GOLD IN CANADA.

The development of mineral wealth in Canada, resulting from the opening up of the great Northwest by the Conservative Government, is exceeding the expectations of even the most hopeful. From the distant Klondike and from Rossland we have assurance of incalculable wealth; and in Ontario discoveries of the highest importance have lately been made. The Toronto World refers to the Mikado mine at Rat Portage. This mine is in the hands of an English company. Mr. Moore, who came direct from the scene of operations, informs the World that a strike was first made about three weeks ago, the miners in the south drift, at the 180 foot level, coming across a pay streak two inches in width, and of such extraordinary richness that the ore contained almost more gold than rock. The miners, recognizing their opportunity, packed some of the rich stuff, but the manager soon took precautions to prevent them appropriating lumps of almost pure gold. After each blast a guard was placed in the drift and another at the top of the shaft, whence under a third guard, the gold-filled rock was conveyed direct to the reduction works, and there immediately treated. So rich was the pay streak that the manager hardly thought it would last, but blast after blast was put in, and the two inches of almost pure gold continued to hold out, and on the morning of December 7th, came a bigger surprise than ever. A shot of usual size was put in, and when the miners descended they found that the two inches had widened to a foot, and that, in fact, the blast had broken into a solid body of ore, even more thickly studded with native gold than that previously encountered. The almost pure yellow stuff was carried to the mill in sacks, under a guard, and there stamped out. The World handled some of this gold-filled quartz, which is studded with the yellow metal that when it is cracked it is held together by the ligaments of pure gold. Mr. Moore says that this ore runs $40,000 to the ton, and that as he left the mine on December 8th he cannot say how far this clear foot of almost pure gold extended. The discovery is calculated to awaken world-wide interest.

A QUESTION.

SIR,—I note with great interest the result of two shipments of apples sent to London by Mr. Donald Ferguson, of Marshfield, one of which was sent by him as packer for the Fruit Growers' Association and the other on his own account, also a communication from Mr. Bayfield, the President of the Fruit Growers' Association, giving full particulars of a consignment that was sent to Liverpool by the said Association. Mr. Bayfield tells us all; but Mr. Ferguson withholds the most important information, viz., the price realized here. He tells us the prices obtained in London; but what were the costs and charges? Of course, as to his own apples he has a right to remain silent as it might effect future purchases to be made by him; but surely the cash results here of the apples bought and shipped by him as packer for the Fruit Growers' Association, a society formed for the benefit of the whole community, should not be kept secret.

Yours truly,
FRUIT GROWER.

APPALLING DEATH
From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim must take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

Of Special Interest to our Farmers

Feeding Sows.

Professor Robertson says in the course of his last report that the notion is held by many farmers that a breeding sow should be kept thin and practically half-starved. That is a mistake. There is no time in the life of a sow when she requires suitable feed and good quarters more than when she is carrying and nourishing her young. She should be kept in a fair condition of flesh, caused to take plenty of exercise, and left to sleep in shelter on a dry sandy soil or earthen floor, with a small quantity of bedding.

Some sows are so ill-nourished and others are so excessively fat, that their young pigs when farrowed are too weakly to live. Sometimes sows are deprived, especially during the winter season, of access to mineral matter. It is a good plan to stack a quantity of sods in the autumn and to throw a sod six or eight inches square by two or three inches thick to every sow every day. A treatment like that helps to keep sows in such good health that they drop well nourished and therefore well-born pigs.

Ten days or a fortnight before the sow is due to farrow, she should be put into the pen and fed there mornings and nights. During the day she may be allowed out to take exercise with the rest of the herd. For three days before the farrowing she should be kept in the pen continuously. In that way she comes to recognize, and is not afraid of her attendant. She should be allowed plenty of bedding for the making of her nest. A sow carries her young from 112 to 116 days.

Sometimes a sow will attempt to eat her young. That is usually because she has been badly nourished or is in ill-health. If she has had an allowance of enough of sods of earth every day, or access to a mixture of salt and wood ashes, that will usually prevent any inclination to eat her pigs. There is the instinct of motherhood for protecting her young. If a stranger goes into the pen where the sow is lying with her new litter, tries to remove them and makes them squeal, the sow mother will be apt to seize anything—a young pig as likely as anything else. It is a good plan to let the sow become used to the appearance and even to the clothes and voice of her attendant. One has hardly ever known of a sow running on a pasture field, eating her pigs. It is a good plan to give a sow an allowance of roots daily during the winter.

Every care should be exercised to prevent the sow from becoming constipated before or after she has farrowed; and for three or four days after she has farrowed she should be fed very sparingly. There is danger of milk fever until the young are able to take all the milk which she can give. It is a good plan to have the young pigs so hungry the third day as to be squealing for more milk. Immediately after the young have been born the sow should receive a drink of warm water, with a handful of shorts or bran stirred in it. A litter of young pigs will increase in weight at the rate of from two to four pounds per day. Consequently, after they are a week old the sow should be fed in such a way as to promote the production of milk. During cold weather it will be found profitable to give the sow her feed in warm condition, at a temperature anywhere from 80 to 90 degrees. Skim-milk, butter-milk, shorts, bran, ground oats, with a small quantity of oil cake, make excellent feeds. The shorts and grain may be steamed with advantage. Milk should not be added to them until feeding time.

Unwarranted Discouragement.

Because the farmer does not receive every year for his crops and stock a high price, he should not permit himself to grow indifferent and think farming a non-paying business. Like any other vocation farming has its ups and downs. Some farmers, however, seem to think that "hard times" are going to be with us always. Not so. The ambitious, progressive, scientific farmer is prospering to-day and has no time to complain. Those who take a gloomy view of everything, and see failure where there is success, can never hope to improve their conditions by will-o'-the-wisp methods.

Above all, the farmer should be hopeful and not easily discouraged, which is in most cases unwarranted. Your own efforts will do more toward satisfying the mortgage on your farm than the political party with which you may be allied.

Practical, scientific, well directed, carefully studied work are the farmer's weapons with which to combat adversity and win the abundant prizes nature offers. A disgruntled, apathetic farmer, who thinks those of his calling absolutely lost and can never get out of debt, is a curse to any community.—Agricultural Epitomist.

CHRISTMAS PUBLICATIONS
CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL.

The December issue of the Canadian Home Journal, which is the Christmas number, has been enlarged to 36 pages, and contains many excellent, interesting and profitable literary contributions from the pens of well-known Canadian writers, while the illustrations are many and good. The issue contains a complete copy with music of that popular song "In the Shadow of the Pines." This is alone worth ten cents, the price of the paper. Each issue of the Canadian Home Journal contains a popular song with music, and our readers, therefore, who want to keep up a stock of popular songs should subscribe for the Journal at $1.00 per annum. Among the many special features is an illustrated Christmas drama for children, by Mary Agnes Fitzgibbon, suitable for children's parties and entertainments. Send ten cents for sample copy or your subscription to Stewart Publishing Company Toronto.

Japanese Opinion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Japanese minister, Mr. Jutaro Komar, in an interview, said that he could not commit himself in favor of such an alliance as that suggested by senator Davis, in Paris, but the interests of England, the United States and Japan were almost identical, however, and an understanding between them, the minister thought, might prove of great benefit to all.

Delicate children! What a source of anxiety they are! The parents wish them hearty and strong, but they keep thin and pale.

To all these delicate children Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites comes with the best of news.

It brings rich blood, strong bones, healthy nerves, and sound digestion. It is growth and prosperity to them.

No matter how delicate the child, it is readily taken.
