Indonesians Told Must Face Problems Or Anarchy Looms

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters) President Sukarno of Indonesia Saturday warned his 80,000,000 divided countrymen that "if we do not take care, we may go the way of total anarchy."

"All kinds of crises have swept over us," he said in a speech from the presidential palace.

A HOUSE DIVIDED

In the 12 years, the new republic—rich in oil, rubber, tin, and food productions—had faced widespread rebellion, near bankruptcy, corruption, and the growing power of domestic communism...

"There is not the least vestige left of our national dignity," Sukarno said.

"I think that the Indonesian nation has carried out to effect a wrong political system. Our democracy is a free-fight liberalism."

Sukarno recalled that since Indonesia became a republic, under United Nations sponsorship, there had been 17 cabinet changes and "a lot of bother" over regional affairs and in army circles.

In particular, he referred to the wave of largely bloodless coups which spread through Sumatra, the Celebes, the Moluccas and the Indonesian half of Borneo last Christmas.

ECONOMIC TROUBLES

"Some regions," he said, "have even become mischievous nowadays and have tried to enforce their will on the central government," particularly with a view to gaining funds for development. They do not understand, he added, that the "greater part of the capital for this development" is being "shipped abroad" to clear away the remnants of the financial and economic agreements concluded between Indonesia and Holland in the 1940s.

He said there is a "new life movement" in Indonesia but that those who think it has been "inspired by the Chinese (communist) people's republic" are "narrow-minded."

"Let us not meet this new life movement with cynicism," he warned. Let us "forge the Indonesian into a new man."

The republic's people live on 3,000 islands spread 3,000 miles across the south Pacific.

There were the six brothers and sisters of Chickie whom she had left in hiding while she looked for Chickie. If she were gone too long they might think something had happened to her and come out of hiding, wander off and become lost.

Chickie was only one. His need of her was great. But there was nothing she could do but comfort him as best she might, and there were six others who needed her as much as he did.

Chickie was something to worry about. As if this wasn't enough,

Plans are well underway for the forthcoming conference of Maritime Home Economists to be held Oct. 18-19 in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Amherst, it was announced following a recent meeting of the planning committee.

BUREAU CHIEF DEAD

TOKYO (AP)—Compton Pakenham, 66, Pacific bureau chief of Newsweek magazine, died Saturday, five days after he suffered a cerebral blood clot. He was weakened by pneumonia and a heart condition.

The program planning committee, headed by Miss Beatrice Mahoney, Pres. of the N.B. Home Economics Association, reported that excellent speakers were being procured and will include: Jack Wallace, chief instructor of the Canadian Civil Defence College, Arnprior, Ontario; Miss Marjorie Kennish, National President of C.H.E.A.; Miss Beth Crosby, Fabrics representative of the Dupont Co. of Canada and others.

A joint session of Maritime Home Economics teachers will also be a special feature of the Conference.

Mrs. Ralph Manning, President of the P.E.I. Association and Conference Co-chairman was unable to be present.
