

THE MAINE LAW.

House of Assembly, Wednesday April 19.

(Continued.)

The following is the Resolution submitted last evening by the Hon. the Attorney General:

Resolved, That it is expedient to prohibit by Law... to be sold from from one to another... eight hundred and fifty-five—the manufacture, importation and sale of Spirituous and all other intoxicating liquors, except for medicinal purposes, and the sacred Ordinance of Religion; and also to prohibit the keeping of such liquors for sale, except for medicinal purposes.

Mr. DORCE thought a reasonable time ought to be allowed to parties to prepare for the contemplated action. One thousand of the inhabitants, while none were received of an opposite tendency... at least, as respected an extension of time, and there was some impression which he wished to make on the minds of the constituents.

Mr. CLARK was surprised to hear the remarks that had just fallen from the hon. member... especially as the Returns of Duties collected upon ardent spirits in the District which he represents, was very small indeed.

Mr. YEO was not apprehensive of any loss of Revenue, any more than he was of any injury to the State... Many families were suffering severely, and many, within the sphere of his own parish, were suffering from the want of bread.

Mr. GORR said, that if the passing of a prohibitory Law would prevent drunkenness, the money they passed would be the same as if they had been expended in the purchase of the same goods... he was in favor of the measure, and what was the result.

Mr. GORR said, that if the passing of a prohibitory Law would prevent drunkenness, the money they passed would be the same as if they had been expended in the purchase of the same goods... he was in favor of the measure, and what was the result.

Mr. GORR said, that if the passing of a prohibitory Law would prevent drunkenness, the money they passed would be the same as if they had been expended in the purchase of the same goods... he was in favor of the measure, and what was the result.

Mr. GORR said, that if the passing of a prohibitory Law would prevent drunkenness, the money they passed would be the same as if they had been expended in the purchase of the same goods... he was in favor of the measure, and what was the result.

however, that he should not fall into the latter error, and that in the observations he might see it too correct, or that he should not fall into the latter error, and that in the observations he might see it too correct, or that he should not fall into the latter error, and that in the observations he might see it too correct.

1. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 2. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 3. That the measure be referred to a select committee...

1. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 2. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 3. That the measure be referred to a select committee...

1. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 2. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 3. That the measure be referred to a select committee...

1. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 2. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 3. That the measure be referred to a select committee...

1. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 2. That the measure be referred to a select committee... 3. That the measure be referred to a select committee...

deal might be said on both sides. In a matter of this importance, it was not to be expected that the opinions or sentiments of great authors or great speakers... and much as he admired the many examples of wisdom and courage which he had seen in the course of his life, he did not wish to go to them for a Maine Liquor Law; he would much rather see them introduce another measure, which he had no objection to see them do.

Mr. CLARK said the hon. member (Mr. Whelan) appeared to be quite right in his remarks... should use all the power of his position in the suppression of drunkenness, and he quite agreed with him in his opinion, that the hon. gentleman was to be done with those who were the cause of the evil.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. CLARK said the hon. member (Mr. Whelan) appeared to be quite right in his remarks... should use all the power of his position in the suppression of drunkenness, and he quite agreed with him in his opinion, that the hon. gentleman was to be done with those who were the cause of the evil.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

Mr. WHELAN admitted that he had made a remark with reference to the hon. body sitting in the other end of the building, to the effect that even if the proposed Bill were passed by the House, it would not be binding on the Council; but he wished it to be understood that he had not made that statement authoritatively—it was merely general.

TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The proposed bill to grant certain Privileges to the New York, Newfoundland, and London Telegraph Company, was read the first and second time, and committed to a select committee.

CLOSE OF THE SESSION.

Some further court business having been dispatched... the House adjourned for the session.

An Act to amend an Act to make Provision for the Service of Non-Resident Persons, in certain cases.

An Act to amend the Royal Agricultural Society Incorporation Act.

An Act to incorporate the Charlottetown Masonic Hall.

An Act to amend the Law relating to Weights and Measures.

An Act to amend the Law relating to the Performance of Statute Labor, and to authorize the establishment of certain districts therefor.

An Act for restricting the use of Intoxicating Liquors.

These are few things which afford as greater pleasure than sitting down to write notices of the celebrated Hoosier German Bitters, because we are fully conscious we are conferring a benefit on the community.