Explosion Of People Is Held More Dangerous Than Bomb

It is not so much an explosion of the atomic bomb we should fear but rather an explosion of population. Rev. Kenneth Willis, secretary of the Department of Christian Education, Canadian Council of Churches told an ecumenical youth rally held yesterday afternoon at Zion Church. Speaking of the Orient in general and Japan in particular, Mr. Willis said Communist propaganda is telling the Japanese that the Christians came to their country with a Bible in one hand and the atomic bomb in the other. At the same time the Buddhists claim their religion is one for all people while Christianity is reserved for the White Race. Mr. Willis as a delegate to the world Sunday School convention held in Japan last year said it was a great revelation to the Japanese to see 60 countries representing all races in attendance.

JOY AND SORROW

Speaking briefly of Japan's two major religions, Shintoism and Buddhism, he said the first gave the people opportunities to rejoice, while the latter was a source to turn to in times of sorrow. He said the city where the convention was held had a suicide rate of one person a day. Christian churches, he said had experienced favorable results from placing signboards at favourite suicide points saying, "See us before you do this." He described overcrowding as a great social problem in Japan and felt that sooner or later this overcrowding and tremendous effort to ease out an existence was bound to result in a world wide epidemic. He challenged the young people to a dedication of their lives in the missionary and social service field of endeavour. "Who knows but you were born for this very purpose," he added. The service was led by young people representing the various Protestant denominations throughout the City and Parishes. Taking part were Jim MacLeod, St. James' Presbyterian; Marian Perry, Central Christian; Mary Farquharson, Zion Presbyterian; Norma Duvor, YMCA; Tom Mills, Park Royal United; Kenneth Jenkins, St. Pauls Anglican; Beverly Simpson, Trinity United Church; Eleanor Hicks, Salvation Army; Henry Sharam, First Baptist.

Farming Is Theme Of Address To New Glasgow Jr. Farmers

NEW GLASGOW—Dr. George C. Fisher, supervisor of the veterinary division of the department of agriculture, gave an interesting and informative talk on many aspects of farming, when he spoke to 18 members of the New Glasgow and district Junior Farmers in the Recreation Centre, New Glasgow. Dr. Fisher was introduced to the group by the educational chairman Robert Rackham. Dr. Fisher has spoken to the group on several previous occasions. Dr. Fisher described the role which the various breeds of horses play in the life of this country. There is no doubt the horse has lost the prestige as a farm worker; however, horses are being bred all over this continent for pleasure. They are being developed for riding, racing, jumping and for parading and showing. They are certainly taking their place in the culture of this vast country and should not be overlooked on the farm way of life. Dr. Fisher stressed the proper use of land as important in providing a successful operation. Firstly the farmer should take an inventory of his soil. This would include careful choice of soil samples, testing of same by a reliable source and proper application of required fertilizers and manure to provide a good soil balance. The value of lime can not be over emphasized. SOIL FERTILITY The value from soil fertility can only be utilized when proper cultivation is practiced. An ill practice has been carried out for many years in P.E.I. this is shallow cultivation. A hard pan has been formed under the top layer of soil which prevents the proper absorption of moisture and easy penetration of plant roots. Plants in this soil are very susceptible to wilting on a dry, hot summer. With large machinery it is possible to cultivate deeper and provide a deep, loose soil for better plant growth. Soil should not be turned up but

COMING EVENTS

Receive Wednesday, July 15th for Lower Montague Regatta. Accepting poultry Monday and Tuesday, Wadell Bros. Crapaud. A farmer could do well to examine the various operations on his farm for malpractices which he has formed a habit in doing. When soil testing, proper application of fertilizer, good soil cultivation, good seed, proper sowing, good harvesting, good storage and good feeding are carried out then the farmer has a greater chance to succeed. He felt a good deal of the farmer's veterinary problems stem from the improper care in one of these operations. Conditions such as acid anemia and sterility result from the lack of trace elements which should come indirectly from the soil. FARMING A GAMBLE Farming is a gamble at best but the farmer can protect himself against many hazards by becoming aware of the many preventions available to ward off misfortune. Robert Rackham thanked Dr. Fisher for his very constructive talk. A short business meeting was conducted by the president Leith Dickieson. Routine business was discussed. Two new members Harold and Justin Gallant were introduced to the group by Mark Gallant. A vote of thanks was extended to those who scrubbed the recreation centre. A report of the P.E.I. Junior Farmers Federation was given. Four 30-inch stools, a 25 lb. cream can, a steamer and saucepan will be obtained for the contest. Next meeting will be held on April 15 in the Recreation Centre, Dave Peacock of the department of agriculture will be guest speaker.
