CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or statements of our correspondents.

A New Admiralty Court at Clifton, New London.

JUDGE HABEO PRESIDING—THE HABEAS CORPUS ACT SUSPENDED—SAMUEL HENRY DEVEAUX, A FREEMAN FROM CHETICAMP A PRISONER—SHERIFF MACLEOD AND JOSEPH BROWN OFFICERS IN CHARGE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—The election day was very quiet in this little village; but the sitting of the above court caused quite a consternation on the afternoon of the election, particularly as the Judge remarked that the case was a very private one, and the Judges concluded that the rules of procedure must be the same as under the Seduction Act of 1876-7. The proceedings with closed doors commenced ex parte—the Plaintiff having been absent but appeared on the scene before final judgment was given. At the Plaintiff's request, the Judge remanded the prisoner to the Clifton Jail in charge of officers of the Court, there to remain in close confinement till Saturday, the 18th inst., at 3 o'clock, p. m., when the prisoner would be brought up to receive his sentence. The inhabitants of this village thought that Frenchmen who were British subjects had their absolute rights asserted the same as Englishmen. What, although King John granted the charter of liberties, and the multitude of corroborating statutes whereby the great charter was allowed as the Common Law. The petition of rights, the habeas corpus act, and other salutary laws passed under Charles the Second, the Bill of Rights of 1688, and lastly by the Act of Settlement. These avail nothing in the above court, and henceforth Frenchmen can be deprived of their personal liberty whether guilty of a crime or not. The above court has laid down the precedent.

Through some informality, detected by D. Sullivan, barrister-at-law the case was not recalled, and the last seen of the prisoner was in company with the Plaintiff driving in great haste en route to Bradbane Station. Sailors will in future beware how they salute their ship owner, or this Admiralty Court will arrest them and the consequences may be more serious than was the lot of Deveaux, who, in the midst of his imprisonment and false arrest was treated with great kindness by Sheriff McLeod.

Yours, etc., SPECTATOR.

Clifton, New London, Nov. 20th.

Current Notes.

An Aspinwall letter states that three millions have been sunk already, and absolutely nothing has been done towards the cutting of the Panama Canal.

Glowing returns are received of rich discoveries of silver ore, twelve miles east of Pigeon River, Min., on the Canadian side. It is said that inch pieces, almost as pure as native silver, were lately picked from the surface of the vein.

One of the shrewd problems in the "Newer Arithmetic" of the Detroit Free Press is the following: A merchant finds himself with $300 in bad debts on hand, and he divides the amount to make fifty of his best customers foot the bill. How much did each one have to pay?

The New York Times' Cincinnati despatch of the 18th inst., states that the ravages of small-pox in that city have been withheld from the public; that since August 24th there have been 4,000 cases, of which 1,500 have been fatal. It is believed the disease will become epidemic with the appearance of cold weather.

Two thousand men and one thousand horses are now employed on the Ontario and Quebec Railway between Toronto and Montreal. One third of the road, which will be about three hundred miles, is now graded. Tenders for rails will soon be invited, and it is expected by this time next year through trains will be running. This is the Canadian Pacific in opposition to the Grand Trunk.

A subterranean fire is eating its way through several acres of land and threatening to undermine several large buildings belonging to the New Jersey Steel and Iron Company, Trenton, N. J. It smokes like a volcano, and an iron bar thrust down in some places to the depth of twelve feet was pulled out red hot each time. At night long stretches of the river are aglow with fire. Many years ago the company began to dump furnace refuse on the bank, and covered six or seven acres with cinders, which were often damped while red hot. There is enough coal in the refuse to afford food for a slow fire. Indications of fire observed four months ago were not heeded. Workmen are digging trenches, into which water will be poured between the building and the heated ground.

