Obituary.

On Tuesday evening, August 2, at Glen-gow Farm, Commercial Cross, Mrs. Ann Stewart, beloved wife of Peter Stewart, Esq., and daughter of the late Thomas Clow, Esq., Murray Harbor, but a native of Dumfriesshire, Scotland, quietly passed into the cold embrace of death, after a short but severe illness.

Mrs. Stewart was born November 26, 1830; was married August 4, 1854, and, on August 4, 1887, was quietly laid to rest at Lower Montague, to await "the voice of the Archangel and the trumpet of God." Her husband and nine children—five daughters and four sons—are left in sorrow.
One boy preceded her to the spirit land.
Two sons are in the far West, to whom the sad news of mother's death will be a severe blow.

In life, she was strong in faith, a faithful helper and support to her husband, a kind and loving mother, and a true friend, whose memory will remain enshrined in the hearts of thousands.

The veil now stands between. It will be lifted by and by.
Montague, August 10.

Terrible Drought in the Northwest.

IT COVERS AN AREA OF 75,000 SQUARE MILES—GREAT FOREST FIRES RAGING.

A Chicago paper, summing up the many reports received by it of drought, prairie fires, ruined crops, etc., says: There is an area of perhaps 75,000 square miles in the Northwest where the dust lies upon the earth. The district is bounded by Madison on the north, Bloomington on the south, Lake Michigan on the east and Mississippi river on the west. It is within the limits of these boundaries that vegetation has lost normal color and the earth its moisture.
Day after day, the sun sends its burning rays upon the parched farms and fields.
Leaves are falling from the trees, the grass in the meadows has grown yellow and the streams in which the cattle used to slake their thirst are dry. It has been nearly two weeks since rain fell in this district.
With not enough moisture in the ground to feed a thistle, the condition of corn and the tender grass in the meadow may be imagined. In Southern Wisconsin thousands of acres where corn will not yield a peck to the acre. The crop has been scorched and almost totally destroyed. The leaves of the cereal are yellow and brittle and droop almost to the ground. Wells have run dry, and in some towns water famines are imminent. The drinking water at hand is often polluted and filled with poisonous germs. Typhoid fever is becoming more prevalent, and dysentery and other stomach disturbances are so common in some places as to be almost epidemic. Unless rain falls before many days, the suffering will be greatly augmented. Without pasturage to browse upon, or pools in which to stand during the hot hours of the day, the cattle have become so emaciated as to be wholly unmarketable. In some places forest fires have been felled and dragged to the pastures, and the cattle turned loose to feed upon the leaves. Hundreds of cows are being killed and shipped to market to sell for a mere pittance. At Winslow, Ill., one farmer bought 10 head of cattle last January at $30 per head. When he offered to sell the entire herd last week for $100 he could not find a purchaser. Farmers in this district have already turned their entire cattle loose to feed on the crops.

Added to all the miseries attending the great drought is the constant fear of fires.
The tall grass of the prairies is dead, the fields are ready to burst into flames, and leaves lie in heaps in the forest. A spark starts a fire, and the blistering, Sahara-like wind fans the flames into a conflagration.
In some towns the people are often called out three or four times a day to fight the flames. Destructive fires have been raging for many days at Kenosha, Racine and Walworth counties in Wisconsin. Thousands of acres have been swept by the flames, and the loss to farmers in hay, grain, fencing and buildings is very great.
Above Madison the bogs are burning fiercely, and the pungent smoke hangs over the country for miles around. The northern Illinois fires are so numerous that the farmers have ploughed the ground about their dwellings in order to check the spread of the flames. Should the drought remain unbroken much longer, incalculable ruin shall be wrought by the fires which spring up in unexpected places and in the most mysterious manner. In some parts of the district the drought is so terrible that but-ternuts and walnuts have fallen from the trees. Potatoes, when taken from their beds of ashes, look like crab apples. They are wrinkled and spongy and unfit for food.
There is also a great scarcity of milk, owing to the inability of the cows to find nutritious food.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boscbee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Buffalo Bill and his entire troop of Indians attended church in London the other day in full war paint.

Lightning's Freaks.

Lightning not only burned the house of Joseph Wilcox, of Lake Clear, Fla., but struck his barn and killed all his stock.

Lightning tore out the casing and, blinds of a house in Little Rock, Ark., and threw two bird cages upon the floor, but neither of the birds in the cages were injured.

