Remedy for the Horn Fly.

O B WADMAN, of Crapaud, writes: "After trying many experiments this summer on my own cow, I have at last discovered a cheap and substantial remedy. Cod oil, petroleum, coal oil, etc, should not be used, as they are injurious to the cattle, and I am persuaded that farmers who have used those remedies will, after examination, find a great many sores." He will supply the remedy for 40 cts per gallon which will be sufficient quantity for ty cows. One application will last for ten or twelve days. Will mail receipt for by enclosing three-cent stamp for reply.

A DEAL IN STOCKS.

Presents—bones—honeymoon. How on earth can one leave out either?" asked George Littlecash of himself, earnestly drilling his penholder into a much furrowed forehead. "There never was a wedding without presents. As for no honeymoon—why, Hetty would be justified in crying off before the very altar."

What had placed our friend in this unpleasant quandary was, to begin with, Uncle Piper's check for £500. It was a check to marry Hetty and set up house with, and qua cash was satisfactory enough, but accompanied with the wise avuncular injunction: "George marry on a cash basis—cash, mind—or never look me in the face again." Such excellent advice, plus a £500 check it is impossible for a nephw to spurn—especially a nephew in love.

And then, when he had this gold mine of untold wealth in his pocket, and a full ocean of happiness to look forward to, George fell into the toils of the plausible fellow, Tom Scherer, of the well-known city firm of Moutoa, Scherer & Walker. Scherer had such a taking way of remembering, and cherising affectionately one's Christian name.

"Ah! Congratulate you, my dear George. Coming off next month, eh? Happy man! Some of you fellows have the devil's own luck. And just in time, too, for me to put you on to making a comfortable nest-egg for the happy home—one of the prettiest chances you ever had. But come into Pipps' and have a coffee."

Pipps', that long, low, smoky "dive" in Throgmorton street, was crowded with easy-mannered gentlemen in silk hats, or in no hats at all, who conversed in pairs and in groups with electrical energy. They could not hear themselves for their own talking. "Sell-at-five-three-eight." "Book you thousand." "Buy six-quarter." "Sell." "Buy." "Panjandrums." "Rhodes." "Barney's stock." "Struck Bobble-Bobble reef." "Last-crushing-tenbounces"—such were some of the scraps or jargon that emerged above the din in flashes of comparative silence; while ever and anon a gntleman would draw from his vest pocket a little notebook and pencil some entry or another. Almost deafened at first by the hubbub, George Littlecash was soon in the whirlpool himself, an eager listener to Mr. Scherer's glowing tales indicative of the pecuniary advantage certain to result from a small punt in the South African "boom."

"Eighty thou' in one deal, my dear George—wht d'ye think of that, eh Springett went nap on Gold Bug Extensions—put on every penny he could scrape together, till he hadn't a cent to swear by—and came out 80,000 golden sovereigns to the good. And yet you say it isn't worth trying. My dear George—faint heart never maintained a fair lady, if it won her."

The upshot was that George figured up his liabilities against his check, and handed over to the trusty Scherer £50, to be converted in two days, or some such reasonable time, into £2,500.

"Done!" cried Scherer, as he pencilled the little transaction in his notbook.

And "done" George was. For next day, when he looked at "Mines" in the money column, he found Gold Bugs had crawled downstairs three-eighths.

"What do you advise, Scherer?" asked George, when they met in the city.

"Never advise, my dear George. Don't do it—on principle. "Cut your losses, let your profits run," is our old wheeze;

"AH! CONGRATULATE YOU."

but it's no good being too hasty. This fall is simply due to somebody being in too big a hurry to pocket a profit. But you judge for yourself, dear boy;

Next day Gold Bugs had crawled downstairs two or three steps more.

"It's nothing, George," said the optimistic Scherer. "Weak holders—couldn't last out—that's my explanation. Still, don't be guided by me."

