

2 Children Die As Fire Levels North Tryon Barn

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
The bodies of two children, ages 3 and 4 years, of Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Rogers, were found huddled together with their dog among the burning embers of a large barn which was completely destroyed by fire shortly before noon yesterday at their home in North Tryon.

The little boy and girl, Darlene and Barry, had been at home with a 15-year-old sister, while Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were grading potatoes in Crapaud, about three miles distant.

The fire was first observed by the owner of the property, Eric Robinson, with whom Mr. Rogers is regularly employed.

Although no evidence of fire had been noticed when Mr. Robinson and another man had minutes earlier driven past the place to a potato warehouse located nearby, five minutes later when they first observed the fire, the building was in flames.

Mr. Robinson left immediately to summon assistance from the Victoria Fire Department pumper truck, and to notify Mr. and Mrs. Rogers about the fire.

PREPARING DINNER
The girl who was at home preparing dinner for the absent members of the family had left the children playing in another part of the house, and was unaware that they had gone to the barn.

In the excitement and confusion resulting from the fire, the children were first thought to have wandered away to a nearby home where they frequently visited.

Concern for their safety mounted steadily as neighbours and the family searched frantically for the children while firemen fought successfully to save the Rogers dwelling house a short distance from the barn.

Construction Expected To Start A New Phase Soon

SUMMERSIDE—Another phase of the eight million dollar construction program underway at RCAF Station Summerside is scheduled to begin soon when the Montreal firm of Forbes and Sloan are expected to start work on site preparation, second stage.

The firm was announced as the low bidder on the contract, and it is presumed it will be awarded to them.

The work involves the construction of taxiways, aprons, roads, water and sewage mains, and the sewage lift station and is valued at approximately a million and a half dollars.

is 500 feet above sea-level. The slope pitches steeply—as much as 3 degrees along some stretches—until it reaches the end 14,300 feet from the pithead. This is roughly 2.7 miles.

Miners working at the end of the slope are about 4,400 feet straight down from the surface, only 800-odd feet short of a mile.

Some of Dosco's collieries on Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island extend out under the Atlantic as much as 400 miles. But No. 2's vertical depth is the greatest on the continent.

POWERFUL NEW HOIST
In September, Dosco announced the introduction of a 1,000-horsepower electric hoist for bringing coal to the surface. It replaced a hoist of half that power.

Dosco said at the time the changeover would permit the further development of No. 2.

each, lost two men shortly after the 1956 explosion but their fellows saved 88 trapped miners.

Hiram B. C. Thompson, for 40 years a provincial mines inspector, said the hard-luck No. 2 colliery has been susceptible to bumps. Six major rockfalls were recorded between mid-March and the end of August this year. They caused injuries to 14 miners.

Mr. Thompson said the No. 2 colliery of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company, a Dosco subsidiary, is one of the deepest mines in the world.

The slope into the No. 2 deeps where coal is mined is three miles down and often slants at a 45-degree angle. Most of the 165 men who went to work late Thursday night were working at the 13,200-foot level.

Eyewitnesses at the mine said at 10:45 p.m. ADT that 20 men had reached the surface, bringing tears of relief from some of the waiting women. Other women were reported hysterical as they saw their husbands, sons and brothers were not among those arriving at the surface.

Without a grain who worked the day shift Thursday, stood near the mine with tears streaming down his grimy, stained cheeks. "It's pretty bad down there as I understand it."

"I've got a brother and a brother-in-law down there. I only hope that God keeps them alive."

Townspeople flocked to the mine after the shock of the bump. The women gathered about the lamphouse where miners hang their lamps after finishing a shift. More than 100 lights were not on the racks.
