

in to conceive.

est member of the animal kingdom and like to be treated as such? Anyhow, how can "breeders" assume responsibility of their own babies?

You go on to quote "disgraceful situations". Is an unborn child really a disgraceful situation? To prove that you are normal, is that a disgraceful situation? Maybe you don't belong at this "institution of higher learning".

One knows that Venereal Diseases are spreading like wild fire across university campuses. But don't you think that the Pill will only serve to increase the danger of V.D.. From your article one gets the idea that those supposedly young men and young women are illiterates of an "institution of higher learning" who are out for sex and any easy way out of difficulties, no matter what the price.

You suggest that one ask the "young man" if he has V.D. before you engage in sexual intercourse. I ask you "what young man" is going to appreciate it, if before each lay, he is asked if he has V.D.? You have a simple answer, "stop or use a rubber". One hopes life is always so simple for you!!

One also asks, since your interview supposedly came from professional people-doctors and nurses-is it the usual trend for professional to use terms such as "spread the ole legs for some cream"?

You conclude that it's all worthwhile 'cause of good clean sex. After reading your article I can't see where you arrive at this conclusion and you don't offer any explanation, but you do blame the woman for our "not knowing what good clean sex is" ---she is not faultless in causing and perpetuating this pattern and is probably more to blame than anything else. You try to support the above quote by speaking of female orgasm, from which you leave a lot to one's imagination.

In conclusion, I would support the Pill, if it is prescribed by a doctor for medical reasons or to a young couple pending marriage or to married couples who can't afford children at present time. But I cannot see your viewpoint on the Pill, to any young female who may wish to get a safe lay. Isn't that rather a cheap idea of life?

Anonymous

With a leg like this, how do you expect me to get away?

Ed. Note: The opinions expressed in the above article are those of a contributor who wishes to remain anonymous. As the staff now has an inferiority complex stemming from being called illiterate, they refuse to comment.

Three days before Thursday, maid's day off, they met in their special place, the bench beside the pond in the park. Lisa was shy but determined to be straight and honest as was her nature.

"I can't do it with you."
"Aren't your parents going away?"
"It's not that. Last night I got the Curse."
She touched his hand with pride.
"Oh."

"Don't be sad. We had a long talk. I told her about us, too. You see, I've got to act like a lady now. Girls have to act older than boys."

"Who's sad?"
She leaned back in the bench and took his hand.
"But aren't you happy for me!" - she laughed - "that I got the curse? I have it right now!"

Leonard Cohen
The Favorite Game, pp. 28-29

er;
een the wife of
ren, about the time
arried away
handicapped, or dead?
worth the risk?
As for your extract
e chauvanism, I find
ignorant and degrading.
re you to judge?
If a women's lifetime
ation has been rais-
children, then don't think that she is the who should fully under-the financial and aring needs of the ren? After all, one ly understands one's ation. To you it is unfortunate that this has her occupation, which ldn't understand. Yo-ignorance is further ex-ified in calling "womeeders". Don't you
that we are the high-