

A QUEER WOMAN.

BY ANNETEE L. NOBLE.

Her name was Evelyn Hopkins. As a child she grew around and away from, instead of into, the habits of nice little girls; no one perceiving the circuit until it was described. In lieu of sewing big earnest stitches into South Sea Island patchwork with a number six thimble, Evelyn sat whistling on the back fence. Being bashful, she eschewed schools, and so spelled in a singularly abominable way all the days of her life. Nevertheless, from the treasures of old garrets, from the borrowed bibliothèque of the cook, from most unpromising sources everywhere, Evelyn gave herself what she always called a liberal education. Froissart, John Bunyan and the Family Almanac were taken in sans discrimination but each was well digested. Time ran on and the girl grew tall and comely, with large white hands, a fine physique, and the grace, strength and naturalness of a pleasing savage.

One day, as she sat in the barn wading asparagus branches over a sick horse to keep the flies from him, somebody asked what kind of a wife she would make. The Guy Fawkes who put that question knew it was the match to a succession of explosive queries which, once fired, would shatter into fragments the girl's present dwelling of content. The new gunpowder plot succeeded, and what commotion followed! It was discovered that Evelyn could not bake, brew, spin, sew or sweep. She scarcely knew her own clothes but wore other peoples' with exasperating innocence—always the best clothes to, and she usually tore them. If she discovered her mistake, she would make an atrocious attempt at reparation in the way of a darn with dragon-teeth stitches. When she tried housework, she choked up sinks, or put covered tureens of soup high up on pantry shelves, there to stay until the family tore up the floor in search of deceased rats wanting burial.

Evelyn could not shine in the kitchen neither was she brilliant in the parlor. She would be dumb throughout a discussion of the minister's wife's bonnet, or the relation of that which Mrs John Smith told Mrs. Sam Brown; but was Evelyn good for nothing? Far from it! In fires, funerals, epileptic fits, thunder and lightning, in great emergencies of any kind, she did the thing required in the very second when other people recoiled with a shriek. There was once a grand Fourth of July celebration in her native town, and the mayor, the militia, the brass band, and Demosthenes the Modern, came out of it all covered with glory. The details of the pageantry were planned one afternoon when Evelyn leaned over the mayor's fence and told him how to do it. She dressed Liberty, made the marshal's badges, and borrowed a cannon, a poet, and a torchlight procession from the nearest village. When the day came, she quietly prompted Demosthenes when he gasped in agony of forgetfulness, she took home the little chap who almost blew himself up with gunpowder, she guarded the soldiers' dinner from patriotic townsmen ready to devour it prematurely, she sent around a subscription paper for a sick drummer boy; with sagacious foresight she caused the editors to be serenaded, and then she went home and slept the sleep of the just—that is, if the just ever wear their mothers' crape shawls and burn them full of fire cracker holes.

Not far from Evelyn's home was a stream famous for its fish. Hunters or fishermen often saw her demurely meandering among the reeds there. Small boys had exchanged civilities with her in the shape of flies or angle-worms, and in consequence, certain widows and old maids often dined on fish which Miss Hopkins left at their doors.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.—DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper Yours truly,

W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister. Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.

Ask for Littlefield's Constitutional Catarrh Remedy and take no other.
