

PC Gov't Sets Precedent In Chiefs Of Staff Deal

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative government apparently has set a precedent in relations between the administration and the armed forces chiefs of staff.

Some observers here believe this could lead in future to embarrassments for both the government and the chiefs of staff.

In the Commons debate on cancellation of the Arrow interceptor program, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Defence Minister Peakes referred at least nine times to the chiefs of staff and in some of these references said the government was following the recommendation of the chiefs to junk the Arrow.

In the past, the government has never disclosed recommendations of the chiefs of staff on announced defence policies.

MENTIONS VIEWPOINT
Mr. Diefenbaker at one point inadvertently involved the chiefs in politics when he said they determined that it didn't make sense to spend $781,000,000 on production of 100 Arrows.

Ordinarily, it is the duty of the chiefs to make recommendations on weapons needed while the government itself decides whether it can afford them.

Paul Hellyer, former Liberal associate defence minister and MP for Toronto Trinity, said Mr. Diefenbaker had "blamed" the chiefs of staff for the Arrow decision.

Mr. Peakes denied this.

The day previously, Mr. Peakes said: "Our defence policy is based on the recommendations by the chiefs of staff of our armed forces."

He said the chiefs in 1957 had recommended in favor of the Arrow but in late 1958 had changed their minds and recommended against it.

VIEW OF CHIEFS
On Feb. 23, Mr. Diefenbaker

said the view of the chiefs was that the Arrow would be obsolete by the time it came into RCAP squadron service.

He also said the previous Liberal government had been "convinced" by the chiefs that the RCAP needed the Arrow.

All this could conceivably become embarrassing the next time the government makes an announcement on defence policy.

The opposition might consider it had ground to ask for the views of the chiefs of staff on the announcement.

It has already been an unwritten law here that the chiefs of staff do not disclose publicly their recommendations to the government. In fact, more than one chief has been on the carpet for doing just this.

It has also been an unwritten law that the government does not disclose what advice it has received from the military. In this way, neither side is put on the spot.

Interest Rates Push Stocks At N.Y. Downward

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced to record highs on three straight sessions last week, then backed away moderately as news came of higher interest rates.

Volume of 21,018,300 shares was the highest since the week ended last Oct. 18 when 24,402,570 shares were traded.

Despite vigorous profit-taking on many stocks which have enjoyed a consistent rise, the list as a whole posted a solid advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.90 to $222.40. It touched its latest historic top of $223.20 Thursday.

News that four federal reserve banks had raised the discount rate to three per cent from 2½ per cent came after the close of the Thursday market session and led to a big accumulation of overnight sell orders. The result was heavy selling early Friday.

However, the selling wave was checked considerably by investment buying. The session was converted from a complete rout to a moderate decline relieved by a solid rally among aircrafts and selected gains, some of them quite large.

A long-awaited rally by rails and a comeback by oils coincided to give the list its biggest daily jump Tuesday.

Rails and selected issues rallied Thursday while some more profits were taken, especially in the electronic-missile-rocket fuel stocks which have made such huge strides in recent weeks.

Advances on the week of 36 points by Zehith and 11¼ by Du Pont were features on the big board while Borne Chemical rose 19% on the American Stock Exchange.

Tax Foundation Expects Big Federal Deficit Next Year

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Tax Foundation, in its annual federal budget forecast, expects that the deficit for the next fiscal year will be as high or higher than the current year's deficit.

For the year ending March 31 the foundation estimates budgetary revenues of $4,700,000,000 and expenditures of $5,400,000,000, for a deficit of about $700,000,000.

"For the year beginning April 1," it adds, "revenues will advance by some $30,000,000 and expenditures by about $400,000,000."

"The projected deficit, after allowing for a reasonable margin of error, will therefore range from a low of $700,000,000 to a high of $900,000,000."

MODEST GROWTH
"These projections are based on a modest growth in the economy of four to five per cent, no change in existing tax levels and the usual year-end, expenditure adjustments."

"Personal income tax collections and taxes on spending will together increase by about $300,000,000 while other sources of revenue will remain unchanged. Corporation profits are increasing but higher revenues therefrom will not be received until the succeeding fiscal year, 1960-61."

It adds:

"In view of the still large cash requirements, the minister of finance must formulate policies to find the necessary funds without 'inappropriate' expansion of the money supply and, at the same time, must continue to encourage economic growth and employment."
