Notes By the Way.

A trip by one of the splendid steamships of the New England & Savannah Line, from Boston to Savannah, is quite a luxury. So after having spent a couple of days in Boston we concluded to take in the aforesaid trip.

On the 10th January we left Boston by the City of Macon, H. B. Lewis, master. The City of Macon is an iron ship of 2100 tons, built at Chester, Penn., in 1877. This line comprises ten steamships plying between Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Savannah.

Among the crew of the City of Macon we found three Islanders, namely, D. J. Music, Chief Steward; Miss Trainor, Stewardess, and Frank McKearney, who was, this trip, promoted to third class assistant Engineer.

Mr. Music, the Steward, has been in the employ of this Company for six years, and is a young man who thoroughly understands his business from the lowest rung of the culinary ladder up to the beautifully supplied dinner table over which he presides. About two years ago he was promoted to his present responsible position. Mr. Music is a general favorite with all who have occasion to travel by the City of Macon.

Mr. Doane, first officer, Mr. Phillips, Chief Engineer, and the Purser, Mr. C. E. Hall, are all first-class men; in fact we never fell in with a more pleasant and sociable lot of officers. Purser Hall took us in charge and allowed us the use of his room. He elevated our numbers in his desk, borrowed his tobacco, slapped him on the back, and called him "old hoss," all of which he bore with wonderful fortitude and Christian resignation.

We had summer weather on the trip down, and made Tybee, at the mouth of the Savannah River, at 9 o'clock Sunday night. Here we had to lay to some four hours and await the flood tide before we could get up to Savannah—the River being narrow and shallow ships of a large draught of water cannot go up at low tide. The steamers of the N. E. & S. Line are all provided with powerful electric headlights, so that they can go up the river at night as well as in daylight, that is if the tide suits.

By daylight we are moored to the wharf, and we grab our collar box and wend our way to the city.

Savannah (or the "Forest City" as the Georgians call it) lies on the west bank of the Savannah River, eighteen miles from its mouth. It claims a population of 41,000. The river is shallow, crooked and narrow—not over 150 or 200 yards wide. Its waters are a dirty reddish color, owing to the nature of its bed. It has no banks to speak of, and marshes extend right and left with a growth of tall grass down to the water's edge.

Savannah is a very pretty city, with regular streets and shade trees of water and lime, oak, magnolia, sycamore, pride of India, and pine, which meet overhead and form a fine shade from the heat of the sun. There are beautiful grassy squares scattered everywhere over the city; the chief one, however, being Forsyth Park, which is one of the most popular of the local attractions of Savannah. It contains twenty acres of original forest and is handsomely laid out with gravelled walks, fountains, etc.

Bull street is a handsome avenue over a mile in length from the wharves on Bay street to Forsyth Park, where it terminates. On each square on Bull street are costly statues erected to prominent people who have figured in the history of the city, and beyond Forsyth Park is a monument to the Confederate dead.

The principal streets running across are Bay, Congress, South, Broad and Liberty, and those running north and south are East and West, Broad, Houston, Habersham, Abercorn, Bull, Whitaker, Barnard, Jefferson and Montgomery.

The churches of Savannah are numerous, costly and attractive, and there are a great many hotels. The DeSoto, now in course of erection, will cost over a million dollars, and will not be completed before 1892. It is intended to intercept tourists who now winter in Florida. A new Post Office and Court House will also be built shortly, and the work of concreting the streets is now going on.

The unpaved streets are nothing but sand into which one sinks ankle deep. Tybee Island, at the mouth of the river, and eighteen miles from the city, is a great Sunday resort, excursion trains running thither. Bonaventure Cemetery and the Thunderbolt Road, three miles out, are also visited by numbers of people. For sublime grandeur of scenery those places are unsurpassed.

The peculiarities of Savannah are mules, goats, sand and negroes. The nigs of all ages "tote" huge baskets of oysters, oranges and vegetables on their heads through the city, and one hears the cry of "Oystah, buy 'em," "Cabbage, buy 'em," late and early.

Besides the ordinary electric light, they here have twenty-three triangular iron towers 160 feet high, upon each of which are three electric lights. These are intended to light up the darker streets and alleys, but it appears to us the lights are too far up in the clouds to serve the purpose for which they were intended.

Savannah is a great shipping port. The chief exports being cotton, corn, rice and guano. The odor which emanates from the piles of guano about the docks is something which must be felt to be fully appreciated.

There are two lines of street cars—the City and Suburban, and the Belt Line. Mules are used for drawing the cars instead of horses. The cars do not appear to be overcrowded.

