YOU'RE MY EVERYTHING AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE — "You're My Everything" that gay Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor musical which exploits the flamboyant twenties of the days of the flapper, the flappers with painted knees — when the movies were passing from silent to talkies, will be at the Capitol Theatre today. Anne Baxter unveils her pretty legs in the picture for the first time in the 22 pictures she has made and Dan Dailey swings with ease through some of the best song and dance numbers of that era. His "Chattanooga Choo Choo" number which he dances with the Berry Brothers, and the "Star-case Dance" he does with little Shari Robinson, who makes her screen debut as a counterpart of Shirley Temple in her childhood days on the screen, are nostalgically reminiscent.

Director Walter Lang also brought to the screen again such former favorites as Buster Keaton, Jack Mulhall, Stuart Holmes and Charles Morton to add realism to the old-time movie scenes in the pictures. These scenes are shown in black and white which enhanced their reality in contrast to the vivid color of the other parts of the production.

S'side Nurses Attend Services

Yesterday being Nurses Sunday, members of the nursing staff of the Prince County Hospital and private duty nurses attended evening services, in uniform, at St. Paul's Catholic Church and Trinity United Church.

At St. Paul's Church, where the regular Sunday evening devotion to "Our Mother of Perpetual Help" was held, the nurses of the Prince County Hospital were welcomed by Rev. A. J. MacLeod who conducted the service. Father MacLeod recalled that the Blessed Virgin is known as "Help Of The Sick" so it was fitting that the nurses should come to church in a body during the month of May which is dedicated to her. He reminded those who care for the sick that they have a duty to provide for the spiritual welfare of those who are ill as well as for their bodily welfare. He also told them that they themselves should live lives of purity and sanctity.

The congregational singing was led by Father J. H. LeClair and the pastor, Rt. Rev. C. J. MacLellan, V. G., was present in the sanctuary.

Trinity United Church the minister, Rev. K. G. Sullivan, gave a very impressive address on the high calling of the nursing profession. He told them that theirs was a sacred trust, a work of love, and that they should be imbued with the idea serving not for payment but for the love of their profession.

The choir was under the direction of the organist, Miss Mary Gelding.—S.

S'side Co-op Store Broken Into Again

For the second time within a week the Summerside Cooperative Store was broken into yesterday in broad daylight. Three juveniles who were later taken into custody by Summerside police, gained entrance to the packaging room through a small window at the rear. As far as police could ascertain the break occurred about one thirty.

The manager, Mr. McEvin, was in the upper part of the store at the time and heard the intruders below although they might have been in the basement some time before he discovered them, as he did not have his keys to the basement he was obliged to go out and around to the rear and it was discovered that they had made several trips in and out and had carried several packages of the stolen goods and cached them in the sheds of Smallmans Ltd.—S.

When The Guardian airlift was inaugurated for Western Prince County last month, the pilot in passing over an isolated sandbar, known as Little Channel, near Conway Inlet, noticed a couple of fishermen waving to him from below. Next morning, they were waiting to welcome him again, showing by gestures their appreciation of this unexpected service. He again dropped them a paper, and the same exchange of amenities occurred on several successive mornings.

The climax occurred last week, when six subscriptions for The Guardian were received from this hitherto isolated area. The
