Ellen's Diary

Continued from page 2 The valley, wild geese on wing, a kind of oats drying to provide presently a tasteful whole-meal breakfast-food for the countryside. Well acquainted with her various moods in our long years of neighboring her, we fancy that now in Mr. G's absence, the old mill is dreaming her days rather lonely away.

we took the train to Lausanne, an hour's run. This city is built right on the side of the mountains on the edge of Lac Leman, and some of the streets seem to be built at above a forty-five degree angle. We found out, too late, that to convey people up and down these steep sections there are ferries, a type of underground conveyance that comes to the surface to load and unload. If one wants a taste of mountain climbing he doesn't need to go any further than the main streets of Lausanne. The day we were there the streets were colourfully decorated with the Swiss flag—a red cross. In order that we might partake of the mountain scenery, we took the boat trip from Lausanne across Lac Leman to Geneva. One would almost think he was in our Rockies except that the country side is much greener and the mountains not so rocky. Lac Leman is a long narrow lake so we were able to enjoy the mountains on either side. Geneva is built around the west side of Lac Leman and is a much larger city than Bern. Unfortunately, it rained heavily all the time we were there, but the building that stands out above all the others was the League of Nations building. Where we viewed it, it appeared to be a large stucco building. Finally we went back to Bern by train for our last night there. We proceeded by way of Lucerne, passing through the second longest tunnel in the world (about twelve miles) to Lugano, near the Italian border. Also set in the mountains, it is abundant with palm trees, tropical foliage and spacious parks. (To be continued)

Murder Is Forgetful

Where the bluff curved seaward, ahead, he thought he saw a figure moving. His eyes held steadily on the object. It was something white. Kay, too, had seen. "It's mother!" she cried. "Then she had pushed past him and was running, calling in the night, 'Mother! Wait!'" The dog almost yanked Johnny Saxon off his feet as he followed the girl. "Take it easy, pal!" Johnny said, running. It was perhaps a hundred yards to where the woman's figure was walking ahead. Kay was first to reach her. She flung her arms round the slim, tall figure and gasped, "Mother! What is it? What's wrong?" The dog, pleased, made snorting sounds as he bobbed his head up and down and tried to jump up to caress Irene Smith. He could have easily knocked her off her feet. Johnny held him back, watching Kay—watching, also, this tall, graceful, beautiful woman who held the answer to a strange mystery. Irene had stopped, turned part-way around, was looking down into the girl's pretty face. There was a serenity about Irene Smith, a calmness in her eyes that indicated she was hardly aware of where she was, or the time of night, or what was happening. Johnny held the dog, patting his side, quieting him. The woman had not yet turned fully around to look at him. She merely stared at the girl. "What do you want?" she asked quietly. "Mother, don't you remember..." Kay stopped, a sob catching in her throat. She moved back from Irene Smith as though her mother were a stranger. She turned her head to stare helplessly at Johnny. "For a moment," Kay stammered, "I thought... she knew me." She made a gesture with her hand. "Perhaps you..." Johnny stepped up to them. He had the flashlight turned on again and the woman first saw the dog. She reached down and carefully touched his head, the way any person might pat an animal that is somewhat strange. The dog's eyes shined in the flashlight. Her whole manner changed. Instantly she seemed more vitally alive. Her slim figure reached out and touched his hand. Her eyes lighted. "Bart," she said. "I was coming to see you!" Johnny's brows lifted. He caught Kay's expression, that helpless look as she slowly shook her head in puzzlement. He smiled and said lightly, "I thought you'd come—Marie." He was conscious of the touch of her cool fingers. "That's why we started out to meet you." "You didn't have to do that, darling," the woman said. "I would have been there anyway. Today is such an important one, remember? You've... decided?" He wondered what in the Lord's name he was supposed to have decided. Watching her, he said quickly, "Yes... sure." Relief was mirrored in her beautiful gray eyes. "Bart," she said softly, "I knew you would." The dog, seeking attention, was carressing the woman's hand. She looked down. Her manner changed slightly. She kept looking at the dog and when Johnny said, "But why did you come here?" she did not seem to hear him. He glanced at Kay again. There was frantic appeal in her eyes as she made a swift motion that told him to try again; to attempt to stir a spark of memory in the woman's mind. Again he said, "But, Marie, why did you start so early? It isn't even morning yet." He thought... He waited for her reaction, wondering just what the blazes she'd been talking about. CHAPTER XVII She looked up from the dog and met his searching gaze. And his expectations were shattered. Irene Smith stared at him out of eyes that showed no recognition whatsoever. He might just as well have been a guy mooching a dime for a cup of coffee. She continued rubbing the dog's ears. She seemed to become aware of Kay, standing there near her. Irene Smith looked into the girl's face—her own daughter's eyes—and Johnny found himself expectant and tense. For the woman's hand had reached up and lightly touched the girl's face. She said slowly, "You're so pretty. What is your name?" "Kay." Johnny felt a tightness in his stomach. The girl said it as though she had stopped breathing. At the same time she was exerting marvelous control not to break down completely. "Haven't we met somewhere?" Irene Smith asked the girl. Kay's head jerked. "Don't you remember?" "It seems... yes, I think we have." Irene said the words slowly, as a person would who is trying hard to recall something. "Think hard," the girl said. Her voice was pleading. "You do know me. You do!" Johnny Saxon was leaning slightly forward, his slender body rigid with expectancy. It was as though his mind was trying to prod the woman's own. He found himself sweating. (To be continued)

