BEYOND THE CITY
AN IDYL OF THE SUBURBS
BY A. CONAN DOYLE

CHAPTER V.
A NAVAL CONSEQUENCE.

It was the habit of the doctor and the admiral to accompany each other upon a morning ramble. Between breakfast and lunch. The dwellers in those quiet tree-lined roads were accustomed to see the two figures—the long, thin, austere sea-man and the short, bustling, tweed clad physician—pass and repass with such regularity that a stopped clock has been reset by them. The admiral took two steps to his companion's three, but the younger man was the quicker, and both were equal to a good 4 miles an hour.

frown was smoothed away from his rugged brow.

"May I come in?" said she, framing herself in the open window, with a background of greenery and blue sky. "I feel like an invader deep in an enemy's country."

"It is a very welcome invasion, ma'am," said he, clearing his throat and pulling at his collar. "Try this garden chair. What is there that I can do for you. Shall I ring and let Mrs. Denver know that you are here?"

"Pray do not trouble, admiral. I only looked in with reference to our little chat this morning. I wish that you would give us your powerful support at our coming meeting for the improvement of the condition of woman."

"No, ma'am. I can't do that." He pursed up his lips and shook his grizzled head.

"And why not?"

"Against my principles, ma'am."

"But why?"

"Because woman has her duties, and man has his. I may be old fashioned, but that is my view. Why, what is the world coming to? I was saying to Dr. Walker only last night that we shall have a woman wanting to command the Channel fleet next."

"That is one of the few professions which cannot be improved," said Mrs. Westmacott, with her sweetest smile. "Poor woman must still look to man for protection."

"It is wonderful, Walker," he was saying, "positively wonderful, the way that boy of mine has gone ahead during the last three years. We heard from Pearson today. Pearson is the senior partner, you know, and my boy the junior—Pearson & Denver the firm. Cunning old dog is Pearson, as cute and as greedy as a Rio shark. Yet he goes off for a fortnight's leave and puts my boy in full charge, with all that immense business in his hands, and a free hand to do what he likes with it. How's that for confidence, and he only three years upon 'change'?"

"Any one would confide in him. His face is a surety," said the doctor.

"Go on, Walker." The admiral dug his elbow at him. "You know my weak side. Still it's truth all the same. I've been blessed with a good wife and a good son, and maybe I relish them the more for having been cut off from them so long. I have much to be thankful for."

"And so have I. The best two girls that ever stepped. There's Clara, who has learned as much medicine as would give her the L. S. A., simply in order that she may sympathize with me in any work I do. But, hullo, what is this coming along?"

"All drawing and the wind astir!" cried the admiral. "Fourteen knots it's one. Why, by George, it is that woman!"

A rolling cloud of yellow dust had streamed round the curve of the road, and from the heart of it had emerged a high tandem tricycle flying along at a breakneck pace. In front sat Mrs. Westmacott clad in a leather tweed jacket, a skirt which just passed her knees and a pair of thick puttees of the same material. She had a great bundle of red papers under her arm, while Charles, who sat behind her clad in Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers, bore a similar role protruding from either pocket. Even as they watched, the pair eased up the lacy spring of, impaled one of her bills upon the garden railing of an empty house, and then jumping on to her seat again was about to hurry onward when her nephew called her attention to the two gentlemen upon the footpath.

"Oh, now, really I didn't notice you," said one, taking a few turns of the treadle and steering the machine across to them. "Is it not a beautiful morning?"

"Lovely," answered the doctor. "You seem to be very busy."

"I am very busy." She pointed to the colored paper which still fluttered from the railing. "We have been pushing our propaganda, you see. Charles and I have been at it since 7 o'clock. It is about our meeting. I wish it to be a great success. See?" She smoothed out one of the bills, and the doctor read his own name in great black letters across the bottom.

"We don't forget our chairman, you see. Everybody is coming. There are two dear little maids opposite, the Wilkissons, held out some time, but I have their promise now. Admiral, I am sure that you wish us well."

HATEFUL PLEASING RELIEF AFTER MANY DAYS.

How a Queens County Man Found Permanent Healing.

His Own Experience Tells Fully and Freely some Truths which all Readers of this Paper should know

Here and there, in almost every town of our province are "chronic" cases over which doctors disagree; cases that become worse year after year. It is to reach such the gentleman to whom the lines refer, and whose portrait is here given, has written a story of his case.

Mr. Branscomb's home in Chipman, Queens Co., N. B. It was there that a representative of the Grocer company called upon him, Sept. 1st, the present year. His greeting was most cordial. He gladly acknowledged his thanks, giving expression to the following statement:

"It is five years since I became afflicted with a form of indigestion. Last winter it became more severe, developing into chronic diarrhoea. I cannot tell you how much I suffered for six long weeks. It seemed as though relief could not be found. You will remember I told you of my condition as asked your advice about it. I bought a bottle of Grocer's Syrup. You told me that the medicine was a laxative and might meet my need. I delayed buying for a few hours until I began to hope that it would help me. Even my clothes seemed a burden because of bloating of my stomach. I was with difficulty that I kept about sufficient to attend to my business.

But I am a well man now from the use of your remedy. In three days after I bought Grocer's Syrup the terrible pain and distress across my stomach were removed. My bowels rapidly assumed a natural, healthy condition. Now I eat and drink as well as I ever could. I have gained constantly in flesh since March last. I am perfectly cured.

It seems a duty for me to state my case fully, that others who suffer as I did may know where to find a cure."

Truly yours,
E. A. BRANSCOMB,