The army of employes at the retail establishment of Jordan, Marsh & Co., says the Boston Globe, were astonished last week to hear that a little, black-haired cash-boy, named Thomas Loeman, had suddenly become a bloated bondholder by a sudden freak of fortune. He is only 13 years of age, and with his little brother and sister lived with an aunt in Boston. The parents of the children are both dead, and these orphans received the intelligence last week that an uncle who had died in Australia had left them a fortune amounting to $2,000,000. When he received the news, young Loeman seemed rather dazed than otherwise, but he will undoubtedly realize his good luck more fully as he grows older. The children will be sent to St. John, N. B., where they will be educated under the care of trustees who are to control their property.

Personal—Gossip.

The Marquis and Princess are not likely to return to Ottawa until near Christmas.

A man named A. Alay was frozen to death at Walcott, Dakota, on the 16th inst.

Lady Gertrude Douglas, sister of the Marquis of Queensbury, scandalized London society during last week by marrying a baker.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau, Secretary of State, has had conferred on him by the President of the Republic of France the dignity of Commander of the Legion of Honor. It is said this is the first time the honor has been conferred on a Canadian.

The loss on the Cochrane Cattle ranch last winter is estimated at five per cent., and the increase in number this season at forty per cent. The Company has the beef contract for the Blackfoot, Surcoes and Stonies Indians at eight cents a pound. The Indians get the hides, heads and other refuse of the animals besides.

A canny Scotchman living at Macduff, who has seen at least seventy winters, in order to collect a small bill due him from a carpenter, recently ordered a coffin to be made by his debtor, and the funeral article was duly constructed and delivered, ready for the time when the thrifty creditor shall shuffle of his mortal coil.

Lord Dufferin is credited with making rapid progress in ingratiating himself with the notables, but there will be little progress in the direction of the formal admission of England's policy until Arabi's trial is out of the way. That obstacle has degenerated into a farce, but a certain amount of ceremony has to be endured before it can be settled.

It has been decided that the contemplated memorial to Dr. Pusey shall take the form of the purchase of his library and the provision of a suitable building to contain it, with an endowment for two or more clergymen to act as librarians and promote the interests of theological study. The sum to be raised is $250,000, which it is expected will be contributed by church members in Great Britain, the Colonies and the United States.

Here is a picture in which the prominent figure is playing the part of soldier and courtier. It is of General Wolseley, who has just returned from Egyptian hardships. He is in the Duke of Cambridge's drawing room, looking none the worse for the campaign. His keen eye glances as of yore from beneath the full brow, the thin face is no thinner, the spare light figure as straight as ever, and he bows easily and low before the Princess Mary, kissing her glove and extended hand and recovering himself as alertly as if his muscles had never been stiffened by bullets and sabre cuts, by fevers and exposure to half the worst climates of the world.

A Western man has been telling some Philadelphians how Western cities grow. He says he went off into the mountains hunting, and night coming on, he went to sleep in a tree to be out of reach of the wolves. He was awakened early the next morning by some workmen, who told him to get down and finish his nap on the court house steps, as they wanted to turn that tree into a flag pole for the hotel across the way. He got down, and, while rubbing his eyes, was nearly run over by a street car and got his feet tangled in an electric light wire.

The demands of duty are imperative. Lord Wolseley of Cairo has felt the force of this truth since his return to the Motherland. After a hurried journey by sea and land from Egypt to England he found himself compelled to continue, as it were, his campaigning tour. Although he had not seen his wife for many months, he was compelled to dine with the Prince and Princess of Wales on the night of his arrival. Immediately afterwards he left for Scotland by order of the Queen. After a two hours' conversation he returned from Balmoral to London, and, without delay, resumed his office duties as Adjutant-General. No wonder the Empire is proud of Wolseley.

The World's special cable says that Tennyson's new play has been saved in a singular manner. The Marquis of Queensbury, who lost his seat as a Scotch representative peer in 1880 through his heterodoxy and has been tiling at the Kirk ever since, did the unlucky actor a good service by rising in the theatre and denouncing their sentiments one night this week. Since then people have gone night after night expecting a scene, and Hermann Vizin follows up the Marquis with
