Quebec To End Tax Deals

NEW ORLEANS (CP)—Quebec is determined to put an end to federal-provincial tax-sharing plans as soon as possible.

Premier Jean Lesage said Tuesday night.

He said Quebec Province, though it has sliced the budgets of several departments, has had deficit budgets in the last two fiscal years.

This had meant borrowing huge sums of money.

"We were also obliged, in spite of our reticence, to take part in several joint plans suggested by the federal government," Premier Lesage told the Congress of North American Securities Administrators.

"We are resolved to put an end as soon as possible to these joint plans by insisting that the central power replace them by fiscal equivalence."

Text of his address was delivered in advance of delivery.

"The needs of the provinces have become of greater importance than those of the central government," he said.

Mr. Lesage said "revenues should be shared so that all the provinces, and not only Quebec, may carry out their responsibilities that, with respect, the constitution gave to them."

His remarks evidently were an outline of the position he will take at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa Nov. 25.

The record price paid for a steer in the Maritimes was set at the Atlantic Winter Fair here. An 870-pound steer owned by Linwood Farms of Sackville, N.S., went for $1,400. The top price was $1,400.

"Sold," rejoiced Mr. Sanderson.

"If you said I were not good friends, I'd buy him for that, but you're more than that for him. You'll get $700 for that animal," Mr. Himmelman advised.

But neither of the men expected the yearling would bring almost $1,000 on the auction, though the LaHave, Nova Scotia, man, knew that he could get the extra $150 from the Canadian Hereford men.

Earlier, West Germany cheered a Western decision to hold out completely Russia insistence on counting the number of soldiers in small convoys passing Western areas of Germany into Communist zones.

Both the French and the British refused to dismount for a head count before they left West Berlin for West Germany.

In the East German autobahn, the French were held 30 minutes, the British 50.

There was no reported incident as the two convoys were cleared through Marienborn checkpoint into West Germany.

In Washington State Secretary Rusk termed the blockade "a very serious matter."

State department press officer Robert McCloskey said the issue is not the Soviet request that the troops dismount to be counted. But, he said, the Russians "are asserting that the establishment of a checkpoint claim the right to control our access to Berlin."

McCloskey said the French government considers the U.S. convoy quite serious, informed sources in Paris said.

The official said the first vehicles started to move toward West Berlin at 2:41 a.m. Monday. They were halted at 9:10 a.m. Monday.

Tuesday night they tried to break through, but the Soviet army brought up armored troop carriers and blocked them on three sides. There were thick woods on the fourth side.

A U.S. spokesman said Soviet armor was removed before the processing of the convoy started. He put the time for that at 1:31 a.m. Within eight minutes, he added, the job was completed, and 16 minutes after that the engines were warmed but the convoy was on its way.

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. officials turned over to the South Vietnamese military government Tuesday another brother of the late Ngo Dinh Diem family—Ngo Dinh Can, a former aide of Viet Nam. He had sought refuge in the U.S. consulate at Hue.

Some foreigners expressed belief the military government would put Can on trial and perhaps sentence him to death or a long prison term.

The government said both men committed suicide but an informant reported they were slain by an army unit after they had surrendered to rebel troops in a Roman Catholic church.

U.S. officials were understood to have received assurances from revolutionary authorities that Can "would not be lunched and would receive due process of law."

Liberals /in Two on unemployment issue

The Liberals since April reversed the forecast that more voters would support the party by Sept. 1, Mr. MacEachen said in reply to opposition questions on unemployment.

The unemployment of 230,000 was 10,000 fewer than a year ago and the number of persons holding jobs had increased by 180,000.

He said that the accusations Monday by Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister, led right back to the Conservative of the major crime against the people of Canada "by the Conservative government. That it was its inability to do anything to reduce the unemployment between 1957 and 1963."

Certainly the Liberals in opposition have challenged the government of the day on its unemployment record, said Mr. MacEachen.

But that was in a period when jobless totals were rising every day the rate of unemployment was smaller.

"That represents the difference between the two parties," he said in attacking Mr. Starr's contention that the Conservative unemployment stems from Conservative policies rather than from the government's failure to do anything.

NO NEW POLICY
The Conservative no-confidence motion by Mr. Starr was defeated.