Lightning struck the powder mill at Streator, Ill., and it blew up promptly, smashing things for half a mile around.

John Lampert and his dog were killed by lightning while tending sheep on the ranch of Dr. Welch, at Greeley, Col.

A pitchfork carried over the shoulder of Wm. Casselman of Gloversville, N. Y., during a thunder storm, drew the lightning and cost him his life.

Wm. Bowen and his sister-in-law, Miss Eunice McKenzie, were instantly killed by lightning at Palestine, Tex., while taking refuge under a large pine tree.

Heavy rain put out the fire caused by lightning that struck Thos. Powell's barn at Rock Mount, N. C., but the lightning had already killed two horses and an ox.

The entire family of Meredith Mensell of Pickets County, S. C., was killed by lightning while dining. The family consisted of Mr. Mensell, his wife, and four children.

Lightning stunned the stallion Red Jacket, belonging to James Price, of Farmington, Ga., and he has been as docile as a lamb ever since. No one was known to ride him before.

While Charley Spencer of Milwaukee was fishing, lightning struck him and tore the clothes completely from one side of his body, cutting them as neatly in two as if the job had been done with a knife.

The stroke of lightning which entered a house at Bridgewater, N. J., after smashing a window pane, ripped the matter from the floor, cut one of the castors from a berdost, flew into the kitchen and threw a servant girl to the floor and a cat into a water pail, passed into an adjoining room and tore the heel off the slipper of a young lady without harming her, burned the edges of a mat on the wall, and then disappeared.

Rich in Years.

When John Downey died recently in East Toledo, Ohio, he was 103 years of age.

At the Harlem Police Court a woman was recently brought up for drunkenness who is 102 years of age.

Mrs. Noah Baby, of Plainfield, N. J., still supports herself by work, although she is believed to be 115 years of age.

Probably the oldest man in the State of Tennessee is Henry Clegg, of Meigs County, who is 105 years of age, and still in the best of health.

One of the most interesting ladies of Cambridge, Mass., is Mrs. Charles Bradford, who is 94 years old. She is still a great lover of music and performs beautifully on the piano.

John J. Whipple, of Rockland, Me., was 100 years old on June 18, and attributes his good health and great longevity to always eating and drinking according to inclination.

Aunt Rachel Rutherford, of Summit, Mo., is 91 years of age and has 56 grandchildren and 126 great-grandchildren. She is an inveterate smoker, and a wreath of smoke always encircles her head.

Mrs. Betsy Fairfield, of Haydenville, Mass., is 102 years of age. Her mother lived to be 98, a sister 92, a brother 88, and another brother living is 87. She was a regular correspondent with friends of her earlier days until she was 95.

More Than He Could Stand.

Featherly, who was making an evening call, had been hovering between hope and despair for months, but hadn't the nerve to put the important question, when Bridget opened the door and said:

"Can I speak wid yez wan minute, Miss Clara?"

"Certainly, Bridget. What is it?"

"Wud yez plazze tell me wat it'll be for breakfast?"

"Oh, yes. Pray excuse me, Mr. Featherly. I think, Bridget, we will have fried sweet-breads. Papa is very fond of them."

"How will I cook 'em, mum?"

"First wash them very carefully, Bridget, and day with a linen cloth, then lard them with narrow strips of fat salt pork, set closely together, use for this purpose a larding-needle, lay the sweet-breads in a clean, hot frying-pan, which has been well buttered, and cook to a fine brown, turning frequently until the pork is crisp. That is all, Bridget."

"Thank yez," said Bridget.

"Exit Bridget, leaving young Featherly in a state of tremendous excitement.

"Miss Hendricks," he began; "Miss Clara—Clara—dear Clara—will you—oh, will you be my wi—"

But let me retire from this sacred scene.
—New York Sun.

At Rockaway Beach, N. Y., on the afternoon of the 9th, Prof. T. S. Baldwin leaped from a balloon at a height of a mile and by means of a parachute descended safely into the water a quarter of a mile from shore. The descent occupied one minute, 24 seconds.

A young lady living on St. Gabriel street, Montreal, took the law into her own hands on the night of the 9th. She had been accused by her lover's rival of improper conduct, but when brought face to face with her slanderer he had to eat his words. The young girl then took a whip and gave him a sound horsewhipping. Her brother, who held him, has been arrested.