The city has waterworks, the water being taken from artesian wells, and is very pure. The weather here is delightful. The trees, excepting a few varieties, are green with foliage, flowers are in bloom, and we can hardly realize that it is January. The temperature ranges from 60 to 70, and there is almost continuous sunshine. We have had a few warm rain showers, after which the streets dry up almost immediately, owing to the sandy nature of the soil.

The weather since we have been here has been superb, and compares with P. E. Island June weather—only more so.

Savannah is said to be a very healthy place summer and winter, but we saw where the enterprising patent medicine man had been using his brush on the fences and walls in the following significant manner:—"Use Hall's Chill Cure," "Try Smith's Bile Bean Cure for Chills and Malaria," from which we draw our own inference.

This is about all I know regarding the "Salwanners." CANUCK.

Local and Other Items.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE, for February, is at hand. An interesting number!

PROGRESS.—A boom in building operations is anticipated the coming summer.

JOURNALISTIC.—An exchange reports that Amherst, N. S., is shortly to have a daily newspaper.

REVIVAL.—Special services have commenced in connection with the Prince Street Methodist Church.

I. O. O. F.—The fraternal visit of Willey Lodge to St. Lawrence Lodge takes place this evening.

OPEN.—The "three tides" at the harbor's mouth have not closed this season. It is time the "oldest inhabitant" reported.

THE RABBIT CATCH.—The Cape Sable Advertiser says that not less than 3,000 rabbits have been bagged since November last along the Clyde river.

MONTH'S MIND.—The Month's Mind of the late Rev. N. C. A. Boudreaux will be held in St. Dunstan's Cathedral on Thursday morning next at nine o'clock.

"Well, Sarah, what have you been doing to make you look so young?" "Oh, nothing much, only been using Hall's Hair Renewer to restore the color of my hair."

CARNIVAL.—A fine supply of spangles, bells, gold lace, head gear, etc., for the grand Carnival on Thursday evening may be seen at the Diamond Bookstore. Call early.

MASSONIC.—Brethren will please bear in mind the regular communication of Victoria Lodge this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Visiting brethren cordially welcomed.

A STRANGE QUARTETTE.—In the South window of the Diamond Bookstore you may see four masks, being very correct representations of President Cleveland, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, James G. Blaine and Ben Butler.

WORKS OF ART.—Two handsome oil paintings are on exhibition at the auction room of Mr. Geo. M. Harris. One represents a "French Scene," and the other a "Spaniel." Both are from the brush of Miss M. Harris.

A spring medicine is needed by everyone. Winter food, largely consisting of salt meats and animal fats, causes the liver to become disordered and the blood impure, hence the necessity of a cleansing medicine. The best is Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

FIRE ALARM.—Shortly before eight o'clock on Saturday evening a lamp exploded in the Lorne Restaurant, Queen Street, causing some little excitement in the neighborhood. The bell sounded and the firemen turned out, but their services were not required.

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me great relief in bronchitis. Within a month I have sent some of this preparation to a friend suffering from bronchitis and asthma. It has done him so much good that he writes for more."—Charles F. Dumterville, Plymouth, England.

NATAL DAY.—Preparations have already commenced for the celebration of the Old-fella's Natal Day in this city on Friday, 26th April. A good committee has been appointed by each Lodge, and it is expected that the programme for the ensuing anniversary will be better than ever.

C. P. R. EARNINGS.—The gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1888 were slightly in excess of 13 millions. The working expenses were upwards of 9½ millions, leaving net profits of more than 3½ millions, as compared with profits of 2½ millions in 1887. This statement does not include the earnings and expenses of lines acquired during 1888.

GOOD TIME.—The Stanley made the run from Pictou to Georgetown on Saturday in about two hours—not a bad trip for the 2nd February. The present year beats all records for return trips. The best looked for in the past after the middle of January were tri-weekly runs. Those who profess to know think it probable that the steamer will run all winter. We are still doubtful.

A MEAN TRICK.—Some person has been stealing coal from the shed of a policeman who resides in the vicinity of Upper Queen street, and as a result the supply is likely to give out long before the usual time. The officer is now on the war path and threatens to make it hot for the guilty person if he can find him out. We do not blame the officer. Next to cheating a newspaper man, stealing coal from a policeman is about as mean a business as a person could be engaged in.

REBUILDING JERUSALEM.—The latest reports say that Jerusalem continues to grow quite rapidly. New buildings are rising daily. The Rothschilds have completed a new hospital. Close beside it there is a new Abyssinian church. The Russians are also great builders. They have erected a new church, consulate, lodging houses for pilgrims of the Orthodox National Churches, and a hospital. Near to the Russian group stands the "German House" for German Roman Catholics, from whose top the German and the Papal flag float side by side. The Russians have also built a high tower upon the Mount of Olives, from whose summit the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea can both be seen.
