A QUESTION OF DOLLARS!

The question that is of greater importance than any of the political questions of the day is the question of DOLLARS. To those who have seen our goods—of course with them the matter is settled as to where they are going to get their Suit—we would say come along now; and to those who have not seen, we would say come and see. "CORRECTIVE" CYCLE EXERCISES.

How to Preserve Grace and Symmetry in Spite of Riding. Miss Marguerite Lindley, the physical culture lecturer, says that unless women are very careful, bicycle riding will not only injure their health, but spoil any grace of movement or symmetry of form of which they may be possessed and that corrective exercises are needed to counteract the effects of riding. However, Miss Lindley does not believe in the wheel when it is ridden properly and when riding is supplemented with the aforesaid "corrective exercises." These supplementary exercises are not designed to be taken at intervals during a bicycle excursion, but at home. They are taken standing in proper position, with chest and abdomen in line, or lying on the back or chest. When standing the arms are raised shoulder high and extended, thereby raising the chest. The trunk is twisted to the right and left, bringing into play many of the unused muscles. The most valuable of the corrective exercises for bicyclists, Miss Lindley said, is taken lying on the stomach, with the feet and hands on the hips. From this position the head and shoulders are raised by means of the muscles of the back. Another valuable exercise is taken lying on the back and extending the leg up and out from the hip. Both of these movements give exercise to the muscles which bicycling neglects. Narrow bicycle saddles, Miss Lindley declared to be the cause of half the evils resulting from wheeling. She advocated the use of a saddle adapted to the needs of the person who uses it—a made-to-order saddle. And she insisted that the width of the made-to-order saddle should be at least approximately as great as that of a properly made chair.—Milwaukee Journal.

The Helen of Love.

Were England to fall from her high estate, to lose her pre-eminence among the nations of the world, to sink to the rank of a second-rate Power, not only would our own liberty be grievously impaired, but the cause of liberty throughout the world would receive a deadly wound. In approaching the question it is essentially necessary to clear one's mind of all ideas of sentimentalism, that optimistic cant of "humanitarianism," as it is called, which is so unappreciated a sign of the times. "War and hate," have not retired from the world to make room for men and for the nations of men, and for "fruitful strife and rivalries of peace." The struggle for existence is still the law for men, and for the nations of men. Yes, and will continue to be so for generations far beyond those of which we need take account. Human nature may be transformed in an indefinitely remote future. So may leonine nature. But in this epoch of the world wherein we have to live and act, if the lion lies down at all with the lamb, it lies, as Sydney Smith said, with the lamb in its stomach. And if men forsake the use of swords and spears, it assuredly is not to convert them into plowshares and pruning hooks, but to substitute rifled cannon for those antique instruments of slaughter, now found ineffectively murderous.

COLOR OF WOMEN'S EYES.

The Mere Question of Pigment Has Settled Many a Man's Fate. "Did you ever notice that men always instinctively put confidence in a girl with blue eyes, and have their suspicions of the girl with brilliant black ones, and will you kindly tell me why?" writes Lillian Bell in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Is it that the limpid blue eyes, transparent and gentle, suggests all the soft, womanly virtues, and because he thinks he can see through it, clear down into that blue-eyed girl's soul, that she is the kind of girl he fancies she is? I think it is, but some of the greatest little frauds I know are the purry, kitteny girls with big innocent blue eyes. Blazing black eyes, and the rich warm colors which dark-skinned women have to wear, suggest energy and brilliance and an end of intellect. Men look in to such eyes and seem not to be able to see below the surface. They have not the pleasure of a long, deep gaze into immeasurable depths. And so they think her designing and clever, and perhaps (God save the mark!) an intellectual, when perhaps she has a wealth of love and devotion and heroism stored up behind the impulsive disposition and those dazzling black eyes, which would do and dare more in a minute for some man she had set her heart on than she would for a cool-blooded tranquil blonde who would do in forty years. A mere question of pigment in the eye has established him with a wife who turned out to be very different from the girl he fondly thought he was getting."

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE. Saved by a Drink. A child 6 years of age had developed a bad habit of rising in the night to drink from the water bottle, and had been forbidden in vain. On the night of a recent storm his parents being away, his aunt tucked him safely in bed. "Now, Dickey," she said, "remember I can tell if you go to the water bottle." "Oh, no, auntie," he smiled slyly. "I can tell," she said, with conviction. "But how?" said Dick, skeptically. "I can," she repeated; "and since you won't promise, my naughty boy, I shall empty the bottle." And she did so, to the young reprobate's consternation. In the middle of the night the gable of the house was blown down, and crashed like thunder through the ceiling of master Dick's room. As his aunt and the servants rushed in a terrible sight met their gaze. The bed was almost hidden by masses of bricks and masonry, two iron feet at the head being driven completely through the floor. With a shriek his aunt fell on her knees. "O, Dickey! poor Dickey!" she cried. "He's been killed." The words had hardly left her lips when there came a light, faltering step from the bath room and as they turned there stood Dickey, his teeth chattering with cold, a candle in one hand, and a full water bottle in the other. For a full moment he surveyed the bed with its iron or two of debris, and then shook his head with sorrowful admission. "Yeth, auntie," he declared; "you told you could tell if I did."—Boston Globe.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE. The First Convert of the Salvation Army. Our first convert in America is still living and serving the army in Boston. The history of his reform is a remarkable one. The conversion of the first of a mighty multitude was brought about by Commissioner Dalton, then in command of the American forces of the army, and Superintendent Thomas Byrnes of the New York police. Mr. Byrnes was an inspector of police at the time, early in 1880.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE. It is safe to say that in Salvation Army circles there are very few who do not know Jimmy, by reputation at least. Jimmy was a thief and drunkard when converted in New York in March, 1880. His name is James Kemp.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE. Three times Jimmy narrowly escaped losing his life. On one occasion he was nearly frozen to death outside Billy McGory's notorious dive. On another occasion he was so brutally beaten in a street fight that he had to be carried to a hospital. He was nearly killed by a street diver who he was supposed to be dead. The diver was called by the police, and the bruised and battered body, apparently dead, was carried to the morgue. When it, or rather the name of the diver, was discovered, it made the discovery that Jimmy still lived, and so he was taken to the hospital, where he remained four months. His last narrow escape from death was when he drank a quantity of spirits of wine which he found in a cellar. Jimmy drank so much he went ranting mad and tried to hang himself. He was sent to prison for three months for attempting suicide.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE. The first Saturday afternoon in March, 1880, Jimmy started out to have some amusement, and hearing that the Salvation Army, which had just arrived from England, was going "to show" at Harry Hill's notorious resort he concluded to go there. He was in a company of soldiers were. When he arrived at Hill's, he found that there was an admission fee, and he, with a drunkard's economy, determined to spend the price of admission in a different manner.
