

Bacon Literature.

A foppish nobleman, who saw Descartes enjoying himself at the table, having expressed his astonishment that a philosopher should exhibit such fondness for good cheer, got this answer for his pains: "And pray, my lord, did you think that good things were only made for fools?"

"May I leave a few tracts?" asked a missionary of an elderly lady who responded to his knock.

"Leave some tracts—certainly you may," said she looking at him most benignly over her spectacles, "leave them with the heels towards the house, if you please."

"Hallo!" ejaculated an anxious guardian to his lovely niece, as he entered the parlor, and saw her in the arms of a swain who had just popped the question, and sealed it with a smack, "what's the time of day now?"

A little girl at a Sunday school, on being asked to say her text, gave the following: "He that hateth me hateth my father also." On her teacher desiring her to repeat it, she reproduced it in the same form, but it was at last discovered that the passage intended was, "He that hateth me hateth my Father also."

Worse than Ritualism or Fenianism, rheumatism.

A thousand parties of pleasure do not leave a recollection worth that of one good action.

A gentleman who has recently lost an eye begs to intimate that he is now "a vacancy for a pupil."

The late Daniel O'Connell was one of the tribe of drinkers who were known in our society as three-bottle men. One day he was taken to task by a lady of temperance principles.

"They tell me, sir," said the female reformer, "that you can sit down after dinner and drink off three bottles of claret."

"Well, ma'am," said the great orator, "he who told you that story told you the truth."

"Three bottles of wine! But, sir, do you drink all that claret without any help?"

"Ha, ma'am there now you have me. Not quite without help. To drink three bottles of claret I require the help of a pint of port."

A Yankee having told an Englishman that he shot, on one particular occasion, 999 snipe, his interlocutor asked him why he didn't make it a thousand at once.

"No," said he, "not likely that I'm going to lie for one snipe."

Whereupon the Englishman, determined not to be outdone, began to tell a long story of a man having swam from Liverpool to Boston.

"Did you see him?" asked the Yankee, suddenly, "did you see him yourself?"

"Why, yes, of course I did; I was coming across, and our vessel passed him a mile out of Boston Harbor."

"Well, I'm glad you saw him stranger, 'cos you're a witness that I did it. That was me!"

Agriculture.

Improving Low Mowing Fields.

No doubt many a farmer, as he has gathered a scanty crop of hay from his low mowing-field that has not been turned over for several years, has said within himself, if not to others, that he will not allow the season to go by without attempting to improve it. Just as soon as the haying season is over, let this land be turned over, being careful to use a good plough that will lay the furrow smoothly. Harrow well, put on a good dressing of fine manure, harrow that in well, sow the grass seed, brush or harrow that in, and then if the land is not wet, put on a roller that will leave it as smooth as it was before it was disturbed. The land may need to be ditched before this work can be accomplished successfully; but it will pay to do this, and the sooner it is done the better. We have often wondered how farmers can be content, as many seem to be, to mow over acres of good land from which they do not get more than ten or fifteen pounds of hay, when by turning the land over, top dressing and re-seeding it, they could just as well raised two or three tons for the first crop, and one or more tons for the second. We know that there are thousands of acres that might be improved in just this way, and to this extent. We knew a case, some years ago, where an old farmer for many years mowed over most excellent moist land, from which he did not get over eight or ten hundred pounds to the acre, and that of poor, wild grass, which was very hard to cut by hand, and to fine to rake with a horse rake, when that same land was capable of giving great results. We told him it was to be bad, but he said it would not pay to manure it, and it could not well be ploughed, and so he made up his mind not to do it while he lived, but to year by year pound away at that short, thatch-like grass, of which the more a man had the poorer he would be. But a change came over that field when the sons took hold, and by ploughing and top-dressing, this same land has been made to yield great crops of the very best hay. If it will pay to farm it at all, it will pay to farm it well.

PASTURING MOWING LANDS.—Most farmers are strongly tempted to turn their cows into the mowing fields as soon as they begin to look green after the hay crop is off, for they are often short of pasturage during the latter part of the summer. Now this is not a very good plan, especially if it is pursued late in the autumn. We have known fields when the system of feeding close was followed, to "run out," as it is termed. If the land be top-dressed every second or third year, and no second crop of hay cut, it will answer to feed it down to a certain extent. Good farmers will be careful how they follow a course that will yearly cause their land to become poorer and poorer.

Starting, but True!

THE dark ages of medication now draw to a close. Dr. Maggill's two grand specifics—PILLS and SALVE—have a ruck at the root of the cruel idea that make it necessary for a man to pour masses of dead and effete drugs down his throat to aid the cure of his disease.

ONE TO TWO PILLS are enough at an time for any man to take if the pills are made of pure, unadulterated drugs. MAGGILL'S PILLS and SALVE are superseding all the stereotyped physics of the day, because they are made of the finest materials in the laboratory, and never fail.

HEAR WHAT IS SAID: "Dr. Maggill, your pill has rid me of all biliousness." "No more noxious doses for me in five or ten pills taken at a time. One of your pills cured me." "I thank Doctor. My headache has left me. Send a other box to keep in the house." "After suffering torture from Bilious Cholice, two of your pills cured me, and I have no return of the malady." "Our doctors treated me for Chronic Constipation, as they called it, and at last said I was incurable. Maggill's pills cured me." "I had no appetite; Maggill's Pills gave me a hearty one."

FOR DISEASES OF THE Kidneys, Retention of the Urine, &c., Maggill's Pills are a perfect cure. One dose will satisfy any one.

FOR FEMALE DISEASES, Nervous Prostration, Weakness, General Lassitude, Want of Appetite, Maggill's Pills will be found an effectual remedy.

MAGGILL'S PILLS AND SALVE are almost universal in their effects, and a cure can be almost always guaranteed. Each box contains twelve Pills, one Pill in a dose.

All orders for the United States must be addressed to J. Haydock, No. 11 Pine street, New York. Patients can write freely about their complaints, and a reply will be returned by the following mail.

Write for Maggill's Treatment of Diseases. COUNTERFEITS! COUNTERFEITS!—All readers of this paper are warned not to purchase Maggill's Pills or Salve, unless the name of J. Haydock, Proprietor, in addition to the name of Dr. Maggill is on the engraved slip surrounding each box or pot.

"Your box of Maggill's Pills cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some salve behind my ears and the noise left." "Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family." "I enclose a dollar, your price is twenty-five dollars, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar." "Send me five boxes of your Pills." "Your pills are marvellous." "I send for another box, and keep them in the house." "Dr. Maggill has cured my headache that was chronic." "I gave half of one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day." "My menses of a morning is now cured." "Let me have three boxes of your Salve and Pills by the return mail." Sold by all respectable dealers in medicine throughout the United States and Canada, at 25 cents a Box or Pot.