Next day after that Gold Bugs had fallen so heavily that you couldn't find anybody to pick them up again at any price. And just then, of course, to make amends, George Littlecash was reminded by his tailor of "that little account" which had been overlooked for so many quarters. It was in this doleful hour, as he sat savagely biting his lips, knitting his brows and inwardly cursing Scherer and all his works, that he glanced vaguely at a copy of the Evening Intelligencer.

"Renewed Activity in Rand Shares" was the line in large type that caught the disconsolate investor's eye as the paper lay on his desk.

"Confound Rand shares!" he ejaculated fervently, wheeling round as though from a too affectionate snake.

Just then, as luck would have it, in popped the beaming and expansive Scherer.

"Why George, my dear boy, you're looking as ghastly as James Canham Read when he was 'taken from life,' as the waxworks bill says. Nothing serious, I hope? Gad chucked you?"

"Look here, Scherer; I don't want you blarneying me again. I've had quite enough of Rand shares, thanks—in fact, a long sight too much."

"Rand shares! Why, my dear fellow," Scherer returned, with a look of pained virtue, "you really don't mean to tell me that's what put you down in the dumps—that little matter of two-fifty, when you stood to win as many thousands! Bless my soul!"—Scherer's eye had just caught the line in the Evening Intelligencer—"have you seen the paper to-night?"

"No," replied George, whose back was turned, "nor want to. I'm sick of the whole thing. You knew, for I told you, I couldn't risk anything under the circumstances unless it was absolutely certain."

"And that's what you call risk?"

"Oh, hang—I know it's my own fault—only don't bother me with any more of these fine tales."

"Now, I call this very unkind of you, George," said Scherer, injured; "I do, indeed." And so saying, while he kept one eye on Gorge's back, Mr. Scherer cast the other down the money column. When he reached Gold Bugs that particular eye flared up like a fusee.

"Now, what should you say if Gold Bugs went up again to 5 1-4, eh?"

"Rot!"

"Right you are, dear boy. 'Rot' is it? Well, well. You think I misled you about that little deal, eh?"

"Well, if you want plain speaking, Mr. Scherer, I think you did."

"And you an' I friends, George! This is what comes of trying to do a man a good turn! Now, what do you say if I offer to take those shares off your hands again, since you're so cut up over 'em?"

"At a shilling apiece, I suppose. Ha, ha!"

"A shilling apiece? No, sir! Not at a shilling apiece.' I'll give you what you gave for 'em, and a shilling apiece over to sooth your injured feelings.

"I DON'T DOUBT YOUR FRIEND'S HONESTY AGAIN."

Mr. Scherer found his magnanimity so exhiliarating that he drew himself up, threw open his coat, and slipped George's Evening Intelligencer into his own pocket.

"You doubt my honesty and my good faith, eh, my dear sir," he said, pulling out his check book and a roll of notes. Last week you paid me £20; if you will be so good as to hand me back the scrip I shall have much pleasure in handing you my check for £562 10s. Or p'raps," he added, with cutting sarcasm, "since you doubt my honesty, you would prefer Bank of England notes?"

George, who had risen, half dazed, had just enough presence of mind to gasp in his astonishment:

"If it's all the same to you, I should."

"Certainly, my dear sir."

"I'm only too delighted to hand it back to you," said George, fervently, as he passed over the scrip, and received the crisp notes and gleaming gold in exchange.

"And yet, strange to say," laughed Scherer, "I can assure you I'm no less delighted to take it back. Ha! ha! ha! Ha! ha! ha!" For some moments the cachinnation prevented speech. When Scherer found breath he remarked to his bewildered friend. "My dear George let me give you a word of honest advice—in fact, two words. Don't doubt your friend's honesty again, and when you hold active shares keep a sharp eye on the papers—ha, ha, ha!"

"The papers?" echoed Littlecash; "why, no, I haven't seen to-night's paper yet." And he struck the bell.

"Yes, sir?" said the office boy.

"Where's to-night's evening paper, Tippetts?"

"Ain't come in yet, sir."

