

Department Store In Paris Features Red China Goods

PARIS (AP) — Silk kimonos from Shanghai, rice wine from Fukien and carved teak chests from Peking were a few of the items on display Tuesday at a leading Paris department store...

The film stresses the more positive aspects of the Peking regime, with shots of dam building, busy workers and a scenic tour of the Chinese capital.

Damaged Vessel Is Nearing Port

HALIFAX (CP) — Search and Rescue said late Tuesday the 160-ton tugboat Jean Frances, damaged in a storm early Sunday morning, was expected to arrive in her home port of Riverport, N.S. about midnight.

RURAL CHILDREN SEE POWER PLANT

A complex project was boiled down to simple terms yesterday as employees of Maritime Electric showed some 300 children from rural schools throughout the Charlottetown plant.

from Southport School. From left are Philip Trainor, George MacDonald, Paul Rowe, Gary Shepherd, Jimmy Smallwood, Austin Keenan and Brian Garburn.

R.C. FLU WANES VANCOUVER (CP) — An outbreak of influenza that in some parts of British Columbia hit as much as 20 per cent of the population now is on the wane, health authorities said Monday.

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER LEAVES OTTAWA

British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, accompanied by Naval Commander Pitt Lt. J.R. Knight, inspected...

RCAP honor guard at Ottawa airport before departing from the Canadian capital. Sir Alec flew to Toronto for a speech to the Empire Club of Canada before leaving for Washington.

MONTEAL (CP) — A federal provincial conference of labor ministers will be held in Ottawa March 9-10, Labor Minister Allan MacEachern announced Sunday night.

PLAN TALKS

OPERERA TO VISIT Another indication of the closer ties between China and France comes when the Peking Opera opens a Paris run Feb. 21.

British-Chinese Relationship Remains Stiff After 14 Years

By ARTHUR GAVSHON LONDON (AP) — If President de Gaulle had consulted Sir Alec Douglas-Home before recognizing Communist China, Britain's prime minister probably would have told him: "Go ahead, it makes sense. We'd do the same if the situation arose again because we think we were right. The Chinese ought not to be isolated. But don't expect wonders in your trade and other relations."

able to study its development and manifestations at first-hand from the Chinese side and so form their own assessments of an event crucial to the evolution of Western policy.

On the credit side: 1. London's recognition of Peking over the years has been a feathering source of argument with Washington. These differences, resulting from conflicting approaches to the China question, occasionally have mushroomed into crisis among them.

1. Peking may well have withheld action against Hong Kong because of British recognition. The island-colony acquired by Britain in 1962 still functions as a vital clearing-house for China trade, as a port of call for the great shipping lines, as a window looking out to the mainland and as a living reminder to the Chinese of what life is like in the outside world.

2. Peking's every link with the non-Communist world may well have helped to lessen China's over-all reliance on the Soviet Union. The British have long argued that to isolate the Chinese from the ebb and flow of world opinion would also be to limit the interplay of Chinese-Soviet differences.

The fact of the Peking-Moscow split was in no way influenced by recognition but British and other Western neutral diplomats have been able to study its development and manifestations at first-hand from the Chinese side and so form their own assessments of an event crucial to the evolution of Western policy.

On the credit side: 1. London's recognition of Peking over the years has been a feathering source of argument with Washington. These differences, resulting from conflicting approaches to the China question, occasionally have mushroomed into crisis among them.

1. Peking may well have withheld action against Hong Kong because of British recognition. The island-colony acquired by Britain in 1962 still functions as a vital clearing-house for China trade, as a port of call for the great shipping lines, as a window looking out to the mainland and as a living reminder to the Chinese of what life is like in the outside world.

2. Peking's every link with the non-Communist world may well have helped to lessen China's over-all reliance on the Soviet Union. The British have long argued that to isolate the Chinese from the ebb and flow of world opinion would also be to limit the interplay of Chinese-Soviet differences.

The fact of the Peking-Moscow split was in no way influenced by recognition but British and other Western neutral diplomats have been able to study its development and manifestations at first-hand from the Chinese side and so form their own assessments of an event crucial to the evolution of Western policy.

On the credit side: 1. London's recognition of Peking over the years has been a feathering source of argument with Washington. These differences, resulting from conflicting approaches to the China question, occasionally have mushroomed into crisis among them.

1. Peking may well have withheld action against Hong Kong because of British recognition. The island-colony acquired by Britain in 1962 still functions as a vital clearing-house for China trade, as a port of call for the great shipping lines, as a window looking out to the mainland and as a living reminder to the Chinese of what life is like in the outside world.

2. Peking's every link with the non-Communist world may well have helped to lessen China's over-all reliance on the Soviet Union. The British have long argued that to isolate the Chinese from the ebb and flow of world opinion would also be to limit the interplay of Chinese-Soviet differences.

The fact of the Peking-Moscow split was in no way influenced by recognition but British and other Western neutral diplomats have been able to study its development and manifestations at first-hand from the Chinese side and so form their own assessments of an event crucial to the evolution of Western policy.

On the credit side: 1. London's recognition of Peking over the years has been a feathering source of argument with Washington. These differences, resulting from conflicting approaches to the China question, occasionally have mushroomed into crisis among them.

Chevrolet Oldsmobile Pontiac Ford Buick Chrysler cars and trucks advertisement with OK logo and 'Right Now - the GREATEST CHOICE of the year! Time to buy an OK used car!' slogan.

FALLING CROSS

The cross on top of the steeple of the fire-damaged Benton St. Baptist Church St. Augustine, Ont., falls from its perch at the height of the fire Tuesday.

Perch at the height of the fire Tuesday. The 83-year-old church was destroyed with loss estimated at about $150,000.

FANNY 'OBSCENE'

LONDON (AP) — A London judge ruled Monday that Fanny Hill, the fictional memoirs of an 18th-century pleasure girl, is obscene and may not be sold here in a recent paperback edition.

ISLAND CHEV. - OLDS. LTD. Fitzroy Street DIAL 894-6577. Includes text: 'Only at your Chevrolet-Oldsmobile Franchised OK Used Car and Truck Dealer. Be sure to see Bonanza on the CBC-TV network each Sunday. Check your local listing for channel and time.'