American Farmers Crush Kennedy's Wheat Policy

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prospects for a sharp expansion in U.S. wheat production coupled with a possible drastic drop in prices loomed for 1964 as farmers crushed President Kennedy's plans for tighter controls, voting for unlimited production next year.

Stunned by results of the wheat referendum, the Kennedy administration immediately pledged that steps would be taken to protect other wheat-exporting countries from the confusion and chaos that may emerge from uncontrolled U.S. "over-production."

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman announced Wednesday he will be given presidential authority to prevent dumping of U.S. wheat on world markets. This was to provide perturbed Canadian and other exporters with assurance there would be no abrupt drop in U.S. export prices next year.

Nevertheless, there was some concern in authoritative quarters whether world prices could remain steady in 1964 in the face of internal marketing turmoil in the U.S. Open markets for future sales tended to reflect this concern with sharp drops modified later by recoveries.

Canadian authorities were reported keeping a careful watch on the situation, ready to make representations to the U.S. should Canadian exporters be badly hurt by sudden drastic switches in U.S. policy.

Kennedy also reflected this concern when he told a press conference "we are going to do everything we can to sustain our international agreements on wheat and to prevent dumping and all the rest."

But ow that U.S. farmers had made their choice for overproduction, he said, the U.S. will face increasing difficulty persuading other countries to restrain their own production.

Republicans predicted Congress would provide farmers with a better alternative program. This, in fact, was the argument of the powerful American Farm Bureau in its drive against the Kennedy plan.

However Kennedy and his congressional supporters indicated no alternative legislation is likely to be approved this year.

Under the Kennedy plan, there would have been only a small production decline next year but price support for most wheat would have remained at $2 a bushel.

Now farmers will have the alternative of receiving a price support of $1.25 a bushel if they keep their total acreage at 49,500,000 for 1964—compared with the 1963 acreage allotment of 55,000,000 less voluntary reductions.

They will get no support at all if they do not abide by acreage allotments. And if surpluses rise sharply next year Freeman will have the power to order a new wheat program referendum.

The U.S. at present has an inventory of some 1,200,000,000 bushels of wheat — roughly equivalent to a full year's production. The agriculture department estimated production next year may rise to 1,600,000,000 bushels, but some experts discount such a sharp rise.

Freeman, in pleading for tighter production controls to reduce the surplus, maintained that U.S. wheat prices could drop to $1 a bushel next year if the government allowed the market to drift. But 1964 is a presidential election year and undoubtedly the administration will face political pressure to prevent alienation of the farm vote.

The administration plan needed approval by two-thirds of the farmers voting. Instead it got only about 48 per cent approval. This unprecedented defeat stunned the administration because its prestige and power was on the line.

Under the International Wheat Agreement, to which Canada and the U.S. are signatories, prices range within a floor of about $1.62 and a ceiling of $2.02 a bushel basis No. 1 northern at the Lakehead. The current price is roughly at the midway point but some experts fear the U.S. situation may swing prices towards the floor.

QUIZ

The bidding has been One Spade on your right, Three Spades on your left, four spades on your right. Which card would you choose as your opening lead in each of the following hands?

1. ♠K52 ♥K9643 ♦8 ♣KQJ3
2. ♠986 ♥J9753 ♦QJ7 ♣82
3. ♠J103 ♥KJ2 ♦AJ84 ♣Q96
4. ♠A74 ♥109863 ♦5 ♣J1097
5. ♠K963 ♥QJ1082 ♦K74 ♣8

1. King of clubs. Opening leads are largely a matter of guesswork, but there are many hands where the best lead can be reasonably arrived at. In this hand, for example, the two possibilities that stand out are the eight of diamonds and king of clubs, and the question to determine is which is more apt to prove successful.

The basic aim is to find the lead most likely to produce four defensive tricks. The most promising chance is to attack clubs in the hope of eventually winning two club tricks, a spade, and possibly a heart. A diamond lead would rest pretty much on the assumption that partner had an ace and could give us a diamond ruff, but this possibility is rather remote when we are looking at 12 points and the opponents' bidding indicates they have about 26 points.

2. Queen of diamonds. The indications are that partner has about 10 points and we have to try to put them to the best use by attacking the suit where declarer is most apt to be weak. Partner may have the king, in which case two diamond tricks are established as soon as declarer takes the ace. Also, it may be that partner has the ace and dummy the king, in which event the lead of the queen may prove very effective.

3. Three spades. Here it is best to adopt a passive line of defense because there is too much danger of losing a trick by leading anything except a trump. The three is led rather than the jack to cover the possibility that partner has the lone queen or king.

4. Five of diamonds. We can't expect to take four tricks on high cards alone, so the best chance is to try to supplement our side's high-card tricks with one or more diamond ruffs. It is presupposed that partner has at least one quick entry, since otherwise our cause is hopeless. The diamond lead is based on that assumption.

5. Queen of hearts. The singleton lead is avoided in this case, in line with the general theory that with four trumps headed by an honor it is best to lead a long suit rather than a short suit. The hope is that repeated heart leads will force declarer to ruff and thus weaken his control of trumps.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
