ELLEN'S DIARY

Prayers, Bedtime Stories Are A Mother's Legacy

We think, here in the quiet of this Eve-before-Sunday, of the week preparing our young to walk away on their own. I think, along the fields of the farms. By the roadside, where mothers, having read a bedtime story and heard prayers, tucked their children under pillows and tucked the covers about young shoulders, have come down stairs to the strange silence of their kitchen. "God be kind to them... always they will say, as they lay out for them the Sunday-wear. By villages, set in sheltering valleys, the treasures of far staked lands, that are a part of our life and living, for which we now return thanks. Over lands, and seas, away and away, the week goes, nevermore to return.

Has it been a week? Not wearisome for the farmers, who yearn to get on with the fieldwork. Now we remember those to whom came partings and bereavements, leaving an aftermath of lonely days. "That's offered in a penny's face. For sunny clouds that sail the sky. And call of wild towls' parting. For glory of the western sun, which tells the autumn day. Grant, Lord, despite a world in pain, these Thy little things, remain. Monday -- Diary Good-night.... WONT' FIELD CANDIDATE PRINCE ALBERT, Sask (CP) - A spokesman for the Social Credit party said Thursday his party will not contest the federal election in Prince Albert riding. Spokesman Ken Keeler said the party will conserve its monetary and other resources for the next federal election.
