System Of Selecting Can. Teams Criticized

By ROD CURRIE

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Are Trail Smoke Eaters the last of their breed of player to represent Canada in world hockey?

They may be, and if so the system of team selection that kept Canada supreme for more than a quarter century is at an end.

Most Canadian and other hockey pundits, summing up after the world hockey championships won by the Soviet Union, agree that the system simply isn't good enough any more. The criticism was of the system—not of the Smokies' efforts.

While Canada has been selecting a "ready-made" team, the other big hockey powers select their best individual players from across the country and then give them lots of time, free from financial worries, to train for the championships.

Talk hockey to a Swede and invariably his first question is: "Why doesn't Canada send her best players?"

They find it almost impossible to believe that Canada sent a team that had lost six of seven games against other Canadian teams before coming to Europe.

GAVE POOREST DISPLAY

Canada placed fourth this year—her worst showing ever—behind Sweden and third-place Czechoslovakia.

From 1920 to the late 1940s Canada won every world and Olympic hockey title except two, in 1933 when the United States won and in 1936 when the British team—made up mainly of Canadians—won the Olympic title.

of Canadians—won the Olympic pic title since 1952 and has won only four of the nine world championships since then.

In Russia and Czechoslovakia player selection is a state problem and most of them come from the armed services.

And in hockey-mad Sweden, where every player on the national team is treated as a sort of god, they are offered high-pay, no-work jobs by big corporations interested simply in the prestige of having a hockey player's name on company stationery.

Even in lower levels of hockey and business, the sales appeal of a hockey player's name is recognized. Help wanted ads in Stockholm's daily newspapers often start: "Popular hockey player required as salesman representing. . . ."

TRY NEW APPROACH

A poor man's version of the European selection system will be tried with Canada's Olympic team next year.

Rev. David Bauer, the Olympic coach who was here for several days looking over the opposition, said the team will be made up mainly of college boys, some post-graduate students and some senior amateurs.

Would a fresh-faced, younger team, with a Roman Catholic priest on the bench, present a new image of Canadian hockey players in Europe where there has been much criticism of their rough-and-ready manner on and off the ice?

Possibly, said Bauer with a smile, but "I am more concerned with the future development of hockey in Canada."

The venture coincides with a new fitness campaign and Bauer, brother of former Boston Bruins star Bobby Bauer, said that if his team has any success it should provide the impetus for a whole new attitude to hockey in Canada.

The team will start training Aug 12 and take part in a training clinic in Edmonton sponsored by the fitness council as part of the council's grant to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

VOTERS' LIST MAKES BEST-SELLER CLASS

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The current best - seller in Canada comes free. If you lose your copy, there's another hanging on a handy telephone pole. It's mainly non - fiction, but there's a smattering of fiction in it.

This readable social document is the voters' list and it's worth careful perusal for more than finding out if you're on the list and where you vote April 8.

Where else can you obtain such authentic information about your neighbors? You can find out the occupation of so-and-so down the street or whether the in-laws are still living with what's-his-name in the next block.

The list can also tell you how some of your neighbors are trying to keep up with the Joneses. A clerk may list his occupation as "manager" or some such—a ploy known to election officials as the "inflationary occupation."

PROMOTE SELVES

When the enumerator calls to get your name for the voters' list, there's no law which says you have to define exactly your occupation. Thus self-promotion isn't unusual.

A clever voter can also promote his company by getting it named on the voters' list.

Most enumeration troubles arise when the enumerator finds nobody at home and has to try to obtain the name and occupation from somebody else.

In apartment buildings, for instance, the enumerator may get names and occupations from the janitor. It has happened that a janitor has given the name of a male occupant of an apartment — and the name of the occupant's mistress as well.

Election officials say the most serious complaints stem from marital difficulties.

But they also say they are pleasantly surprised at how well the latest enumeration was done. Some 70,000 enumerators collected 10,000,000 names for the voters' lists in six days.

PEARSON

versity students generally were keen questioners. It was no different on this occasion as some penetrating questions came from the floor as the students sought authoritative answers to questions bothering them.

DETERRENT WEAPONS

Mr. Pearson said the weapons Canada should have are not 'attacking' but 'deterrent.' He stated the weapons sent to Canadian squadrons in France were of no use unless they had the nuclear warheads designed for them.

Replying to a question regarding signed agreements and what they meant to Canada so far as NATO and NORAD are concerned he said of the latter it was an agreement to share 'continental defence' by integrating the air forces of this country and the United States. Under it Canada had agreed to supply two bases for Bomarc missiles. And of NATO agreements he stated "we accepted the missiles; the ammunition is just as much a part of the agreement."

UNEMPLOYMENT

Asked "do you have a plan to solve unemployment?" he replied "any party must have a plan to deal with this major domestic problem." He stated it was not an easy problem to solve "and it will not be done overnight."

Mr. Pearson said the Liberal Party would stimulate the economy to increase production; would set up agencies such as a municipal development board; another to supply the Atlantic Development Board with funds with which to operate; offer taxation incentives to business; and "we have to increase our foreign trade." He said his proposals would cost money, but "it is money we can not afford not to spend as it is investment expenditure."

CAUSEWAY STAND

He refused to make any new statement regarding the proposed causeway across the Northumberland Strait. He said he was asked about this every time he came down this way and "I am not saying anything more but will stand on what I have said in the past. We appreciate the importance of communications to Prince Edward Island and in office the Liberals will show it."

Mr. Pearson was also asked if he favored capital grants to universities for university development. He said he strongly favored them as it was planned to offer 10,000 federal scholarships so those desiring of going to college and unable to finance it would not be deprived of the opportunity. "But if we are going to have these students going to college we have to have colleges to accommodate them."

PROVINCIAL MATTER

However, he reminded his listeners that education was purely a provincial matter and that 'some provinces' are sensitive about it.

The distinguished visitor, first leader of a political party to visit the College on the Hill since the days of John Bracken, was greeted on arrival by Monsignor J. A. Sullivan, Rector of the university. A large group of staff members was also on hand to hear his address.

Chairman for the meeting was Gerald FitzGerald, president of the Canadian University Liberal Federation (CUIP) Club, who termed Mr. Pearson "one of the ablest men in Canada today, with every quality to become a great Prime Minister." He added the only criticism he heard of the Liberal leader was that "he is a good statesman, but a poor politician."

Mr. Pearson replied there should not be anything inconsistent between statesmanship and being a politician. "If you are not a politician first you are unlikely to have an opportunity of becoming a statesman."

On the platform with Mr. Pearson, but taking no part in the proceedings, were A. W. Matheson, provincial leader of the Liberal Party; Allison Gillis and Ira Lewis, Queens County Liberal candidates; John Mullaly, Kings County Liberal candidate; Senator John Connolly, travelling in the Pearson party; and Ken Jenkins, president of the Young Liberals Association.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).
