ELLEN'S DIARY

School Claims Them

For the farmwives at Alderlea, today was a bit desolate after the blitheness of the children's holidays. Not yet have we become accustomed to the out-going at morning which takes them to school where for another term they have settled down to books and learning again. Now too Jamie and Gage are off to their classes, this year both students in the Principal's room, where a new teacher presides.

Mack returns home a little earlier than Granddaughter. Today the afternoon sun was bright on his head when he made his way down the hill of road in a leisurely manner. August gives so many items for a child to admire along his steps—of pebble and flower and fruit, of bird and tree. For him, right out of a picture book of his, come to life before his eyes, artists had set up easels in the neighborhood and were transferring some witching piece of Nature's handicraft in colors to canvases there.

So this morning took the children away; carried off the farmers from us too to Rob's, and the last of the hay-making there. This time to lend help at a spot of bailing of that which had come in a purchase on a farm neighboring there to make a fund upon which to draw in the event that the season of stabling should continue over-long.

It was a noontide to take down from a cupboard the prettiest china cup to make our tea taste better when the table was lone. "So they're finishing the hay to-day," the sparrow perched on a swing of "ivy" beyond the screen-door offered companionably.

"In a way," we replied. "The bales will need some weathering before they can be saved."

"They've been quite a spell at it this summer," he commented. "It was the weather delayed them—remember how catchy it's been?"

True. The hay has been tedious these last years. Guess more Island farmers will have to take to harvesting grass instead. "You know" he nodded, "fill silos!"

"James wouldn't like that," he chuckled. "he sets great store by what he calls 'good green hay' for the stock."

"It's pretty good stuff, I guess," he smiled. "If a farmer has enough of it! Nice crop this year, wasn't it? And don't the grain fields look well! That's the next thing—the harvest. Do you like the harvest-time Ellen?"

"Love it! Love the mellow sun and the gold of the fields. And the air that's like wine. You sniff it—and what's there? The ripeness of the season—grain and apples and aster and goldenrod and..."

"Herbs" he nodded. "And ferns and bracken. And we laughed 'pickles in the making and jams and jellies.'"

"Yes—I like it too. The stooks and the threshing... plenty

KINGSBORO W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Kingsboro Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. John Robertson, August 7th; there was an attendance of eight members.

The meeting opened by repeating Croed in union followed by roll call answered by a joke. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Reports of committees were then given, new committees, sick, Mrs. Clinton Stewart, Mrs. Fred Robertson, and Mrs. Robert Robertson (re-appointed, Lunch, Mrs. Erwin Robertson, Mrs. Wendell Robertson and Mrs. Fred Robertson Program, Mrs. Foster Young and Mrs. Gordon Robertson, Roll call, Pickle receipt. Meeting not invited. Correspondence were read and discussed. Eight dollars was voted for cancer fund and fifty cents to be sent to Mrs. Burge for gift for President and Secretary was asked to make arrangement for pantry sale to be held in the near future. Collection for the evening amounted to one dollar and thirty three cents. Program consisted of a bean guessing contest won by Mrs. Gordon Robertson.

Meeting was then adjourned, followed by lunch.

"But before the harvest the men have some cement-work to do" we said. "And our wood—it's still waiting to be sawed." "That's a predicament," he twinkled "with Autumn just behind the hill!"

"And tomorrow..." we began. "But Mack's black kitten begging scraps mewled plaintively at the door. Our bird-friend was up and away."

Until tomorrow — — — Diary — Goodnight. . . .

REV. D. B. MOORE AND MRS. MOORE

Young Minister Weds. Reside In North Sydney

At 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 4th, in the Charlottetown Baptist Church the beautiful wedding was solemnized of Shirley Annabel Lewis R. T. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colby C. Lewis of Freetown, to Donald Bruce Moore B.A.; B.D. son of Mr. Arthur and the late Mrs. Moore of Freetown.

The officiating clergymen at the double ring ceremony were the Revs. W.O. Weale, Summerside, Christian Church and H.L. Mitton, Charlottetown Baptist Church. Baskets of lilies, white phlox, bridal wreath and delphinium adorned the altar. The guest pews were marked with sprays of sweet peas, baby's breath and satin bows.

The bride given in marriage by her father was beautiful in her gown of imported embroidered tulle with tight fitted bodice, square neckline and short sleeves, with mitts to match. The skirt was full with panel lace front and cascades of embroidered tulle forming a chapel train. Her veil with coronet of pearls and hidden sequins was finger tip length. A single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom, was her only jewellery. Mrs. Garth Linkletter was her sister's matron of honour. She wore a ballerina length dress of aqua crystallette and carried a nosegay of pink and aqua carnations. The bridesmaids Miss Bea Jenkins, R.T.; Mrs. Don Anderson R.T. and Mrs. Kent Ellis, R.T. wore similar styled gowns of ballerina length, shrimp crystallette. All carried nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Little Katy Ann Lewis, niece of the bride was the very winsome flower girl in her cute short frock of yellow organza and lace, she carried a basket of colored carnations and snap dragon petals. Master Peter Lewis was the efficient ring bearer in his white flannel trousers and blue blazer. Supporting the groom was his brother Gordon Moore. During the ceremony the organist Mr. Royston Mugford of Charlottetown, played the nuptial music and Mr. J.B. Lewis, uncle of the bride, sang "The Lords Prayer" and "Because".

Following the ceremony a reception for one hundred and twenty guests was held at the Charlottetown Hotel. Miss Carroll MacRae, R.T., was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's table was attractive with bouquets of sweet peas and pink lighted tapers and centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom.

During the dinner Rev. C.A. Britten D.D. proposed a toast to the bride. This was responded to by the groom. Mr. Ira Lewis then read a fitting poem written for the occasion by "The Band of Freetown" Mr. Barlow Bird. This was appreciated and much enjoyed by the guests.

Toasts were also proposed to the groom by Ira Lewis to the bridesmaids by Mr. Charles Ballem and to the flower girl and ring bearer by Rev. W.O. Weale.

A trumpet solo also a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Weale added much to the happy occasion. Telegrams and messages of congratulations were read by Mr. Gordon Moore, which included a cablegram from Mr. and Mrs. Don Longworth, Costa Rica. Mrs. Longworth is a sister of the bride.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Kent Ellis, Halifax, N.S.; Miss Louise Creamer, Antigonish, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Allan, North Sydney, N.S.; Mrs. Charles Kenzie, Windsor, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Milton, Maiden Mass.; Mrs. Albert Devarmond, Susan and Bruce Devarmond, California, U.S.A. Miss Carroll MacRae of Ohio, U.S.