"Oh, yes, it has," corrected Mr. Scherer, choking with laughter, as he produced the Evening Intelligencer. "I just—just—mechanically picked it up for a moment myself."

But the office boy triumphed.

"That's a h'old won, sir, to-night's ain't come in yet."

"Not come in!" shrieked Scherer, turning to the date. "Why, good Lord—the paper's a month old!"

Mr. Scherer's exclamations as he sank into George's chair were so shockingly profane that even the office boy turned pale and expected a flash of lightning.

George got his friend out of the office at last, but made a point of handing him back the odd twelve pounds ten—"to soothe his feelings." The wedding took place, and Uncle Piper will never know the particulars of George's first—and last—little venture on the stock exchange.—St. James' Budget.

Strange Relationships in Marriage.

It is rarely that a daughter becomes her mother's mother-in-law, yet this curious coincidence does occasionally happen.

A friend of mine, a colonel in the army, had been a widower for some years, and resided with his sons and daughters in Plymouth.

At a ball given by the officers of his regiment he met a beautiful young girl, with whom he fell desperately in love, and, to make a long story short, they were soon married.

At the year's end there was an addition to the family. Of course the mother came to be with her daughter on this interesting occasion, and, being a handsome, well preserved woman, the Colonel's eldest son became much attached to her, and before long led her to the hymenial altar. Thus the daughter became mother-in-law to her own mother.

Another strange relationship is that of a lady who is mother-in-law to her two sisters in a somewhat similar fashion to the above, they having married stepsons. I myself am cousin to my own sister, she having espoused my husband's first cousin, and am second cousin to my nephews—her sons.—London Tit-Bits.

Royalty Pays Its Fare.

It is very frequently asserted in uninformed quarters, says the London Sketch, that the Queen travels free over all the railways in Great Britain, while the expenses of members of the Royal Family are paid by the Treasury. This, of course, is absolute nonsense. The Queen pays her own expenses, averaging about $40,000 a year for the home journeys alone; and for the Royal Family pay their own fares whenever they travel, just the same as ordinary passengers.

A Word in Season.

Our Prices Speak in Boots and Shoes.

The reason we sell so cheap is that our stock is purchased for spot cash, and are all New and Fashionable Goods. No old-fashioned stock and odd sizes.

Some of our competitors bait their hooks with large discount figures. The people understand that little game and cannot be bluffed. They know that men don't waste time doing business for fun.

Examine our prices and the quality of our stock, and you will be satisfied that we can give you the best value or the least money.

ANOTHER DISCOVERY.

Of Interest to Bicycle Riders.

A well known bicycle rider has made a discovery that will be good news too all who locomote on the wheel. He says:

Since I first began to ride a wheel, which is several years ago, I have been subject to more or less chafing and irritation. Sometimes when heated the itching inside my legs would be so severe that I would feel compelled to forego riding for a time. Nothing that I tried did any material good until my attention was drawn to an advertisement of Dr. Chase's Ointment for all itching of the skin. I tried it and almost from the moment it touched the skin the itching stopped. I also find its occasional use prevents chafing. Further evidence of the efficacy of this preparation is given by Chas. Roe, foreman Central Press Agency, Toronto, who was troubled with Itching Skin of the most aggravated kind. When the skin became heated during sleep from too much clothing, would wake up with absolute pain from digging into the flesh with his nails. Chase's Ointment gave relief from the first application and permantly cured. Price 60c.

A PARALLEL CASE

People in Detroit are Interested in a Great Resemblance in Two Cases

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—Much interest has been manifested here over the recovery of Mr. G. H. Kent, of Ottawa, from Bright's disease by using Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which is now in universal use, and many people have a clear recollection of the similar case which occurred in London, Ontario, not long ago, namely, that of Mr. Wm. Langley, who for sometime was an inmate of Harper's Hospital here and was operated upon without effect by several Detroit physicians. It was owing to this connection with Detroit and the long accounts published in the press that so much interest was taken in the case, and led to such an enormously increased sale of the medicine.
