MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. GAUTHIER

Wedding Vows Solemnized At St. Dunstan's Basilica

A ceremony at St. Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown united in marriage Jeanne Phyllis Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Peter Lund of Tracadie Cross, with John Gerald Gauthier, son of Mrs. John Elmer Gauthier, South Freetown, and the late Mr. Gauthier. Rev. Kenneth MacMillan officiated.

Bernadette Power was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length white velvet gown with overskirt. The bodice featured a rounded neckline and long sleeves. Her only jewellery was a pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Her shoulder length tulle veil fell from a circlet of white velvet and she carried a bouquet of red carnations.

The maid of honor, Rita Lund was gowned in a red velvet sheath with overskirt, and she carried a nosegay of white carnations. Her headdress was a rolled red velvet pill box.

Gerald Giddings, Montague was best man and ushers were Edwin Lund, Tracadie Cross and Frankie LeClair, Charlottetown.

A reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel, where Mrs. Lund received wearing a peacock blue double knit suit, black accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother chose a steel grey suit, white accessories and white carnations.

For travelling the bride wore a dark brown suit of Forest wool, with brown and gold accessories.

Since returning from a Maritime honeymoon the newlyweds have taken up residence at 1 Grafton Street.

Out of town guests included: Sandi Lohones and Joe Rogerson of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Quinn, Fredericton; Danny O'Hanley and Jim Morrison, St. Paul's Seminary, Ottawa; Desmond Duffy, Quebec City; Reggie Pendergast, Goose Bay; Joe Brazel, Sacred Heart Seminary, Halifax; Gerry Sherry, Scarboro Foreign Mission, Scarboro; and Reggie MacKenna, Grant Seminary, Montreal.

MARY HAWORTH

Depressed Young Wife Wants Psychiatric Help

Dear Mary Haworth. I need professional help. My own family, my husband and my in-laws are very dear to me but they don't believe in psychoanalysis.

I have been under a strain, but only with problems of everyday life and marriage. The problems have all worked out but I find myself still very depressed and short tempered, saying things I don't mean and being frightened by my actions.

My husband and family pass these things off as a bad mood or a bad day. Or else they lecture me on how wrong I am, or that I should try to make the best of things.

If I were to see a psychiatrist with their knowledge, it would be most embarrassing to them. So I wonder, is there any way I can get such help without their knowledge? And without funds?

My husband has a fine job, an average income and a promising future. I am totally dependent upon him for support and all our expenditures are accounted for. I am 27, we have been married four years and have a child, age two. We own our modest small house in a nice neighborhood.

A recent medical check - up finds me in excellent health except for high blood pressure. Can you advise me how to solve this problem? Or can you suggest books from the library that might be helpful? Only lately I have become your fan, won by your answers to others' needs. K.R.

Dear K.R. Herewith two suggestions. First, get confidential guidance first - hand from the Family Service agency located downtown in the capital city through which you've addressed me.

Set up an appointment by telephone. Have a heart - to - heart talk with a staff counsellor, giving the background of your feeling of need for analytic treatment. Explain your financial situation. Ask agency help in planning a suitable course of action.

This agency may refer you, sooner or later, to some counseling service in or near the suburban area where you live. Even so, I think you should begin with the city agency I recommend, because it is extraordinarily competent and humane in helping clients solve difficulties.

When, as and if you have formed up a therapeutic program, with the help of agency contacts, your agency counsellor or the doctor who undertakes your case will aid and encourage you, I feel, in breaking the news to your family, if it seems necessary for them to know.

As for books that might help: it occurs to me that Dr. E. M. Abrahamson's and W. Pezet's book "Body, Mind and Sugar" Holt might shed light on the cause and cure of your fretful depression and cloudy fears. Most libraries and book stores carry it; or it may be ordered through a bookstore, if not in stock at present. M.H.

Dear Mary Haworth: I met this boy four years ago and at first he didn't appeal to me much. Now he means more to me than my own mother. He is very nice and comes to see me often.

He knows I care a lot for him and says he cares a lot for me. Also his actions at times indicate that he likes me a lot, but other times it seems as if he couldn't care less.

I don't date other boys and he doesn't date other girls. I seldom go out, as I am afraid he might call or come by during my absence. I'm getting so I don't know what to do and I need advice. Please help me. E.S.

Dear E.S.: You are throwing yourself at the boy, encouraging him to take your attention, a performance practically guaranteed to drive him off, bored and surfeited by your sameness, after some years of this kind of thing.

What to do? Turn over a new leaf; get interested in all sorts of useful social activities; let him track you down if he wants your company. Or, if he thinks it's not worth the effort, you may as well know it now, which would be all the more reason to come out of your shell and make new friends. M.H.

Merry-Go-Round Cake Is An Endless Delight

A YOUNG mother called at the test kitchen to ask for suggestions for her five-year- old son's birthday cake.

