Boys Instantly Killed

(Special to The Guardian)
SIMCOE, June 7.—A double tragedy occurred at Culver's Pond last evening when two young boys, Cyril Johnson and Albert Patterson, were instantly killed by grasping a live wire.

At 7 o'clock the two boys who had walked out to Culver's Pond a short distance from town, found a punt on the bank of the pond and proceeded to cross to the opposite side.

In some unaccountable manner the punt upset near the middle of the pond and the boys, on being thrown into the water, reached for a sagging wire that was stretched from a barn to a pole on the far side of the pond.

When found young Patterson and Johnson were hanging to the wire with their heads under water, and when taken ashore life was extinct.

The deadly wire was one in connection with a private electric plant on the Culver farm, and Mr. Culver was not aware of the power was on at the time. During the week several people had handled the wire, which was thought to be harmless.

Simcoe, Ont., June 8.—Coroner McIntosh empaneled a jury this morning in connection with yesterday's fatality at the Model Farm pond, wherein Cyril Johnson and Albert Patterson were drowned.

The jury viewed the remains, ordering an autopsy on the hands and arms and adjourned for one week. A post-mortem examination will be made to ascertain if the children were drowned or killed by the electric current. The Hydro current leaves town at 110 volts, and tested to-day, where the boys caught it, there were but 84 volts.

Islanders Attend C. of E. Synod

There will be a division of Diocese of Nova Scotia, and a Suffragan Bishop, to act as Coadjutor, will be appointed, according to the results of the protracted discussion in the sessions yesterday of the Synod of the Church of England at St. Paul's Hall, Halifax. This was the most important business before this session of the Synod. It was a fact, perhaps the most important for many sessions. It was brought up by the Committee on Increased Episcopal Supervision, and their report, which was submitted by Dean Lwyd. It precipitated one of the finest debates heard in the Synod for a long time, and marked throughout with an admirable spirit. The report of the Committee suggested five methods of securing such supervision as was felt to be desirable. They were: 1. The appointment of a Coadjutor, a Suffragan Bishop, or a Bishop, to be appointed an Archdeacon-at-Large, a Bishop's assistant. The report recited that His Grace's charge would be divided into two parts, one to be elected by the Synod.

Clerical Delegates to the Provincial Synod are: Archdeacon Provost, Dean Lwyd, Rev. G. M. Ambrose, Archdeacon Amritage, Canon Harris, Rev. H. W. Cunningham, Rev. W. W. Judd, Rev. E. A. Harris, Canon Morris, Rev. H. W. Cunningham, Woodroffe.

General Board of Religious Education—Judge Hunt, J. M. Donovan.

Council Social Service—C. C. Blackadder, W. L. Payant.

Executive Committee of M. S. C. C.—D. M. Owen, A. MacKinnon.

The debate on the question of increased Episcopal Supervision began at the morning session, was then resumed, the first speaker being Rev. W. T. Townsend, who declared that the matter was too large a one to be quickly decided upon the diocese was already great. Judge Warburton, of Prince Edward Island, spoke at length upon the subject, remarking that, with all due respect to Archbishop Worrell, he did not think it a good thing that the head of the diocese should be over three thousand miles away five months of every year. He felt sure that an assistant could not have the influence that the head of Pathetic Death Of Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, D.D.

The death occurred at Borden on Wednesday night, under peculiarly sad circumstances, of the Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, D. D., of West Newton, Mass. Dr. and Mrs. Jaynes, accompanied by their three little children, their maid and chauffeur, were on their way to their summer home at Keppoch where they had pleasantly spent the last three summers. Dr. Jaynes, who had been in some what poor health for some time, past was taken suddenly ill with a heart affection just after training at Borden; a Summerside physician was telephoned for but before his arrival and notwithstanding all that human skill and the loving attention of his devoted wife could do his gentle, kindly spirit passed to the Great Beyond. The shock to Mrs. Jaynes was a terrible one. During his recent illness he had set his heart on spending the summer at their beautiful summer home at Keppoch, Mrs. Jaynes also indulged the hope that a summer at Keppoch would restore him to his usual vigor and the journey was undertaken with mingled fear and hope. The earlier stage of the journey gave ground for encouragement. At Sackville they were joined by Mrs. Helen Grant of this city, who went over to accompany them home, and the last stage of the journey was undertaken with every prospect of a happy ending. At Keppoch the hopes were shattered. Death came almost suddenly. The train to the city, Mrs. Jaynes remained with her beloved dead, yet accompanied by Miss Grant, left with the body for West Newton where interment will take place. They will be met en route by Mrs. Jaynes' father to whom the sad news was wired.

Daring Robbery

A daring robbery was perpetrated in the city Wednesday night when two casks of Jamaica rum (40 per cent) each cask containing one hundred gallons and weighing about 1200 lbs. were looted from the cellar of Carter & Co., who had leased this cellar to the Customs Department for the storage of a shipment of 20 casks of this rum, upon which the duty had not been paid and which was in bond.

