

THE PAGEANT OF THE SEASONS

Birchwood High School was the setting for a very fine pageant presented Tuesday evening. The picture showing those taking part includes the chorus, the little girls in white who were the snowflakes and the girls of the Home Economics course. The latter modelled their beautifully designed and woven skirts. Not the least admired on the program was Frosty, the Snowman. Frosty seems to have taken on a definite personality, which was popular in January and equally as popular in June when he participated as a member of "The Pageant of the Seasons." Sister St. Clair is the instructor in the Home Economics Department. The pageant was a demonstration of the work of her class through the year.

ELLEN'S DIARY

New Lawn - Mower & Chick All Arrive On Same Day

The threads of the farm-work, rested of late were picked up today, though a quiet not unlike that which obtained in our young Sabbaths, still rested about. But the farming continued. The men gave dosages of mineral to their piglets; they helped a late lambkin new-come in the orchard to its first nursing. With a query as to "How many days were in April, Ellen? Of course, 30" they fixed dates to come in the piggery.

"The directions are in this envelope" the words expressed by the dealer from whom it was purchased, proved to be not quite as simple and easy as one would infer. The wives' qualifications as ex-school - ma'ams allowed them to read them in fairly good voices aloud. In turn... and together, with little result from the efforts of the farmer who suited action progressively to the reading word by word.

"I guess" Mack offered with a long sigh of disappointment, "she's not going to catch!" "We never had that much trouble starting the old one" James commented.

"It says here..." we read with every concentration. "In the first place" James observed (and with every right) "why didn't you see that it worked before you brought it home? This here buying 'a pig in a poke'..."

The event forgathered us to the yard; Mack, much interested, and his parents, and James spectating the role of disinterested spectator came to sit on a doorstep close by. At the outset, differences of opinion posed some

The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake tall tapers and silver candle sticks. Mrs. Leonard McLean, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Immediately following the reception the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip through Nova Scotia. The bride's travelling costume was a brown flecked suit with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. McInnis will reside in Summerside, P.E.I., where Mr. McInnis is stationed with the R.C.A.F.

MARY HAWORTH

Selfish Male Is Not Happy

Dear Mary Haworth: My husband, I'll call him Dave, and I have been very happily married for two years and have a new baby. We are both 20. You may call me a possessive wife because I would just as soon spend every minute with my husband. He operates a service station with his father and works from 6 a.m. to anywhere from 6 to 10 p.m. six days a week, and usually is so tired when he comes home that he goes to bed quite early.

ADVERTISE SEE DANGER

John is trying to get Dave to go slack at the wheel, in the role of family man and to coast back down hill, into the ditch—as John has done—on the road that points to maturity. My advice to Dave is to see the danger in paying attention to such dishonest pressure—and stay on the road that leads to real manhood.

I spend very little time with him (in my estimation); yet with Spring here, he wants to go fishing on Sundays—without me. He goes to National Guard meetings Tuesday nights. There is a new employee at the filling station who is causing trouble for us. John, I'll call him, has a wife and three small children, but he is the kind of man who wants everyone to know he is head of his family. What he wants to do, he does; and his wife has nothing to say about it.

As you so well say, John's arrogant individualist philosophy is foreign to marriage. The substance of marriage is sacrifice—which is: giving of one's self and resources to the partner. When man and wife are generous with one another, in this pattern of sharing, their lives are enriched far beyond anything that either might attain through selfish, self-serving pursuit of "single" pleasure.

USE TO CONSULT HER

Dave always has consulted me before doing anything. Generally, I let him; but I like him to be with me at least every other Sun-ing, fine. But he ought to take that holiday with you as his company—or in the party. Good doctors often recommend this Rx for happiness to young - marrieds who've begun to feel old before their time (or tired of each other) due to the demands of baby - care. Could you arrange with Dave's parents or yours, to take charge of the baby and give you time off together?

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Your rubber scraper and other rubber kitchen ware need regular care. Never soak them in water as this will soften rubber. Wash them as soon after using as possible, they dry immediately and thoroughly.
