This is the first C. O. D. E. primary chapter from the new Province of Newfoundland to apply to the National Chapter for a charter, and as the aborigines of the land of "Terra Nova" were called Beothics, the choice of name is particularly fitting...

Wales College. His grandfather, Hon. W. G. Strong, was a member of the Legislative Council for eight years, and was Government leader in that chamber for three years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ethel Sinclair of Summerside. They have no family. Also surviving are a sister, Helen, Mrs. Harry Strong, of Melrose, Mass., and three brothers, Charles B. of Park City, Montana; J. Hale and Ernest H. in Summerside.

Opposition: The following tribute was received from Hon. Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, former leader of the Opposition:

"It was my privilege to know Heath Strong for many years and I had no better friend during my political career. His loyalty was unquestioned and he was a tower of strength in our party for many years. No better representative of a district has ever sat in the Island Legislature, most solicitous for the needs of his district and a wise and sane advisor when legislation was being put through. As Speaker of the House he was a master of the rules of procedure and always just and reasonable in his decisions. He gave freely of his time and talents to the public service of this Province and for many years was a wise and careful trustee of the Protestant Orphanage.

"Belonging to an honorable family he was the soul of honor and integrity and he will be sorely missed in Summerside where he enjoyed the respect and friendship of everyone. He was the type of man who makes better our Christian way of life. I extend my most sincere sympathy to Mrs. Strong and his family."

The following tribute has also been received from Mr. Horace Wright, former Liberal representative for the Bedouke district who sat with Mr. Strong's colleague for several years.

"In the passing of Mr. Heath Strong this Province has lost one of its most worthy citizens. His many friends and acquaintances will be greatly shocked to hear of his death. Personally it was a great shock to me. I have known Mr. Strong for many years and have always held him in the highest regard. Although a political opponent he remained a staunch friend and in the midst of political battles he was always a gentleman and commanded my highest respect and admiration.

"Unfortunately he was not permitted to serve his country politically for as long a period of time as others who, perhaps, were not as well qualified, but during his term of service he filled his position with great acceptance and outstanding ability.

As Speaker of the Provincial Legislature he won for himself a reputation of being a just and wise arbiter who held the confidence and respect of all the members of the House regardless of their political affiliation. This Province was fortunate in having a man of the calibre of Mr. Heath Strong and now suffers a severe loss in his departure."

There three U. N. columns pushed almost unopposed toward the Siberian and Manchurian frontiers. The Republic of Korea (R. O. K.) Capital Division entered shattered Conjin from three sides and pounded eight miles beyond along a coastal road. Resistance was negligible. The U. S. 10th Corps reported, Conjin, 96 air miles south of Siberia, was the last big Communist port short of the border.

The South Korean 3rd Division, pressing forward six miles, reached a point only 35 air miles south of the Manchurian border, north of Hapsu. It was aided by strong air support.

The U. S. 7th Division's 32nd Regiment moved ahead six miles to within 10 miles of the Manchurian border city of Hyvsanjin, already occupied by the 17th Regimental Combat Team. The 17th Regiment's frontage on the icy Yalu River to 10 miles with the capture of Posang to the east.

Farther south the U. S. 1st Marine Division pushed a Chinese Red battalion out of Yudam on the northwest side of the Changjin reservoir.

The marines received air reports that they were indicated "rumorous" Red troops were pulling back north into Manchuria. But

Three in N.B. Car Escape In Accident

Three occupants of a New Brunswick car escaped uninjured when their auto went through the railing and over the breastwork at the end of Brighton Road, Victoria Park about 6:10 Saturday evening.

The car dropped between four and five feet and landed on its left side in the mud, the tide being out at the time. City Police reported that the car was not too badly damaged but that the engine would not start as the fuel pump was broken.

The car was driven by Mr. Laurie Legere of Middle Sackville, New Brunswick. He was heading for Borden but being unfamiliar with the directions did not take the turn onto the North River Road and instead continued out Brighton Road.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the car back onto the road and it was not until four o'clock yesterday evening that the auto, a 1939 Ford, was hoisted to firm ground.

number in Ontario who were also in line for support, and the mechanics involved in making such a widespread plan operate would be almost impossible to work out.

However the Central Canadian potato crop will be cleaned up by early spring, he stated, and if no support is granted in the meantime Ottawa will likely take action.

One of the ways in which the Federal Government might work the Provincial Government into the plan was by having the Provincial Government pay about ten per cent of the costs, it was stated.

Mr. D. A. McDonald, Glenfingnan, chairman of the potato marketing board, who returned from Ottawa by plane Saturday morning stated that a plan somewhat different to that of 1948 especially with regard to administration would have to be worked out.

Present prospects indicate that several hundred carloads of potatoes will be shipped out of the Province, mostly by boat, in the near future. Mr. Reid stated that farmers should avail themselves of good opportunities to clear part of the crop at reasonable prices.

The domestic market on table stock is holding firm with the price being 32 cents a bushel.

HEAVIEST DAMAGE

Saturday night's count—as more reports of the havoc poured in from isolated areas.

More lives were being lost tonight in accidents, particularly traffic and electrocutions, that were a direct aftermath of the storm.

Freezing temperatures heaped misery on the storm sufferers. Many thousands of families huddled in unheated homes, cut off from power and light by broken electric lines.

Traffic Snarled

Virtually all modes of transportation were snarled or cut off entirely.

The whirling snow virtually smothered traffic in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Columbus and dozens of smaller cities. It cut off electricity for more than 800,000 persons. It suspended commerce and industry in some areas.

The storm had its beginnings Friday in development of a deep low pressure area—a large pocket where the air became less dense than usual—over the Carolinas. Air from regions of higher barometric pressure rushed toward and into this low.