Eight casks of the shipment were hauled to the warehouse Wednesday afternoon from the railway and lowered into the cellar by electrically driven elevator.

The custom officers after taking over the cellar had the hatch securely fastened by a heavy steel door driven into the wall and a strong padlock.

The thieves evidently pried the door open, got into the cellar, turned the switch started the elevator and smashed open the two big swinging doors and carried away two casks of the liquor by way of Dorchester Street.

The robbery was first discovered Thursday morning by one of the clerks of Carter & Co., who heard the elevator motor running as the hoist bandits neglected to shut off the current. No goods nor cash are missing from Carter & Co., though that firm is out the price of the electric current which kept the motor going all night.

It is understood that the shipment was for a wholesale firm here and intended for export outside the province.

It is reported unofficially that the robbery is in the hands of the authorities.

Ross Case Concluded

The summary trial of Magnus Ross, of Flat River on a charge of assaulting a peace officer in the execution of his duty was concluded yesterday before Magistrates D. E. Shaw and Arthur Clark yesterday morning. Verdict being found for the crown to the extent of $35 fine, which included court expenses. The case opened on Wednesday, when Mr. Ross pleaded not guilty and the crown witnesses, Sheriff Hughes, Police Officer Doyle and Constable Stewart, were examined. Yesterday morning the testimony of Mr. Ross was taken and judgment delivered.

Mr. Ross testified that he was about 62 years of age, a married man with a family, farming 130 acres of land at Flat River, where he had been for the past forty years. He was seeding a field of oats at Big Point on the 30th of May with his sixteen year old son, who was harrowing. He had the field on "halves" with another farmer. He had an axe with him in the field for cutting roots, as there was a ridge that had been growing up with young trees and he was thinning them out. Mr. McCrae, a neighboring farmer, came along with his share of the seed oats for the field and after he had talked with him some time McCrae started home and defendant returned with the seed. He had the axe in his hand, intending to cut some roots, and then thought he would leave this job until he came back. As he went along he heard some one shout but did not turn back to see who it was. Someone came up and caught him by the hands and handcuffed him. He believed the sheriff caught him by the other arm. He had not swung the axe at the sheriff or at anyone. After he was told to drop the axe he heard someone tell somebody to "shoot!" Then he heard the click of a revolver. He could not understand why he was treated this way as he had not raised his hand to anyone. He had behaved throughly in a pretty mannerly way. Certainly he did not swing the axe he was carrying in his hand at the sheriff. He was never in a fight in his life, had never hit a man or fired a gun in his life. He knew Robert Stewart for the past twenty years and did not think Stewart could have any spite against him. He had never done anything to the man.

(Cross-examined) Defendant could have paid his taxes, but had a rea-

MY HOLIDAY TOUR

BY JAMES PATON

A Visit to one of the Most Cosmopolitan Cities in Northern Africa Where the East and West do Meet, but do not Mix. Algiers the Beautiful and the Filthy. A Memorial to an Islander There.

CITY OF ALGIERS

"A Diamond Set in an Emerald Frame." This City is one of the most picturesque on the Blue Waters of the Mediterranean Sea. Looking from the deck of the steamer Arabic the lovely white houses look as if they were built one upon another, or on terraces. In wandering round the streets we met many people of different nationalities, Moors, French, Negroes, Jews and others. I may say the city is made up of two towns, or it can be distinguished by describing it as the new and the old. The contrast between the two is very great. In the new part were the French, English and Americans live, their houses are modern, some most beautiful in architectural designs, surrounded with lovely gardens and in every respect kept in the most sanitary condition. Such is not the case in the old town or what is called the Arab quarters. The streets there are anything but clean, they are irregular and very narrow. On each side of some of them are shops of all kinds, except tailors. The people of this district do not wear "made to order clothing," an old grain bag or old blanket or a piece of any old thing for a covering is about all that is worn. Most men go about bare footed some wear shoes without stockings. The wretched way these people live cannot be properly described; one must walk through the place before it can be realized that human creatures could live in such filth and misery. The women wear a peculiar dress, cover their head, also part of the face with white material up to below the eyes.

One of the streets has no less than 497 steps. It is rather amusing to see Arab men mounted on the backs of donkeys going up and down this street.

I have described the dress of some of the men and women, to give a detailed description of them I have to take more time to say, the population being so mixed the costumes and dresses worn by both men and women are very varied, some very gay, fit to wear at a carnival, others somber enough for a funeral. Their manners also are as varied and would be very interesting to study if one had the time to do it. There are churches to suit all religions. Among those visited by us was the Church of England in a very prominent place there is a marble tablet in the wall with the following inscription.

This Mr. McLeod was a near relative to our esteemed citizen, Mr. C. H. Black.

We took a drive through the Botanical Gardens, the walks are planted with trees, said to have been brought from all parts of the globe. The Avenues have borders of various kinds of flowers. After driving through the garden we drove to the top of a very high hill, where we had a magnificent view of the whole city and beautiful Bay of Algiers.
