IT ISN'T EASY
 There's no use fooling about this job. It offers fine opportunities for rapid advancement in interested in sports and successful career, but they have to be earned. They won't come automatically.

They are opportunities that can be realized only if you are young, enthusiastic, keen and have an aptitude for writing about them.

It will be a waste of time to inquire about this job unless you are confident you have what it takes to win as a junior sports reporter and make your way into a sports editor's office as a copywriter. You have a positive flair for work, plus a minimum of Grade X standings.

But if you feel sure enough to seek the kind of career that can be achieved through this job, arrange an interview by telephoning Wallace Ward, managing editor of the Charlottetown Evening Patriot, Phone 4-8506.