The Chef suddenly cocked his hat jauntily, as he does when a bright idea comes.

"There is the solution!" he exclaimed, pointing to a package of the new animal-shaped oat cereal we were taste-testing.

"We will invent a cake for little John, with a red jelly topping and a carrousel decoration made from the amusing oat- cereal animals."

Measurements are level

CARROUSEL CAKE

(In three steps)

Cake Layers

1 pkg. lemon flake cake mix
2 eggs
1¼ c. water
two-third c. pkgd. grated coconut
2 c. sifted flour
¾ tsp. salt
2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
½ c. pecan nutmeats

Mix together butter or margarine, sugar and vanilla. Beat eggs and mix in thoroughly.

Sift together remaining dry ingredients. Beat into first mixture. Cover and refrigerate 1 hr. Roll into marble- size balls. Transfer to oiled baking sheet, leaving ¾" space between each ball; lightly press into each a half pecan meat or punch of chopped pecan meats.

Bake 10 to 12 min. in mod. oven, 375 degrees F., or until golden brown. Cool; store in tight- closed canister. Makes 50 to 60 pecanettes.

1 c. filling between each layer; then spread remainder on sides and top.

Topping

½ c. red currant jelly
¼ c. pkgd. grated coconut
1 c. animal-shaped oat cereal

Spread jelly on top of cake, almost to edge. Border with ¼ c. coconut. Set oat-cereal animals upright around edge of cake.

In center stick plastic drinking straw upright; attach bright streamers of narrow ribbon or yarn to top of straw. Attach other ends to animals to represent a carrousel. Serve within an hour.

PECANETTES

1 c. butter or margarine, room soft
1 c. sugar
2 tsp. pure vanilla extract
2 eggs
2 c. sifted flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
½ c. pecan nutmeats

Mix together butter or margarine, sugar and vanilla. Beat eggs and mix in thoroughly.

Sift together remaining dry ingredients. Beat into first mixture. Cover and refrigerate 1 hr. Roll into marble- size balls. Transfer to oiled baking sheet, leaving ¾" space between each ball; lightly press into each a half pecan meat or punch of chopped pecan meats.

Bake 10 to 12 min. in mod. oven, 375 degrees F., or until golden brown. Cool; store in tight- closed canister. Makes 50 to 60 pecanettes.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Clyde River WI Displays Handicraft Course Work

The Clyde River Women's Institute were recent hostesses to Handicraft Classes at the home of Mrs. Eric MacPhail. The two instructors, Doris LeClair and Judy Coates, were most faithful despite the storm which caused poor roads at that time.

Attending the sewing and handicraft course were a total of 15 women, 6 of whom were from a neighboring Institute. The articles finished were smocked satin and velvet pillow covers, copper - work pictures; handmade gloves; stencil painted bureau scarves, and pillow cases; baskets; and handmade dresses of various sizes and styles. Many attended the morning and evening sessions in order to complete the work begun. All enjoyed the opportunity to "work together", and expressed a desire to attend more of these courses when ever possible.

The climax of the two weeks' work was "achievement day" Friday, Feb. 7th, when visitors were invited to come and view their work. Mrs. Hazen Howatt, who was invited to be present, praised the fine work and paid tribute to the contribution of Miss LeClair and Miss Coates to such classes. Tea and coffee were served.

MURRAY RIVER WI

Painting the interior of the Murray River Public Library was a project agreed upon by the Women's Institute at the March meeting.

With Hazel Graham presiding, reports were presented and new committees selected.

It was agreed to apply for membership in the Consumer Assoc. of Canada and the Kings County Musical Festival.

Members were urged to contribute books to the Riverside Hospital Library.

Contests were conducted by Leona Giddings and lunch served by the hostess, Mrs. Roulston Graham and her committee.

BRACKLEY POINT WI

Mrs. Gerald Robinson entertained Brackley Point Institute Mar. 5. Eleven members and one visitor were present.

At this meeting further plans were made regarding the annual Easter dinner, tickets for which were distributed among the members to sell.

The sick committee reported books sent to a hospital patient.

It was decided to contribute $1.00 to the adoption fee of the Korean boy by the Women's Institutes of P.E.I.

Members renewed subscriptions to the Institute News.

In answer to a request from the Canadain Mental Health Assoc. good used books and magazines will be collected to help equip a library in Riverside Hospital.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

BREADALBANE UCW

Mrs. Hedley Woodside was devotional leader using as her text, "Darkness and Light" for the March meeting of the Breadalbane UCW held at the home of Mrs. Laine Seaman. Thursday evening Mar. 5.

"Beneath the Cross of Jesus" was sung. Mrs. James Snowie and Mrs. Laine Seaman read the scripture passages. Prayer was offered by the leader followed by Lord's Prayer and a hymn.

Mrs. Harold Toombs presided during the business part of the meeting.

