

Health Hints by an M. D.

If people were only as particular about the inter-marriage of disease as the inter-marriage of poverty, there would be less disease transmitted from parent to child, and fewer people would suffer from their parents' errors and follies.

In winter, not only wear heavier clothing than in summer, but eat more food.

If we would keep body and mind in perfect health, we must learn to hold the passions in subordination to the reason and the will.

There is one safe remedy for the aches and pains of body and mind which result from the use of alcoholic stimulants, and that is to abstain from their use entirely.

Animal food should be eaten fresh. The custom of eating game after it has become rotten may be aristocratic, but it is exceedingly foolish and hurtful.

Occupations of every kind require to be alternated with rest and recreation, in order to secure the best and most effective work.

Never allow air to enter a room that smells offensively; pure air has no odor, and air with odor is never pure. The simplest bath is the best—and that is the ordinary sponge bath; plunge baths, shower baths, and such like, are amusements in the bathing line while the sponge bath is the steady working and always serviceable institution.

Unclean clothes are unhealthy clothes, for long worn, the clothing becomes saturated with excretions from the body, and acts like a poison bath.

Mental labor never kills unless associated with mental worry.

Maintain the body always in an equable temperature of about 65 degrees, and never exceed that in a sleeping room.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored. We have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the medical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts or two postage stamps. The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically. This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Address: THE CULVERWELL MEDICAL CO. 41 Ann St., New York. Post Office Box 450.
