mittie idea but only if there was firm agreement to limit the debate resulting from it. Without such agreement, "we could end up exactly where we are now."
 This is the same view reported to have been taken by the government. However, Mr. Douglas indicated it had been rejected by the Conservatives.
 The NDP leader said Mr. Pearson had made a concession by offering the committee a vote on "to debate" members' to make matching concessions.
 Mr. Douglas said he had stated his party's position clearly for the record and other party groups should do the same.
 If there was to be a distinct, five Canadian flag, it should be launched with the unanimous support of Parliament. It should not be presented on a divided basis.

Thrilling Gold Cup & Saucer Day Is Again Old Home Week Highlight

Thousands upon uncountable thousands of people turned out yesterday for that once-a-year Charlottetown spectacular, the Gold Cup and Saucer parade, highlight of Old Home Week.
 Few would dispute that the parade draws more people than any other attraction throughout the collecting week. Men, women, boys, girls, horses, policemen, lost children, fratricide officials, all combine to make the second biggest show of the day, the audience.
 And the crowds were not disappointed with the full-spectrum show they were presented, for this year the parade was undeniably better bigger and better than ever before.
 Colorful, fanciful floats, crazy clowns, booming bands, playful ponies, marching military, all threaded their way from Queen Charlotte High school down to North River Road and in front of the hospitals so even the patients could participate.
 Then came the triumphal procession through town where bands played their razing best, Judge Christopher Gieschill and floats almost primped in midflight for a trio of visiting marksmen from Maine.
PRIZE WINNERS
 For the parade participants were not there just for the show. They (at least, the bands and floats) were after prize money too.
 Visiting New Englanders were invited by parade officials to pick what they considered the best floats in the procession. In the institutional class the mayor of Ellsworth, Maine, the town's president of the Chamber of Commerce, and the member of the guest Blueberry Queen decided that the P.E.I. Fisheries Federation float and the North River Junior Farmers' float deserved honoring.
 In the commercial class the trio fancied floats from T. Eaton's and from Rogers Hardware. And, after a heads-together consultation they decided that the Charlottetown Water and Sewer Department's float merited top spot in the "most original" class.

Mad Scrambles Are Featured For Kids At Ex.
 Two agile youngsters demonstrated a unique method of purchasing livestock yesterday afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds.
 A mad scramble for a black Aberdeen Angus calf and a grass-coated pig took place in the Coliseum before a crowd of 1,000, when the beasts were turned loose with a mob of boys and girls.
 Eight boys in the 14-and-under age group pursued the calf through the sawdust until the reluctant animal finally surrendered to 14-year-old Michael, Larver of South Milton.
 Following a tackle by some of the 13 boys and girls under 11 years who set their sights on the greasy porker, the second animal was popped into a gunny sack by Garth Fraser, 12, of Cross Roads, and dragged across the finish line by its tail.
 The boys will be allowed to keep the animals as pets. Organizers of the chases was Fred Kitson of North River.

"I don't know of any mayor who could be prouder of his community than I am today," Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet told a large gathering at a noon reception tendered to the Gold Cup and Saucer Girls and visiting parade participants at the Charlottetown yesterday.
 His Worship termed the Gold Cup and Saucer Parade and the games race of the same name "a major contribution and a shot in the arm of Old Home Week." In doing so he paid high tribute to W.J. Hancock, publisher of The Guardian and the Evening Patriot, the originator of the big event.
 "I want to offer my congratulations and my thanks," he said to Mr. Hancock, "for what you have done for Old Home Week and for this city." He termed the newspaperman "the heart and soul of the event and the hardest working member of the committee."
 Mayor Gaudet said the reception and luncheon being jointly by the city and the Exhibition Association was to honor the Gold Cup and Saucer Girls "who today are the first ambassadors of goodwill of Prince Edward Island. I offer my thanks to Miss Joan Soringer, Ellsworth, Maine, 'the Blueberry Queen', who came here to take part in the parade. In noting her presence the mayor said he wished to thank the people of Ellsworth for retaining the visit elite officials and the Lovat Scots Band had made to that town last year.
 Among those present at the function were B. Earle MacDonald, former mayor of the city and "bermaman" chairman of the Gold Cup and Saucer committee, to whom Mayor Gaudet referred.