June Meeting Of Earl Of Hillsboro I.O.D.E. Chapter

The regular monthly meeting of the Earl of Hillsboro Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held on Tuesday, June 5th at the home of Mrs. G. Raynor. Contributions voted and passed involved: $300.00 to a needy Charlottetown student; parcels of food and clothing to three overseas families; annual prizes to five city schools. Clothing and knitted articles from the I.O.D.E. Chapters will be on display at the Art Centre, Friday, June 8th, at 2 to 2:30 p.m., before being sent to the British Save the Children Fund. Arrangements regarding the annual Cooking School being held Nov. 6, 7 and 8th are in preparation. Three new members, namely: Mrs. J. E. Barnett, Mrs. C. B. Porter, Mrs. W. S. McMurty were accepted and welcomed to the Chapter. Materials were distributed among the members for work for the fall, as well as the Sanatorium library summer list. Letters of thanks for donations, etc., were read from Toronto, and following other business the meeting adjourned until early in September.

Fi... Variety Concert At Pownall Hall

A very enjoyable evening was spent at Pownall Hall on Thursday, May 31st, when the Hazelbrook B.Y.P.U. presented a variety concert. This included two one-act plays, the first of which was entitled "Sparkin'", with the following cast: Granny Hannah (Adele Wood); Mrs. Hannah (Eva Jenkins); Leslie Hannah (Lilla Jones); Orry Sparks (Ken Paynter). The other play, "A Visit to the Oil Regions" was characterized by the following: Mrs. Hooper (Queenie MacKinnon); Angelina Hooper (Helena Pippy); Hezekiah Hooper (Earl Jones); Stanley Billian (Keith Jones); Two Policemen (Wendell Jenkins and Robert Jones). All the players took their parts very well and both plays were much enjoyed. A silent dialogue was also presented which added much amusement to the program. This featured Kent Jones in the leading role, with various other parts being taken by Mildred Paynter, Eva Jenkins, Queenie MacKinnon, Olive Jenkins, Helena Pippy, Lilla Jones, Kay MacKinnon, and Adele Wood. Solos were capably rendered by Mrs. Jack MacRae and Mrs. Harold Carver, and instrumental music was supplied by Billy Jenkins and Athol Buel. The Hazelbrook B.Y.P.U. are endeavouring to build a hall and the community wishes them every success in their undertakings.

Re Cross Meeting West Kent School

On May 31st, the Grade 4, Miss Emily Higgins class of West Kent School, held a splendid Junior Red Cross meeting. The president, Miss Carol Chandler, presided. Meeting opened by the Juniors reciting "The Declaration of Service" in unison. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by a favorite spring flower. The treasurer reported having on hand $5.50 from auction sales and collections. The Circulation Manager reported on the sale of magazines, that about 45 copies have been sold each month. The various conveners of clean up, waste paper basket, brush and programme committees gave their reports and new officers were elected for the next two weeks. Clean-up Committee: Carol Ann Hogan, convener, gave her report and appointed Judy Brennan and Carolyn Owen as new committee. Waste Paper Basket: Convener David Ives gave his report and appointed Roger Blrt and Paul Oakes as new committee. Health and Cleanliness: Convener, Roger Scantlebury, reported and appointed Katherine Campbell and Carol Ann Hogan. Brushes: David Ives and Roy Scantlebury were appointed for the next two weeks. A most enjoyable programme followed which included a playette: "Safety First Train", recitations, Junior Red Cross poems composed by several pupils, songs, and dramatization of the story of "Rumplestiltskin". A report was given on the progress of the portfolio that the Juniors are making for international exchange, which was followed by a discussion on the contents of a portfolio led by Miss Marie Bowness, Director of Junior Red Cross, who was guest at the meeting. Meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Attended Rotary Governors' Meeting At Lake Placid

