

The Angel's Call.

BY ROSA E. ANGEL.

God's angel passed down our quiet street, And paused last night above my neighbors home, And whispered "Come!" Then on swift pinions fleet They, too, did hasten up through night's blue dome.

Out in the dim, dark silence, leaving all, Did she go forth; nor could our pleading keep The loved end with us whilst the angel's call Sounded its summons through the stillness deep.

My neighbor's home is desolate to-night, And broken sobs and tears the story tell, Where yesterday June's lavish sunbeams bright, Made glad each heart, and lo, the darkness fell.

To-night she lies so still; nay, do not weep! The busy, helpful hand in peaceful rest Are folded close, and God's sweet blessing—sleep—Is here this night. Dear heart, God knoweth best.

Tolling the Great Bell of St. Paul's.

The most wonderful transformation scene I ever saw in the matter of hats was on Fleet Street, London, after President Garfield's death. It became known that the Queen had ordered the great bell of St. Paul's to be tolled, an honor never before accorded except to the memory of an English sovereign. Fleet street and Ludgate Hill were one mass of hats, tall, black, glistening hats. All traffic was suspended. The old phrase, "a sea of hats," was most apt to this scene, and this literally the Black Sea. Probably no one in the thousands there had ever heard the mournful sound of that great bell.

The immense crowd waited patiently for hours. Then came the first low, dull, sonorous stroke of the long-silent bell. Instantly every hat was removed and the change from a sea of hats to a sea of heads was most magical. The English crowd stood, while that bell tolled, uncovered heads, a token of respect for the uncrowned monarch who lay dead beyond the ocean.

Sunshiny Husbands.

A cheerful atmosphere is important to happy home life. It is very hard for children to be good when they are exposed to an incessant hail storm of fault-finding from their parents. It is very difficult for a wife to maintain a calm and charming sweet demeanor when her husband is critical or sullen, and takes all her tender efforts with indifferent appreciation. In home there should be no jar, no striving for place, no insisting on prerogatives, or division of interest. The husband and the wife are each the complement of the other. And it is just as much his duty to be cheerful as it is hers to be patient; his right to bring joy into the door, as it is hers to sweep and garnish the pleasant interior. A family where the daily walk of the father makes life a festival; is filled with heavenly benediction.

He Came Prepared.

The San Franciscoan tells of a witness in a recent horse stealing case at Bodie, Cal., who stepped upon the stand carrying a double barrel shotgun in his hand. When asked by the Judge what he was going to do with it, the grim granger replied:—"Wall I'll tell you, Squire, I hear some talk around here this morning that the lyers kalkulated ter ax me some questions about a little hoss misanderstandin' I had myself when I was a young man back in their States, and about my havin' an extray wife down in Texas somewhar. Now, I'm willin' to tell all I know about this here perticular case, but I ain't going ter take any bogosh nonsense from anybody. I'm a law abidin' man, Judge, but I rile powerful easy. Now, then, go ahead with ther procession."

Victor Hugo's Will.

Victor Hugo's literary will, dated 1875, appoints Maurice, Voczerie and Letour literary executors. He desires that the manuscripts be published in series: First, the completed works; second, unfinished works; and third, sketches and fragments. He leaves $20,000 to defray expenses, and allows his executors a commission of $525 and 5 per cent, of net profits on the different categories. The executors, however, announce in the Rappel that while they joyfully accept the task they will not accept the profits, which will be devoted to various monuments.

Saving the Precious Time.

It is related of a distinguished lawyer who observed that his wife always delayed ten or twelve minutes before she came down to dinner, being loth to lose so much precious time daily, he commenced the composition of a work which he prosecuted only while he was thus kept waiting. The result was at the end of fifteen years, a book in three volumes quarto, which has met with a large sale, and is much needed.
