Prince County Director Addresses Credit Granters

SUMMERSIDE — Lorne Murphy, executive director of the Prince County Welfare Association, was guest speaker at last night's monthly meeting of the Summerside Credit Granters Association held at a local restaurant.

Mr. Murphy spoke for his topic "The plight of the financially involved person."

Mr. Murphy opened by saying he was deeply gratified to learn that the association is concerned enough to be considering the possibility of setting up a debt counselling clinic to assist human beings with financial problems and advice.

"Such an adventure, although started from a strictly humanitarian point of view, generally accomplishes some financial success and certainly alleviates distress and contributes to the well being of many people," he said.

"The economic life of this community has been and is based on the two main industries of farming and fishing. These industries in this community are not themselves large enough to provide a booming economy," he said.

"Other industrial development has not taken place and we say this is caused because of lack of cheap hydro power, distance from markets, high transportation costs, etc.," the speaker stated.

"Conversely we have a high cost of living so that people with a very low income are not only unable to acquire a spending power but in many cases, barely able to eek out existence," Mr. Murphy added.

The speaker went on to say that so many people with the most potential have left the Island to seek greater opportunities elsewhere in Canada or the United States. "Among so many of those who remain, initiative has been either lost or has not been developed," he stated. "Unemployment insurance benefits have undoubtedly been an influencing factor. With low wage standards to begin with, scarcely above the unemployment insurance rate, the habit of laziness is encouraged. Incentive to initiative is dulled, and this is partly due to the manner of administering the act," Mr. Murphy said.

The speaker went on to say that "a man with a family obtains approximately $25 every week depending on his stamp value. In addition to this he is allowed to earn approximately $15 more per week; but after that for every dollar he works for and earns, his insurance benefits are cut by the same amount." The speaker stated that instead of creating incentive, it appears that initiative of the part of the employee.

Mr. Murphy added that he was not criticizing the act but clarifying his understanding of it.

SOCIAL DECLINE
"Lack of initiative, lack of academic or skilled personnel, lack of leadership, lack of motivation, results in lower income, lesser spending power, substandard living conditions—in short—social decline" he remarked.

"The well being of people in our community has a direct bearing on each one of us and will continue to be more important to our children. It therefore, behooves the leaders in our community and ourselves to plan, seek out, and find a way to revitalize our impoverished economy," Mr. Murphy said.

Mr. Murphy mentioned that at the present time, the Prince County Welfare Agency is involved in a research program to study the cost of social dependence in our community. He said that in September they would be trying to look at ways and means of combating this and the support of the community would be needed in bringing this to a successful conclusion.

Mr. Murphy concluded by telling the meeting that their concern for the financially involved person and desire to establish a debt counselling clinic with financial counselling service is an answer to a real need, a humanitarian and progressive step to alleviating some of the financial worries which beset our community."

It was decided at the business session of the meeting that the chairman would appoint a committee to set up terms of reference for setting up a debt counselling committee in this area.

A discussion took place on a disclosure bill now before the Nova Scotia Legislative Assembly and which the speaker said has been proposed for Prince Edward Island. The meeting went on record as being strongly opposed to such legislation.

The meeting was chaired by the president Francis MacQuarrie.

No Trace Found Of Missing Men

QUEBEC (CP)—Seven planes and three helicopters were unable Monday to locate a light plane missing with two men aboard since its departure March 25 from Riviere du Loup, Que.

The plane, a Cessna 182 was piloted by Bob Shaw of Ottawa, son of Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of Expo 67.

The aircraft was bound for Ancienne Lorette airport near Quebec City. The search continued.

Aboard the plane with the younger Shaw was Les Hanna, also of Ottawa. Both men are employees of Servair of Ottawa, owner of the plane.

An ice-breaker, the Simon Fraser, was involved in the search during the weekend. It now is docked at Quebec City awaiting any call from the searchers. They are scouring the 120-mile stretch of land and water between the provincial capital and Riviere du Loup, which is located on the St. Lawrence River to the northeast.

