New Invention.

I have invented and patented on July 24, 1897, a new straw elevator and shaker attached to any fan. It cleans all grain perfectly first cleaning, all grain is taken out of the straw. It has been well tested. It only takes about 1/2 of the power for to drive it of any other machine for that purpose in the market. I ask every intending purchaser to see one of the Week's shakers before purchasing any other. Any person infringing on the patent will be dealt with according to the law. I have appointed Mr. Walter Grant of Mill View, Lot 49, as manufacturing agent. He will receive orders; also myself.

The Old Hegelian's Wit.
A private docent of Leipzig university called one day on Professor Johann Ludwig Lehmann at Halle. The aged Hegelian was physically very weak, and he could not rise from the easy chair in which he lay. But under his long white hair the eyes shone full of intelligence.
After conversing for awhile about the professor's timorously long history of philosophy, the young man said, half in fun:
"Herr Professor, who don't you carry on your history. You make all the earlier philosophers lead right up to Hegel, and then you end, just as if he were the final thinker, his the conclusion of all philosophy. Don't you think Schopenhauer and the others deserve a volume, or a chapter at least? And how about as younger fellows? We think we are the philosophers, you know."
The old man lifted his head and looked straight and seriously at his visitor.
"Young man," he said, "there is a reason for my silence on your post Hegelians. I do not understand you and your systems. I do not see what you are driving at. In my time the question we asked, the question we lived lives to answer, was, 'What is man?' Your answer to that seems to be 'He was an ape.'"

Nature makes the cures after all.
Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.
Things get started in the wrong direction.
Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.
Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.
It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.

HAWTHORNE IN BERKSHIRE.

Mountains and valleys, dear ye are to me,
Your streams wild wandering, ever tranquil lakes,
And forests that make murmur like the sea,
And this keen air that from the hurt soul takes
Its pain and languor! Doubly dear ye are
For many a lofty memory that throws
A splendor on these heights. 'Neath you low star,
That like a dewdrop melts in heaven's rose,
Dwelt once a starry spirit. There he smote
Life from the living hills. A little while
He rested from the raging of the world.
This Brook of Shadows, whose dark waters
Purled
Eoloe to his deep mind, it felt his smile—
Haunted, and melancholy, and remote.
—R. W. Gilder in Century.

A LIGHTNING STROKE.

The Many Things It Did Besides Curing Dad's Rheumatism.

"A few years ago Dad Wright of Salvia, this state, had a very remarkable experience with lightning," said a gentleman from Garrard county, whose stock of good and true stories is always large. "His escape from instant death at the time was miraculous. While hastening on foot through an open field toward his home during a terrific thunderstorm he was struck squarely on the head by an electric bolt. It stripped the hair from one side of his brainpan, tore the clothing from his body and made a crooked black stripe an inch wide down his left side from head to foot. When struck, he bounced several feet in the air and fell back upon the ground as if dead. The shaft entered the earth, throwing up a shower of mud.
"At the time Wright carried in his hip pocket a loaded revolver. Every chamber of the weapon was discharged, the woodwork was burned, and the metal partially fused by the heat. His left shoe was ripped from his foot. The unfortunate man lay senseless and naked for several hours in the drenching rain, but, incredible as it may seem, finally regained partial consciousness and began to stagger uncertainly about over the field. He was in this pitiable condition when discovered.
"He was soon recognized, taken in charge and conducted to his home, where he was clothed and given proper attention.
"As a result of the stroke his teeth and toe nails were loosened, his scalp almost denuded of hair, and his hearing permanently impaired. On the other hand, he reaped an unexpected and decided benefit. For years prior to the occurrence here outlined he had been a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism, but never afterward felt a twinge of pain from that disease, being completely cured of it by the terrible shock.
"The dark, zigzag streak along the left side of his body, indicating the scarred path of the electric current, could never be altogether removed, although various methods were tried for this purpose. In a very short time Wright was up and around and as cheerful as a bird. From that time forth he was famous in that section as the human lightning rod."—Louisville Post.

Historical and Clerical.

The London Journal of Education publishes the following scholarly answers, which are warranted genuine. To the question, "What do you know of Lord Wolsey?" the answer was given: "He was a minister of Henry VIII, who exclaimed, 'If I had served my God as I have served my king, I should not have been beheaded!'" The confusion between Wolsey and Wolsey is perhaps not remarkable, but a post mortem speech of this kind deserves notice. A better story, however, is of a definition of "titbes" which will be of special interest to the church and stage guild—"things worn by ladies in circuses and pantomimes."

Tired.
"The children wish me to ask you to tell them some fairy stories," said the politician's wife.
"My dear," was the reply, "I can't do it. I have been talking to a great many voters today. I must have some relaxation from the routine of business."—Washington Star.

The Way It Struck Her.
He referred in the casual way that is characteristic of members of his profession to an operation at his hospital that day in which a man's rib had been removed. "And why did they do it," said the sweet girl. "Are there not enough women in the world as it is?"—New York Sun.
