

The Night Cometh.

On the dial of an old watch I have seen written in Greek "The night cometh."

When the first bright rays of sunlight, Flashing thro' the sparkling air, Crown with gold the lofty mountains

When the summer's sun at noonday Pours abroad its burning ray, While you bear the heat and burden

Onward, upward, to that City Waiting for the Victor band, Hero of the toil and conflict

Various Opinions of Women.

Our readers may be interested to know some of the opinions of our great writers respecting women.

Confucius: woman is the masterpiece. Herder: Woman is the crown of creation.

Voltaire: Woman teach us repose, civility, and dignity.

John Quincy Adams: All that I am, my mother made me.

Lessing: Nature meant to make woman its masterpiece.

Lamartine: There is a woman at the beginning of all great things.

Whittier: If woman leat us Eden, such as she alone restores it.

E. S. Barrett: Woman is last at the cross and earliest at the grave.

Richter: No man can either live piously or die righteously without a wife.

N. P. Willis: The sweetest thing in life is the unclouded welcome of a wife.

Voltaire: All the reasonings of men are not worth one sentiment of woman.

Leopold Schefer: But one thing on earth is better than a wife—that is the mother.

Shakespeare: For where is any author in the world teaches such beauty as a woman's eyes!

Michelet: Woman is the Sunday of man, not his repose only, but his joy, the salt of his life.

Margaret Fuller Ossoli: Woman is born for love, and it is impossible to turn her from seeking it.

Louis Desnoyers: A woman may be ugly, ill-shaped, wicked, ignorant, silly and stupid, but hardly ever ridiculous.

Lord Langdale: If the world were put into one scale, and my mother in the other, the world would kick the beam.

Emerson: A beautiful woman is a practical poet, taming her savage mate, planting tenderness, hope, and eloquence in all whom she approaches.

Anna Cora Mowatt: Misfortune sprinkles ashes on the head of the man, but falls like dew on the head of the woman, and brings forth gems of strength of which she herself had no conscious possession.

Malherbe: There are only two beautiful things in the world, women and roses; and only two sweet things, women and melons.

Bulwer-Lytton: O woman in ordinary cases so more a mortal, how in the great and rare events of life dost thou swell into the angel!

Saville: Women have more strength in their looks than we have in our laws, and more power by their tears than we have by our arguments.

Thackeray: Almost all women will give a sympathizing hearing to men who are in love. Be they ever so old, they grow young again in their conversation, and renew their own early time. Men are not quite so generous.

Samuel Smiles: The women of the poorer classes make sacrifices, and run risks, and bear privations, and exercise patience and kindness to a degree that the world never knows of, and would scarcely believe even if it did know.

Franklin: He that takes a wife takes care.

La Fontaine: Foxes are all tail, and women all tongue.

Boucault: I wish that Adam had died with all his ribs in his body.

Victor Hugo: Women detest the serpent through a professional jealousy.

Fielding: In the forming of female friendships, beauty seldom recommends one woman to another.

Socrates: Trust not a woman when she weeps for it is her nature to weep when she wants her will.

Mary Wollstonecraft: As a sex women are habitually indolent, and everything tends to make her so.

Rochebrune: It is easier for a woman to defend her virtue against men than her reputation against women.

Ben Johnson: A woman, the more curious she is about her face, is commonly the more careless about her house.

Southey: There are three things a wise man will not trust; the wind, the sunshine of an April day, and woman's pledged faith.

Swift: The love of flattery in most men proceeds from the opinion they have of themselves; in women, from the contrary.

Lady Montague: It goes far to reconcile me to being a woman when I reflect that I am thus in no danger of marrying one.

Swift: The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets, not in making cages.

Alphonse Karr: A woman who writes commits two sins; she increases the number of books, and decreases the number of women.

Douglas Jerrold: What women would do if they could not cry, nobody knows! What poor defenceless creatures they would be!

Charles Buxton: Juliet was a fool to kill herself, for in three months she'd have married again, and been glad to be quit of Romeo.

Chesterfield: Women are much more alike than men; they have, in truth, but two passions, vanity and love; these are their universal characteristics.
