

U.S. Is Suggested Trapped In Viet Nam Propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economist John Kenneth Galbraith said here U.S. involvement in Viet Nam will prove the graveyard for a foreign policy of fighting communism closely relating such conflict to the interests of the United States.

"It is worth hoping the policy is all that gets buried," said the Canadian-born Galbraith, an adviser to the late president John F. Kennedy and former ambassador to India, in a speech prepared for the 19th annual Convention of Americans for Democratic Action.

The Harvard economist, a native of Iona Station, Ont., said it was assumed that in Viet Nam the United States faced "a unified conspiracy directed, according to changing preference, by Hanoi, Peking or international communism in general."

"There being no serious social foundation for the insurgency, those who do the fighting are the servants of the external authority. They have no personal stake in the insurrection and can be ignored as a factor in any settlement."

"No social issue being involved, military measures, it was long felt, would suffice for solution."

BELIEVE WHAT TOLD

"Americans could be counted on to believe what they were told, particularly about the power and integrity of the people on our side and the menace with which we deal."

Galbraith said none of these propositions has survived the experience.

As a solution, he said the United States must first "escape the entrapment of our own propaganda."

"Viet Nam is not important to us, nor is it a bastion of freedom. Nor is it a testing place of democracy. It is none of these things. Had it been lost in 1954, no one would be thinking of it now."

Galbraith said the United States is not going to push the Viet Cong back from the large areas they have controlled for the last 10 years.

MUST BE DEFENSIVE

"Our policy now must be to remain on the defensive in whatever area we can hold with the present force. This may well be rather small. But it will provide a refuge for those who have joined our enterprise."

The United States must "face seriously the likelihood that there will not again by a government in Saigon which is seriously capable of prosecuting the war along with us."

"Under these circumstances, the purpose of the holding action is to allow of the best possible bargain between the non-Communist groups in Viet Nam and the Viet Cong."

"There is no long doubt as to whether negotiations are desirable or not—although they may not be conducted by us. The ultimate bargain will not be brilliant. But by any reasonable calculation, that is not our fault. We remained as long as we were wanted."