During the weekend, traces of oil discovered by the ice-breaker near Montmagny, Que., revealed nothing, and some metal debris in ice near a pier in Riviere Ouelle turned out to be an old ship.

nipeg North Centre) said he would support a trial period and he was sure others would if there was any doubt about abolition.

FIRST TO SPEAK
Mr. Diefenbaker led the debate into its fourth day with a speech that lasted more than 80 minutes, roughly the time that would have been allotted four speakers.

The resolution for abolition is scheduled to come to a vote tonight.

The resolution would amend the Criminal Code to abolish the death penalty no matter what the crime and substitute mandatory life imprisonment. It also stipulates there would be no parole for mandatory life imprisonment except after review by the cabinet.

The Creditiste amendment used the current Criminal Code distinction of non-capital murder, unpremeditated, and capital murder premeditated. Only capital murder brings the death penalty.

It would maintain the death penalty for capital murder committed while a person was under a sentence of life imprisonment and would also require cabinet approval of parole for any prisoner who had a death sentence commuted.

The resolution, which would have to be followed by a regular bill following the usual course through Commons and Senate before becoming law, was sponsored by four private MPs—James Byrne (L. Kootenay East), Robert Stanbury (L. York-Scarborough), Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton—Strathcona) and Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth).

IS FACE DEATH
The Liberal government has commuted all death sentences since it came to power three years ago. There are 15 men facing death sentences now in Canadian prisons.

The Conservative leader blasted the government for not fulfilling what he called the constitutional responsibility of making its position known.

The two cabinet ministers that had spoken so far in the debate had given opposed views. Immigration Minister Marchand spoke for abolition and State Secretary Judy LaMarsh against.

Fur flew at Prime Minister Pearson jumped to his feet and began an angry retort about Mr. Diefenbaker's record. The prime minister was cut off by the speaker.

Mr. Pearson said Sunday he didn't intend to enter the debate. He sat in the Commons throughout Mr. Diefenbaker's speech.

FISH MAY BE FARMED
MONTREAL (CP)—A demonstration of how to "herd" fish will be given at the 1967 Montreal World's Fair in the section Man and His Oceans. This is part of a hypothetical theory of fish-farming.

The top commission man assured the Island pair any Island cattle would get the best treatment. The animals shipped in are fed, watered and rested after they arrive, before they are sent into the auction ring. If they are not in good bloom, they are held an extra day so as to command the best possible price, the yard spokesman explained.

SPUR GIVEN
The move was sparked by the Beef Producers Association with Leo McIssac, Mermaid and Charlottetown as president. The spur by George Morris, Merlin, Ontario recently may have had something to do with it. Mr. Morris talked to the beef producers and said bluntly "You fellows should be getting the best price in the world for your own fault."

"We have had several loads from the Island," a yard spokesman told the Island pair and they "doubted that." But a look through the records showed that a Moncton man had shipped two cars from Kensington. And 12 of the heifers were choice—Red brand. Others were blues and standards, and there were a few feeders.

The pair saw a bunch of big Holsteins, up to 1,200 pounds. They would be commercials, with a few standards. They sold at $24.50 to $25.10. You get a Holstein steer here at 1,200 pounds and first thing they say is he's too heavy," the men observed, "others will add there's no place for Holstein meat," one man commented.

"Where is your biggest market we asked the government man who puts out the reports?" The reply was "The Maritimes," and the reference here was to the dairy crossbreds.

Bacon Slices To Be Shown

OTTAWA (CP)—Meat packers will have to show the full width of a slice of bacon through the windows of their packages by May 1, the federal government has ordered.

Health Minister MacEachen told the Commons in a written return Monday that May 1 is the new deadline, extended from Jan. 1, for packers to change the design of packages for consumers. The window area must be at least two-thirds of the length of the package and the bacon must be arranged to show how wide the strips of bacon are.

Mr. MacEachen was replying to Grace MacInnis, (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) who was inquiring about government action on a seven-year campaign by the Consumers' Association of Canada, against deceptive bacon packaging.

Information as to the winners of the inter-class competition at SDU was not available last evening, but will be announced immediately.
