

Sport Echoes From Prince County

Holman's baseball team is coming closer. They gave the R.C.A.F. Flyers a real argument for supremacy in Wednesday's game. Their pitching problem is still pretty acute, but some of the boys are swinging the bludgeon with a little more authority.

Creamer, the big fellow from the port, belongs in the "good field, no hit" class as we write this. In batting practice he gives the horsehide a terrific ride, but so far he hasn't had a base hit in League competition.

Gord Grady, C and B outfielder, is definitely a threat to lose any far pitches that come his way. He has very little experience, and just now the odds favor his striking out rather than pulling out a home run, if and when he feels a little more at home up there, when the gentleman on the corner of Green and Spring digs his garden next fall, he'll come up with more baseballs than bees.

The game between Legion and R.C.A.F. Tuesday evening was a crowd pleaser, and more of such games will attract larger crowds. With two of the Island's slickest slabsters, Armstrong and Andrews, throwing them in, the contest was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way. The winning run was the result of a close decision at the plate, and its closeness was due to a lightning quick relay to the plate from Bill Allen who had made the put out on Alard at first.

Bill has thrown away his cane, and promises to be among the top softball performers of the 1954 season. How come these boys who have slipped a little in baseball can enter the softball picture and shine as brightly as brand new? Does it mean the softball game is just a little easier on the arteries? Now don't get sore, you softball enthusiasts, just because we asked an innocent question.

Of course, if someone wants to prove otherwise, here is the way to go about it. Let one of your established stars in softball play a baseball game with Holman's, say, if he's half as brilliant as Bill Allen is in softball, we'll agree that the point has been proved.

In one way, at least, the softball game is superior. If a shortstop fumbles a roller, he's a dead pigeon. There just isn't time to make amends. A baseball shortstop can fumble, recover, and still throw his man out at first. But we think there are more ways to fool a batter in baseball than in the case in softball. We think it possible that a slugger in softball might be duck soup for some of those cuties on the baseball hill. Well, we should have started an argument by these remarks at least.

Mass at St. Augustine's church Sunday morning was celebrated for the repose of the soul of His Excellency, The late Bishop Boyle of Charlottetown, who passed away in England. May His Soul Rest in Peace.

Miss Louise Peters of South Rustico, who took teacher's training this past year at P.W.C., has received her teachers certificate and spent two weeks teaching in the school at Oyster Bed.

Let's Talk It Over

A great writer of the past once said: "Too work is to worship, pray." This would seem to mean that working for a good cause, putting all your strength and spirit into insuring its success is a form of prayer, and, indeed, there must be a fervent prayer, unspoken though it may be, in the minds and hearts of those people who give their very best to a worthy cause.

We must not, of course, underestimate the formal kind of prayer. It is an essential part of the worship of all Christians. Neither must we lose sight, however, of the need for a follow up on passive prayer; a bending of our best efforts to the accomplishment of the ends for which we have bent our knees and lifted our voices. "Faith without works is dead." It is not possible that a formal repetition of prayer without the enlistment of all our energies to the end sought by supplication is, too, lacking somewhat in spiritual life.

Mr. Wilfred Doucette, who has been a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital for over four months, spent Sunday afternoon at his home in South Rustico. Mr. Doucette is feeling well. Mr. Doucette returned to the hospital in the evening. He expects to be home shortly to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Emile Gallant, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gallant and Mr. Adolph Doucette of Oyster Bed, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Paul Gallant in Souris.
