ACT 1.

SCENE I—Charlottetown; a Queen Street Dealers store

ENTER—A Commercial Traveller, great swell from abroad

C. T.—Good morning. I represent... an immense company doing great business in soap—We offer great inducements in 100 box lots.

DEALER—Indeed! I purchase my soap from Ch'town Soap Works, in lots as required. My capital is free, not locked in dead stock, and as I am never overstocked with rancid soap, my customers are always sure of a good article at any rate, they are continually enquiring for soap made at their own factory because they are the cheapest, purest, and best soaps on the market.

C. T.—A mistake somewhere. P. E. had not imported almost everything, there is not sufficient local patriotism to build up a Soap Industry here, give me the names of the brand you sell, and we will compare prices.

DEALER—I sell ROYAL OAK, a matchless laundry soap, and Jubilee unexcelled for toilet and light laundry. Intense interest, prices compare.

C. T.—You can't expect us to sell soap as cheap as above brands, and equal in quality. We have to pay freight, cartage, customs, charges, etc. and don't expect us to work for nothing?

DEALER—I do not expect it.

C. T.—Oh give me an order since I am here, I may not trouble you again.

DEALER—I cannot live on sentiment.

C. T.—Nor can I live without orders—Exit.

For sale everywhere, ask your dealer.

Letters of Condolence.

At the regular monthly meeting of Court New London No. 1158, Independent Order of Foresters, held in the hall of the Society at Stanley Bridge, March 27th, a committee was appointed to draft letters of condolence and present them to Mrs. R. Moore, Bro. Walter Simpson and Bro. Alexander Buntan. In accordance with this the following have been drafted and presented, as per instructions of the Court; STANLEY BRIDGE, P. E. I., April 3rd 1899, To Mrs. R. Moore, Bay View, P. E. I.

The members of Court New London No. 1158, Independent Order of Foresters, feeling deeply for you in the very severe affliction which has befallen you in the loss of your dearly beloved husband, or late lamented and respected brother, though perfectly conscious that those who in similar vicissitudes have felt the hand of sorrow laid so heavily upon them, can alone fully estimate your loss, still feel it our duty to express to you our deepest sympathy in this time of trouble.

Realizing that this trial must seem dark and mysterious now, yet believing that what we know not now we shall know hereafter when we meet our loved ones in the eternal home, we would commend you to the care of our great "High Chief" above, who alone is able to sustain us in our deepest afflictions. On behalf of the fraternity we are,

Yours Sincerely,
D. A. WEDLOCK,
G. W. SIMPSON,
Committee.

STANLEY BRIDGE, P. E. I., April 3rd, 1899. To WALTER SIMPSON, Esq., Bay View:

We your brethren of our Court New London, No. 1158, Independent Order of Foresters, feeling deeply for you in the very severe affliction which has befallen you in the loss of your dearly beloved wife, though perfectly conscious that those who in similar vicissitudes have felt the hand of sorrow laid so heavily upon them, can alone fully estimate your loss, still feel it our duty to express to you our deepest sympathy in this time of trouble.

Realizing that this trial must seem dark and mysterious now, yet believing that what we know not now we shall know hereafter when we meet our loved ones in the eternal home, we would commend you to the care of our great High Chief above, who alone is able to sustain us in our deepest afflictions. On behalf of the fraternity we are

Yours in L. B. and C.
D. A. WEDLOCK,
G. W. SIMPSON,
Committee.

STANLEY BRIDGE, P. E. I., April 3, 1899. To ALEXANDER BUNTAN, Esq., Clinton, New London:

We, your brethren of Court New London, No. 1158, Independent Order of Foresters, feeling deeply for you in the very severe affliction which has befallen you in the loss of your loved and respected mother, though perfectly conscious that those who in similar vicissitudes have felt the hand of sorrow laid so heavily upon them, can alone fully estimate your loss, still feel it our duty to express to you our deepest sympathy in this time of trouble.

Realizing that this trial must seem dark and mysterious now, yet fully believing that what we know not now we shall know hereafter when we meet our loved ones in the eternal home; we would commend you to the care of our great High Chief above, who alone is able to sustain us in our deepest afflictions. On behalf of the fraternity, we are

Yours in L. B. and C.

G. W. SIMPSON,
Committee.

China Point Notes.

The farmer's around here are about through with their hauling, and are waiting for Jack to come out to begin their tending.

The departure of Mr. Roderick Murphy was the occasion of a farewell party at the house of Mr. Fred Nelson, on March 31st. Miss Ida Nelson presided at the organ in a most efficient manner. The solo by Mr. John R. Ings was greatly applauded. Mr. Welville Irving on behalf of the audience read a farewell address, to which Mr. Murphy feelingly responded. Afterwards a beautiful snuff of home made candy was passed around and merriment and song they all dispersed to their homes gratified and pleased.

Rumour has it that China Point wharf is to be repaired. If this be true, which we sincerely hope it is, a step in the right direction as this wharf has been grossly neglected during the past few years. This place can boast of some very smart horses. Lady Bird, owned by Richard Carey, is a very fine mare, and under the skillful management of her owner is doing excellent work. Gertie, owned by Mr. F. McPhee, McGinity owned by E. Morrissey, are also fine horses and will soon make a record for themselves.

Mr. John W. Young, our present teacher, is about to leave us. His place is to be filled by Miss G. McDonald, of Cardigan Bridge.

Miss Annie McMillan, of Vernon River is visiting friends here. She is the guest of Mrs. Walter Morrissey.

DEM.

Between the Towns.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Peter Dixon, of Squaw Bay, has buried his fourth wife.

