A HOME ON THE SEA.

The Very Comfortable Fireside Found In the Cabin of a Ship.

Hanging in his room in the cabin of an American bark loading for South Africa, at a South street wharf, was a picture of the captain's home ashore, in a Long Island town, not far from the city. But easy of access as this home is, the captain spends very little time in it, for his wife sails with him, and, even in this port, they live mostly aboard the ship. At sea and in foreign ports, when they speak of home, they mean, of course, their home on Long Island, but practically they make their home in the cabin of the bark, and a comfortable home too.

Upon the walls of the main room of this cabin, which is a room of spacious dimensions, there are two pictures of the bark itself. These are distinctly nautical, but, aside from them, the furnishing of the room is such as might be seen in any room devoted to like purposes ashore. In an alcove on one side is a piano; upon the other side is a sofa. In the center of the room is a table, upon which there are books and sewing and, here in port, where the ship stands on an even keel, a vase of flowers. The room is lighted at night by a lamp like a piano lamp, with a broad, spreading shade, but which, instead of being upheld by a standard with feet resting on the floor, is here suspended from the deck beams running across under the skylight overhead. There are here deep upholstered armchairs and other easy chairs, and there are rugs on the floor. It is a homelike and attractive room.

Forward of this room is the forward cabin, which is also the ship's dining room. The mizzenmast comes down through the after part of this room, going down also through that end of the fixed table, giving to this cabin a decidedly marine touch. Opening off the main cabin there are a number of rooms, including the captain's room, which is of ample size. There is here also a room for the captain's daughter, who sometimes sails with him. As is customary on American deep water ships, there are two or three staterooms for passengers, who are carried when they offer. On her last voyage to Africa this vessel carried three passengers.

The captain has sailed for many years; he is acquainted in ports all around the world, and wherever he goes there is no lack of social life for himself and his wife. They have more invitations ashore than they can accept, and they entertain guests aboard the ship, which is indeed their floating home, but that they do not forget their home ashore may easily be imagined from the fact that the ship's name is made up in part of the name of the captain's home town.—New York Sun.

The things that people see are inside of them and not outside. No two people see the same thing exactly alike. One woman may look out at a beautiful landscape and see all the beauty and restfulness and grandness that there is in it. Another one will look out at the same scene and see nothing. The man who is perfectly well and vigorous enjoys life to the full. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. There isn't anything miraculous about it—it is the most natural thing in the world. It simply puts the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, in perfect order and thereby makes the blood pure and rich. All diseases live and thrive on impure blood. Keep a stream of pure, rich, red blood flowing into a diseased spot and the disease will not stay. A man lives on rich, pure blood, and disease dies on it.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood. Send 31 cents in one cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 101st page "Cancer Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

His Case Continued.

They tell the following in connection with John Allison, the well known Mulkenberg lawyer: John is very much of a wag, and on one occasion, even when death was staring him in the face, he could not repress his disposition to be funny. He became ill at his home in Greenville with what was supposed to be heart disease, and a physician was hastily summoned. When he arrived, John was gasping for breath, and his friends expected him to die at any minute. When the doctor asked him what was the matter, he coolly replied, "Doc, I have an intimation that my case is about to be called, and, if possible, I want to get a continuance." The doctor went to work with him, and, contrary to everybody's expectation, did get John a continuance, and he is still alive and practicing law in Greenville, Madisonville (Ky.) Hustler.

The Colored of It.

Dorothy had heard some one singing that classical production, the "Little Alabama Coon," on the street. Presently she came to her mother and asked: "Mamma, what does 'swat' mean?" "What do you think that it means?" "Well, I don't know, mamma, but I s'pose that 'swat' is colored for spunk."—Harper's Bazar.

AUDIENCE OF ONE.

A Rainy Sunday at Church Which the Pastor Will Long Remember.

Dr. Payson, the famous and beloved preacher of Portland, Me., used to tell the following pointed story:

One very stormy Sunday he went to church, more from habit than because he expected to find anybody there. Just after he had stepped inside the door an old negro came in, and asked if Dr. Payson was to preach there that day, explaining that he was a stranger in town, and had been advised to go to his church.

"Upon that," said Dr. Payson, "I made up my mind to preach my sermon, if nobody else came."

Nobody else did come, so the doctor preached to the choir and the old negro.

Some months afterward he happened to meet the negro, and, stopping him, asked how he enjoyed the sermon that stormy Sunday.

"Enjoy dat sermon?" replied the old man. "I 'clar, doctor, I nebber heerd a better one. You see, I had a seat pretty well up front, an' whenebber you'd say somethin' pretty hardlike 'gin de sins ob men I'd jess look all round ter see who you's a-hittin', an' I wouldn't see nobody on'y jess me. An' I says to m'self, 'He must mean you, Pomp, you's sech a dretful sinner.' Well, doctor, dat are sermon set me a-thinkin' what a big sinner I war, an' I went an' jined the church down home. I'ze a deacon now."—Christian Endeavor World.

Crow Tactics Under Commander Silverspot.

Silverspot has hammered away at drill, teaching them all the signals and words of command in use, and now it is a pleasure to see them in the early morning.

"Company I!" the old chieftain would cry in crow, and Company I would answer with a great clamor.

"Fly!" And himself leading them they would all fly straight forward.

"Mount!" And straight upward they turned in a moment.

"Bunch!" And they all massed into a dense black flock.

"Scatter!" And they spread out like leaves before the wind.

"Form line!" And they strung out into the long line of ordinary flight.

"Descend!" And they all dropped nearly to the ground.

"Forage!" And they alighted and scattered about to feed, while two of the permanent sentries mounted duty—one on a tree to the right, the other on a mound to the far left. A minute or two later Silverspot would cry out, "A man with a gun!"

The sentries repeated the cry and the company flew at once in open order as quickly as possible toward the trees. Once behind these, they formed line again in safety and returned to the home place.
