LONDON (CP)—Britain's prime minister and the president of the United States, in an unprecedented television broadcast, talked Monday night about the "biggest problem in the world—how to keep peace and justice."

Minister Macmillan at the outset of an informal conversation with President Eisenhower in the state dining room at 10 Downing Street, his official residence.

He said this was a party to a meeting that is going to discourage and depress people. We must have the promise of a result.

HIGHLIGHTS OF TALK BETWEEN PRESIDENT, PM

LONDON (AP)— Highlights from the television chat Monday night between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan:

Khrushchev must understand that exactly as you and I do... If he does things that show he recognizes that just as you and I do, then I think a summit meeting could be profitable.

Macmillan: We are up against the biggest job in the world, how to keep peace and justice... I think your visits to these three European capitals and the interchange of visits that you are going to make with Mr. Khrushchev are very sound contributions to peace.

Eisenhower: One of my principal concerns has been the state and the strength of relationships between your country and ours. And I can say through that long personal experience that those relations have never been stronger and better.

Macmillan: We've not to be firm on principles. We've got to maintain justice, but we have got to be flexible about the new conditions that arise and how to deal with the situation.

Voters of Prince Edward Island decide Tuesday whether the province remains one of the last two bastions of liberalism in Canada.

Both party leaders have warned their supporters about complacency. Their appeals to the voters have stressed the necessity of working without letup until the polls close.

Except for Premier Joseph Smallwood's Newfoundland, Canada's smallest province is the only other where the Liberals are in power.

Premier Matheson said in his closing campaign speech that he could not stress too strongly to Liberal supporters "that you must not become indifferent and over confident."

BATTLE ON RECORD

Liberals candidates and supporters battled on the record of the M. A. H. s. a. government which they said has been in power only since Alex Matheson took over the party leadership six years ago.

The last Conservative government in the Island was elected in 1951, a year after Conservatives won federally. Today's election is the first on the island since Prime Minister Diefenbaker took power.

Masked Gunmen Steal Vaccine Worth $50,000

MONTREAL (CP)— Three masked gunmen escaped with $50,000 worth of emergency Salk vaccine from a suburban university research laboratory Monday after locking a night watchman in an empty monkey cage.