Mr. Edwin C. Johnstone, Rotary Governor of District No. 284, has returned from attending the International Assembly of incoming Rotary Governors at Lake Placid, N. Y. He was accompanied by Mrs. Johnstone. The Assembly was attended by delegates from all over the world where Rotary is established. Representatives were present from such places as Ceylon, Iceland, Japan, the South American countries and Scotland. Mr. Johnstone expressed himself as being greatly impressed by the gathering and the spirit that predominated among the members. Following the week-long conference, Mr. Johnstone was one of a panel of 12 delegates who spoke on the result of the conference the topic of which was "As I Now See It." All delegates were briefed on the principles of Rotary whose motto is "Service Above Self." Following the Assembly meetings, Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone attended the International Convention held in Atlantic City. Over 12,000 delegates were present. They were away some three weeks. District No. 284 Assembly is being held this year at Amherst on June 25th. There the Rotary Governor will meet with the various club presidents and secretaries. District No. 284 includes the Maritimes, Newfoundland and part of the State of Maine. In all some 49 clubs will be visited during the year by Mr. Johnstone as Governor of the district.

ALBERTON W. I.

Two interesting films, "Queen Mary's Carpet" and "Four Ways to Serve Apples" were features of the June meeting of the Alberton Women's Institute, which met at the home of Mrs. R. E. McDonald with Mrs. C. H. Weeks presiding and sixteen members and visitors present. The visiting committee reported home and hospital calls and the school committee's report was also received. The hall committee reported seven rentals. The Scout group committee members reported that a Cub Pack is under way with Miss Barbara Smith as Akela. Assisting are Miss Helen Hardy and Mrs. Wesley Hardy. On motion of Mrs. G. H. Coffin, seconded by Mrs. S. R. Burke, Miss Edna Perry was appointed janitor of the hall. It was reported that the piano had had been tuned. Plans were made to have the hall cleaned. The new hall committee is Mrs. Arthur Wilkie, Mrs. S. R. Burke and Mrs. C. H. Weeks. All members are asked to do calling during the summer months. Mrs. Arthur and Mrs. A. C. Green were appointed to the school committee for June. A treat will be provided for the pupils. At the local W. I. convention which is scheduled for June 28th, Alberton is to have charge of the sing-song. Mrs. Herbert Champion, Mrs. Gordon Coffin and Mrs. Arthur Wilkie will have charge of the tea. Mrs. Joseph Callaghan and Mrs. Gordon Coffin were named delegates to the provincial con-

Sunday School Convention At Kingsboro

The North Eastern King's Sunday School convention was held in Kingsboro Baptist church on Wednesday, May 30th, with the president, Edison Rose in the chair. The afternoon service of worship was led by Rev. H. R. Bell, following which Mr. Whitney Dalrymple of the Maritime Religious Education Council was introduced as leader of the convention. He in turn invited the delegates to identify themselves, so that all might become acquainted. The minutes of the last convention were read and adopted, and a financial statement showing $62.25 remitted to the M. R. E. C. received the approval of the convention. A nominating committee headed by Rev. W. B. F. Corkum was appointed by the chair, while Rev. K. MacLeod was appointed to head the resolutions and courtesies committee. Ten schools answered roll call, with delegates asked to emphasize the most interesting activity of the year. The reports, summarized on a wall-chart, formed the basis for a stimulating discussion entered into by most of those present. The supper hour in the vestry was a goodly time of fellowship and discussion among the delegates. Following the evening worship service, Rev. W. B. F. Corkum reviewed the work of the M. R. E. C. Mr. Dalrymple showed slides on the leadership training camp at Chipman N. B. and demonstrated typical available film strips for church schools. The nominating committee brought in the following:

ing slate of officers for the ensuing year: President, Fred Matheson; secretary, G. A. Leard; vice president, Mrs. Lester Johnson. Secretary, G. A. Leard. Executive: Kingsboro, Kenneth McGregor; Souris, Mrs. Bruce Stewart; Fortune, Mrs. Art Wood; Dundas Baptist, Norman W. MacLeod; Dundas United, Angus Brown; Forest Hill, Mrs. J. C. McBeth; Annandale, Mrs. Elby Howlett; St. Peter's Bay Mrs. Ken McCallum; Marie, Mrs. Wendell Coffin; Greenwich, Mrs. Shirley Sutherland; Red Point, Edison Rose. The Committee on resolutions and courtesies thanked the entertaining church and tea committee, commended Mr. Dalrymple for his inspiring leadership, and recommended to each school a greater emphasis on teacher meetings and teacher training. The convention closed with a powerful address by Mr. Dalrymple on the theme "JESUS CHRIST, Teacher and Lord" following which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. R. A. McLeod.