Mr. Jenkins, of Mount Mellick, has lost his valuable "collie" dog. This is a serious loss as the dog was very serviceable for driving cattle and sheep, of which Mr. Jenkins handles quite a number during the summer and autumn months. We are informed that the owner valued his dog at $200.

Mr. L. Harden, of Vernon River, met with a serious accident on the ferry ice a few days ago by which he came near losing a valuable horse. While crossing at a rapid place the horses fore feet went through the surface ice, which caused him to fall and badly sprain himself. The sleigh shafts were broken but Lester escaped uninjured.

The services in Vernon River Church on Easter Sunday were grand. Too much praise cannot be given Dr. Doyle for the able manner in which he conducts all the services and the choir is admitted to be second to none on P. E. Island.

The Farmers Club of Alberry Plains is doing a rushing business. Already an order for spring seeds has been placed in the hands of Mr. J. A. Simmers, a reliable seed merchant of Toronto. The greatly reduced rates at which this club obtained their seeds should be an eye-opener to farmers in other parts. They should "go and do likewise," always remembering that strength lies in unity.

Two new stores have been opened in Summerville, which goes to show that this enterprising district is making rapid strides in the right direction.

The New Perth Farmer's Club is also flourishing. They intend to deal largely in seeds with Mr. Simmers, of Toronto, and he has already taken a large order.

Our factory is doing better than ever under the able management of Mr. Cooke.

The school in Georgetown Royalty is doing excellent work under the able management of Miss Mahar, Cardigan North.

Mr. A. F. Fraser, the popular dentist of Georgetown, is doing a splendid business. So pressed is he with work that often he is obliged to call to his aid Mr. Peake, the well-known and genial Dr. of Souris.

ODDITIES OF GENIUS

Whether or not genius is the result of a diseased condition of the brain, it is beyond dispute that the most men of genius are eccentric to the verge of insanity, while many of them become actually mad; and that many dull children have blossomed into genius as the direct consequence of injury to the brain.

William Blake, the great poet-painter of last century, was undoubtedly mad, and lived among the creatures of his disordered fancy. Tasso, the great Italian poet, was subject to attacks of mania so violent that he was more than once confined in the madhouse.

Jean Jacques Rousseau, the French philosopher, spent his last years a victim to terrible delusions, which made his life a torture to him. He could find no respite anywhere from fancied persecution and insults even from his most attached friends.

The brilliant Guy de Maupassant lost his reason, and his bright genius was extinguished in an asylum; and for many years Munkacsy, the great Hungarian painter, was lost to art and the world in a madhouse.

Goeth was the victim of illusions, and used to see strange visions in the streets. Zola is a mass of morbid fancies which make his life, successful as it has been, a purgatory. Even when he retires for the night, he must open his eyes seven times to assure himself that he really lives, while he sees disaster in everything from a cab with an unlucky number to entering his home with his left foot.

Pope had a mind as distorted as his body, and at times he saw such fearful visions that he dared not sit or sleep alone. De Quincy and Coleridge were eccentric to the point of madness, the result perhaps of laudanum as much as genius.

Dr. Johnson used to hear strange voices calling to him when no one was near; and Ben Johnson, the "trave," had days when even he thought he was mad.

Edgar Allen Poe, Byron, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and a hundred other men of genius have been either eccentric or the victims of strange illusion.

It is one of Nature's singular methods of compensation that where men and women of genius are mentally sound, they are made to suffer some physical ill.

Sir Joshua Reynolds was, as the world knows, deaf; Beethoven for the last seventeen years of his life could not hear a note of the exquisite music he penned, and suffered terribly from melancholia; Scott and Byron were both lame, and to both their crippled condition was a cause of mental torture.

Pope was a hunchback, a poor "physical note of interrogation;" Keats was consumptive; and Heine, the German Poet, was an almost chronic invalid. Byron, Poe, Zola and many other men of genius have been epileptic.

Mrs. Browning spent many years of patient suffering in bed; and among the lesser lights of our day, Mr. Clark Russell is crippled by rheumatism. Miss Edna Lyall spends much of her time in a bath-chair, and Aubrey Beardsley died unhelpfully of consumption. There are but a few illustrations of the seeming rule that genius carries with it suffering either of mind or body.

One of the most curious phases of genius is that in many cases it has been the direct outcome of an accident or a serious illness. Pascal's genius is attributed to a dangerous illness from which he suffered as a boy; and Zola was but a dull child until a serious illness overtook him and left him an epileptic and a genius.

One of the greatest of American theologians, Professor Austin Phelps, was dropped by a careless nurse as an infant, and his head was seriously injured. This fall in some mysterious way is said to have been the cause of his remarkable power of brain.

Lombroso attributes Vico's genius to a fall from a ladder when a child; and similar flaws on the head made geniuses of Mabilton and Goethe, the composer.

It is one of the many mysteries of the human brain that an injury to one section of it may make a man insane, while a blow on another part may convert a dull man into a genius. The risk, however, is too great to make it desirable to follow one's head as a means of cultivating genius.

The Great Fire at the Windsor, N. Y.

Was an awful calamity, but cannot be remedied. Now, Catarrhzone can remedy and is a positive cure for catarrh and kindred dreaded diseases. This statement is backed up by hundreds of testimonials, which we have and can produce. Snuffs, ointments, washes, etc., have been proved useless in giving relief or curing catarrh, bronchitis, irritable throat, nasal and ear passages, but Catarrhzone, the ozone air cure, does not only give immediate relief, but effects a permanent cure. Why delay? Send at once for sample bottle and inhaler, 10 cents. Outfit, $1.00.
