. A candle is luminous because one zone of the flame contains solid particles of carbon, which are raised to a white or yellow incandescence by the intense heat. The hotter the flame the greater will be the quantity of light given off by the incandescent body. In the ordinary incandescent burner, the mantle, composed of a fine network of infusible substances similar to lime, takes the place of the carbon particles of the ordinary candle or luminous gas flame. The actual flame that plays on the mantle is non-luminous, the light being emitted by the incandescent material in the mantle. If, instead of allowing the gas to burn with a mixture of the air it can draw in through the air-holes in the burner and the air surrounding the flame, sufficient air can be forced into the flame to burn the whole of the gas without needing any other air supply, the intense local heat of the blow-pipe flame is obtained. This is exactly the principle of M. Caton's lamp. The mantle is kept at an intense heat by a blow-pipe flame. The secret of success in the new burner is that the gas and air are mixed perfectly before reaching the flame, and consequently the combustion is perfect. This end is attained by causing the gas and air to pass through a series of mixing tubes. The inventor declares that there is no danger in this process, as the quantity of air and gas actually mixed at one time is too small to cause an explosion. The temperature of the flame is 3270 degrees Fahrenheit, so that no chimney can be used with the lamp. In spite of this high temperature the heat evolved is less than that given off by burning the same quantity of gas in any other way. So much of the energy of the flame is converted into light that there is very little heat left to be thrown off. In quality the light is said to resemble diffused daylight.

A Turkish Lady.

Every woman, rich or poor, with the least regard for her character, must be in her house by sundown. Only think of the long, dull winter afternoons and evenings when no friend can come near them, as all their female friends must be in their own houses, and male friends they can not have. Even the men of their own family associate but little with them. Let us hope that with the increase of intercourse between Europeans and Turks the life of the women must change, and that as the men have dropped their oriental garb the women will in time part with the yashmak and ferejeh, and that with them their isolated lives will cease. Young Turks who have been educated in Berlin, Paris and Vienna before they marry have been heard to declare that their wives shall be free, and yet when it comes to the point they have all yielded to the tyranny of custom. Nor is there any chance of change during the reign of Abdul Hamid, whose views on the seclusion of women are very strict, scarcely a year passing without fresh laws on thicker yashmaks and more shapeless ferejehs.

On the Bosphorus their caiques are a great resource to the Turkish ladies, but in Pera those of the upper classes can only go out, in closed carriages, to the Sweet Waters, occasionally accompanied by their husbands on horseback. But they may speak to no one while driving; their own husbands and sons can not even bow to them as they pass, and no one would venture to say a word to his own wife or mother when the carriage pulls up—the police would at once interfere. The highest mark of respect is to turn your back on a lady, and this is de riguer when any member of the imperial harem passes.

We were drinking coffee one day at the Sweet Waters, at the part which flows by the grounds of a country palace of the Sultan. All at once Sadik Bey jumped up and ran behind a tree, with his back to the Sweet Waters. Two or three closed carriages of the imperial harem were passing along the road in the gardens on the other side of the river, the blinds so far drawn down that it was impossible to see if any one was inside, and yet all along our side we saw the Turks, whether officers or civilians, going through the same absurd ceremony, and only when the carriages were out of sight did they return to their coffee. Formerly a man never saw the face of his intended till after the marriage ceremony, when they withdrew into a room and the veil was lifted for the first time. Now it is generally contrived that the bridegroom elect shall see his future wife for a moment unveiled.

A Pretty Blouse.

A pretty blouse creation may be carried out in white silk crepe de chine. The front is bouillonne from the shoulder to within an inch of the waist, where comes a pearl and opal embroidered band to which is attached the fluted basque.

Down the front is a graduated silk frill, outlined, as are the basque and double shoulder frills, with an opal beading, the neck being cut square and finished with pearl and opal passementerie. With its tightly drawn sleeves the blouse is a simple but quite charming confection, and may be worn with satin, canvas, white, black or a pretty striped or chine silk skirt, remnants for all of which by the wary individual may be picked up for a small sum at the hundred sales which tempt us on all sides through their many offered bargains.

The Fruit of Obedience.

How true is it that character in any form is the fruit of obedience? It cannot be enjoyed in any great proportion except as the individual yields himself to forces above him and subjects will and disposition to laws that were made to govern. And without character there can be no inheritance. Hence to possess it man, woman and child must obey.

Intentions and Actions.

God takes into account intentions as well as actions, belief as well as practice, profession as well as life. The purpose is as important as the execution. What we are is the result of what we will and feel. The inner and outer relations must be in harmony with God's requirements.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." MRS. ANNA PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.
