Thanksgiving Service Held By UCW Group

KENSINGTON — Baskets of beautiful flowers helped provide the setting at Kensington United Church for the annual Thanksgiving service of the U.C.W. Mrs. Alexander MacKay conducted the service, and was assisted by Mrs. Vernon Millar who read the scripture from John 10, then gave a meditation on the theme, "One Fleck, One Shepherd."

The male choir, under the direction of the Rev. L. M. Murray, led in the service of praise. A solo, "He never said a Mumble-Word," a Negro spiritual, was impressively rendered by Mr. Murray. The service was accompanied by Gordon Murray.

A film, "Harvest in Ontario," was shown by Mr. Everett Donald. This was followed by a presentation of different phases of the work in that island, by several members of the United Church Women. Mrs. Duncan Picketts described "The Land and Its People," noting the progressive changes accompanied by many problems, brought about by the American occupation.

Mr. Harold Palmer told of the educational work, mentioning the fact that education is compulsory through Junior High School. A real stride forward in church related education, came in 1957, with the opening of the Okinawa Christian Institute, a two year college, the first Christian school that the island has had, part of its purpose is to show young students how to bring the spirit of Christ into their own cultural backgrounds.

Mrs. Marvyn Clark presented the history of the missionary movement, and the efforts and achievements of the church, concluding with the challenge, that in view of the strategic place the island holds in the international life of the world, American Christians should do their utmost to help these people maintain a strong Christian witness in this area of the Pacific. Small though their numbers may be, they have much to contribute to the Christian world.

A generous thanksgiving service was received. Users were Mrs. Ronald Casper, Mrs. Fred Davison, Mrs. Scott Mosse and Mrs. Bruce MacLeod.

MARY HAWORTH Fighting Between Cousins Reverse Of Golden Rule

Dear Mary Haworth: I have known a 2-year-old son and, as you know, this is the age of wild behavior. In his attitude toward his cousin (my sister's child) who is 2 1/2 years older to him.

We live in a village community where children are possessive of their toys. My son, Mike has learned from bitter experience that he should hold on to what belongs to him.

I try to teach him to share but, as a result, other children run off with his playthings and destroy them.

On the other hand, his cousin Joe lives where there are no small children, other children, yes, but in their teens.

Consequently, when a 3-year-old Mike and 2 1/2-year-old Joe get together, the latter is willing to share, but my son is not willing to return Joe's belongings. Mike will scream and cry before giving in.

Mike has reached a point where neither boy would give an inch when they are together. I would like to have them play together but it seems my sister and I are in a delicate predicament after "play" sessions.

We have tried to punish them but this does no good. Maybe you can suggest a solution to suit the problem. Thank you.

(Mike) doesn't want to be done by. Which is the exact reverse of the Golden Rule. Do you realize that you are standing by, tacitly supporting this in your brand of meanness?

You ask for a solution to suit the problem. To my mind, the solution, the right remedy is to write or in person interview. Mail her in care of the Guardian.