These swirling winds swept into a giant counter-clockwise whirlpool as they merged, and the big spinning storm moved northward. Moisture-laden winds flying at hurricane speeds came in from the Atlantic Ocean.

Into the whirl were sucked warm air from the south and southwest, and vast quantities of near-zero cold air from the north and mid-west.

On the east side of the spinning storm, racing, rain-spilling, winds smashed wires, trees, signs, weakened buildings and tens of thousands of windows Saturday. The piled up tides drove miles across seaside flats to wreck small crafts and undermine houses near the shore.

Islanders In Crew As Nootka Sails For Korea

With her sailed seamen from Prince Edward Island, including Leading Seaman, Harvey McAusland, Charlottetown, and Able Seaman Walter Westhaver, Borden. They are members of gun crews.

Commander A. B. Fraser-Harris, her Halifax captain, said: "Though we're going halfway around the world, our job is still to protect the Maritimes and other Canadian shores."

The Canadian built destroyer will relieve H.M.C.S. Sioux which is operating with two other Canadian ships in United Nations naval forces in the Far East. She is slated to arrive in Pearl Harbor December 24, going by way of the Panama Canal.

Those who had leave last night made the most of it, thronging to dances or hearthside farewell parties with wives and sweethearts. Relatives and friends were allowed in the Dockyard after 10:30 A.M. to see the sailors off to war. Commodore A. M. Hope addressed a number of company at the goodbye ceremony and Stadacona band played them off.

Lebanese Girl Enjoys Canada

HODGSON, Man., Nov. 26—(CP)—A 16-year-old Lebanese girl who flew 6,400 miles to marry a Hodgson farmer she had never met, has changed her mind about Canada. Now she likes the place.

At first Hasar Ali Tasse was unhappy. On her arrival in October, she says, she thought the country cold, strange and frightening. To make it worse, her fiancé got tangled over plane times and wasn't at the airport.

Now she is living with her future parents-in-law and will be Mrs. Joseph Abas before the end of November.

"She's feeling better and smiles a lot now," says Joseph's father, Ali Abas. "I don't think she is lonely any more."

Hasar's English is poor yet, but she's using an English name. She calls herself Hilda.

The young Lebanese girl and Joseph Abas had a correspondence romance before her flight to Manitoba.

Memorial Services For Late Primate Of Canada

In St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday the regular Choral Eucharist appointed for the Sunday was celebrated at 11 A.M. Prayers were said for the repose of the soul of the late Primate of all Canada, the Most Rev'd. George Frederick Kingston, D.D. Ph.D., Lord Archbishop of Nova Scotia. The Russian kontakion for the departed was sung immediately before the sermon, which was an appreciation of his life, work and character. At 7:30 A.M. today a Requiem was celebrated for him in All Souls' Chapel.

Following is the text of the memorial sermon preached yesterday by the incumbent, Rev. Canon Malone:

"We meet today in sad circumstances. None of us who, gathered in Toronto last Sunday for the Board meetings of General Synod expected to hear of the death of the Primate on the following day.

Some time after making a broadcast address from St. Stephen's Church, Toronto, on Nov. 12, he was taken ill. Every effort was made to enable him to rally from the severe heart attack from which he suffered but all efforts were in vain.

"This morning I would speak not only of a great leader of the church who has passed to his eternal reward, but of the man as we knew him, first an affectionate husband and devoted father whose loss will be deeply felt by his family; and whom our prayers and sympathy must be offered that they may receive comfort in their sorrow. Many of us who had intimate contact with him found him to be a sincere friend, and those of us who entertained him in our homes will remember his courtesy and thoughtfulness and charm of manner.

"Older priests of the diocese will recall the new Professor of Philosophy at King's College. I remember him as a young man then and, on asking who he was, was told that it was Professor Kingston, a very fine fellow." (Some of the older members of St. Peter's may remember). Before my arrival here Dr. Kingston one Lent assisted my predecessor, Canon Simpson.

Outstanding Attainments "Then too we must think of one who had great intellectual ability. His post-graduate studies at Oxford, his position as Professor of Moral Philosophy and Dean of Arts at Trinity College, Toronto, won respect for him in scholastic circles, but neither at that time or later on when high offices in the church were his was any mark of pride to be seen in him. Always he was a man of deep and genuine humility.

"His absence last week from the meetings of the Executive Council and the committees of the three great Boards of General Synod was acutely felt, for the Primate was a chairman and administrator. It was here that on a felt that in his hands matters of importance would be treated with fairness, good judgment, tolerance, great patience and profound wisdom. Above all, in every pronouncement which he made was one outstanding characteristic, namely that he stood firm on moral questions and supported the great principles of Christian ethics with fearless integrity.

"As our own Bishop and Diocesan we held him in true affection and knew him to be wise and capable, human and understanding, ever ready to listen and guide with help and sympathy every problem that beset his priests, certain that we could count upon his support.

"As Primate, a great work confronted him, which he faced with courage and his outstanding gift of humility. Such an office is of the highest importance to the church; yet being comparatively new, the precise definition of its duties and responsibilities is still in process of formation. The territory covered in its operation is huge and uncharted.

"But," he asked, "have they ever considered how many people they have turned away from their product by their monotonous and obnoxious pounding?"

"Many people had been so offended that they had sworn not to buy the advertised products. Others had given up listening to the radio.

"He urged the advertisers not to model their commercials on those heard in United States.

"The intelligence is higher in Canada than in United States," he said. "In the U.S. he has been subjected to so many commercials he has become impervious to them.

"I'm not opposed to advertising on the radio—only when it becomes obnoxious. And it is, and is becoming more so.

"This is not the purpose for which Mr. Marconi invented the wireless. It's defeating its own purpose—that of increasing our standard of living."