Roll call was answered by 10 members and 2 visitors. Program Committee were asked to make arrangements for a concert as other means of raising money.

Mrs. Thomas Evans led the study book on the chapter "The Resurrection".

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Milder Weather Shrinks Winter's Snow Drifts

"I see" a caller of today offered, when we talked of the bearing the fields patch ily to show us pieces of sod, of stubble, and furrow. The aftern oon gave the beautiful shades of a March sunset; rose against amber. And also lilac hues remindful of old gardens, floated away in pretty ribbons of clouds, from it, along the quiet blue.

"Looks as though we're to get a fine day tomorrow" Mack called across the yard. "That's a good sunset!"

"I notice" James said, eyes to the deep of the valley, "the stream is rising. I hope no bridge will stand the rush of water there."

"Mud!" we exclaimed, caighing this spring - sight on a lad's boots today.

"Oh yes, the road is muddy now — not this morning, but when we were coming home from school" Alex said.

"Do you actually work?" a visitor last summer to Alderlea questioned.

"Not really" we chuckled "We just potter. Sort of live on the fringe of things — look out from this house against the hill, to the doings about, to the farming and all. We do keep house, after a fashion. We sew, knit on occasion, read, write when it 'comes to us', and..."

"Ellen" James says, come now from a night look - in, at the stables, "do you know what I've been wishing for in a kind of a craving? Some old-fashioned taffy! Yes." He lifts a stove cover. Smiles. "There's a good king those on the yards, and Pink and white streamers and a white wedding bell decorated the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank MacWilliams, Cape Traverse, for a pre-nuptial shower honoring Jean MacWilliams.

Gifts were presented in a decorated basket by Helen Mutlart and Allen Davison and opened by Mrs. Eldon MacWilliams, and Mrs. Dale MacWilliams. Verses were read by Millie Dawson, who was pianist for the evening.

Mrs. MacWilliams was assisted in the serving of refreshments by several friends.

Twenty- five guests, including the Salvation advisory board and executive and charter members of the Rainbow Club enjoyed a buffet supper at Sunset Lodge in honor Brigadier Edith Chandler, superintendent of the lodge, who is retiring early in April. Attending also were Eddie Cook, nephew of Brigadier Chandler, and Mrs. Cook, Lieutenant Harry Cook, RCN, and Mrs. Cook from Dartmouth, N.S., Brigadier and Mrs. H. Roberts of Saint John, and Mrs. Betty Roper of Sherwood.

The table centre was like a breath of Spring, with yellow daffodils, and candelbra with yellow candles. A brief informal gathering following the supper was led by Brigadier Roberts.

Reg Boyce, chairman of the advisory board, expressed best wishes to Brigadier Chandler upon her retirement, to which the Brigadier replied and spoke of her calling to this work and of various appointments through her 39 years as an active Salvation army officer, having been stationed as far west as Victoria, B.C.

Major J. Ferguson, assistant officer of the lodge, arranged the social evening.

Brigadier Chandler is planning to live in Charlottetown, her native city.

Barbara Smith, RN, has returned by air to Montreal after a short visit with her father, Austin Smith of Tryon. Miss Smith has accepted a position on the staff of the Montreal Neurological Hospital.

Mrs. H.B. Willis is convener of the YMCA Auxiliary afternoon tea to be held Saturday, March 14. Home cooking and bazaar articles are to be a feature of the project.

LAC and Mrs. Donald McAdam, 284 Beaton Avenue, Summerside, have as guests Cpl. and Mrs. Herb Stewart who have just been transferred to RCAF Station Summerside from Torbay, Nfld.

Mrs. G. Morrison and Mrs. Tom Richardson, Summerside, entertained at a supper bridge party at the home of Mrs. Morrison Monday evening.

Mrs. Edwin Dommermuth of Hanover, New Jersey, is spending a two weeks' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Heckbert, Summerside. Mrs. Frank Raffrey, Chatham, New Jersey, accompanied Mrs. Dommermuth and she is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus DesRoches, Miscouche.

Toronto Girl Is Veterinarian

GUELPH Ont. CP — A tour of the Ontario Veterinary College here was the start of a career for 24-year-old Sandra Kelk of Toronto.

The city girl found a fob on a farm after her high school graduation so she could qualify to enter OVC. Then one of two girls in her class, she now is assistant professor of small animal medicine at the school.

Dr. Kelk is the first woman to hold such a post since 1965.

There are 11 female students in this year's OVC freshman class.

Her work is comparable to that of an interne in a hospital. She helps to examine and treat the 5,000 animals seen every year by the resident veterinarians.

"I'm learning more here in a year than I would in three years in general practice," she says. "The only jobs she does not do are the ones requiring great strength, such as setting the leg of a large animal.

Dr. Kelk is concentrating on surgery and plans to specialize later in medicine and radiology.

She has passed California veterinary examinations because she might like to work there for a while. She wants to travel before opening her own clinic.
